Today

Around the World.
Remembering the Wife.
The Baby Queen.
A British Wonder.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

"AROUND THE WORLD IN EIGHTY DAYS" was Jules Verne's dream of what might be.

Around the world in 21 days is the accomplishment of Dr. Eckener and German engineering skill.

The exact flying time of the Hearst-Zeppelin cruise around the world is 12 days, eight minutes.

To mention those figures in scientific achievement is like mentioning ten billion dollars in Wall street. No need to enlarge on the figures.

PHILIP SNOWDEN, British chancellor of the exchequer in the Labor government, sets an example to other husbands that many will not follow.

He won his fight for what is considered "financial justice to England," making his dear allies give to Britain millions of German reparations that those allies expected to keep for themselves.

Snowden telephoned to a London newspaper: "If England's pleased, so am I. Without the help of my wife I could never have achieved it."

ONE HUNDRED AND SEVENTY-FIVE thousand Americans saw little Gloria Matthews, aged 3, of Lakewood, N. J., win the crown as Queen of American Babies at Asbury Park.

But remember, that the baby lacking the curliest hair, pinkest cheeks, fittest little legs, may be, later on, a champion human being, in spite of missing the champion baby championship.

Voltaire was a sickly baby with fits. Pope, the poet, had to be sewn up in a stiff canvas jacket each morning that he might sit up and write.

Byron had a club foot. Napoleon had epileptic fits.

IT'S the brain that counts, and often a child with a highly developed brain drawing the blood away from the rest of the body, makes a poor showing at first, but lives to rule all the champion babies.

CYRUS H. K. CURTIS sends you the information carefully copyrighted, that one big British prison is sold to be used for other purposes. Twenty-three other prisons are closed, crime is decreasing.

The interesting thing is that they haven't got prohibition in Britain.

BRITAIN'S average daily prison population, which was 20,000 in 1904, is now only 11,000, and "there is also a remarkable drop in convictions for drunkenness." How do the British do it?

NATIONAL prohibition authorities tell New York police to close speakeasies, saying "It is the business of the police to suppress nuisances."

Commissioner Whalen of New York's police says it is the National Government's business to compel obedience to the Constitution of the United States.

Meanwhile there are, according to police testimony, 32,000 speakeasies running night and day. That is not what was expected of prohibition.

LIEUT. BOLSTER seems to be a young American at home in the air. It was something new in the world of flying when he stepped from the dirigible Los Angeles on to a flying airplane, above the Cleveland airport, with 100,000 watching.

MORE important to flying was the demonstration of the brilliant Spanish professor, Juan de la Cievra. He landed his "autogyro" gently, easily and safely on a twenty-foot circle in the center of the field.

To control landing speed, making dangerously high speed and enormous landing fields unnecessary, is to improve aviation.

MORE mergers, with business always bigger. The People's Savings & Trust Co. unites with the Pittsburgh Trust Co., as the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Co., creating an $80,000,000 concern.

CHILDREN seeing a skyrocket going up, up, up, wonder when it will stop and come down.

Children of Wall Street, looking at prices sailing upwards, as children look at sky rockets, wonder when prices will start coming down.

"What will signalize a decline?" Wall Street asks, meaning, how shall we be able to know when the rocket turns and starts definitely downward?

WALL STREET'S children never can know, for sure. Rockets starting from earth have a definite supply of powder pushing, and can go only so far.

Wall Street starts skyrocketing, ammunition is added to the upward flight every little while, big crops, greater, cheaper quantity production, and the rocket goes higher.

The best plan is to buy what you can pay for, don't gamble, keep your head out of reach of the stick when it comes down.

MEYER BLAMED IN POSTOFFICE DELAY HERE

Year's Tieup on New Building Due to Protest on Short Corridor to U.S. Courtroom

Does a walk of about 100 steps cause undue fatigue for a Federal Court witness?

On this question hinges the entire cause of the 12 months' delay in the plans for Pittsburgh's new post office building.

The Postmaster General's department has placed its O. K. on the plans and the Federal Court judges gave their approval to the arrangement of the courtrooms, but United States Attorney John D. Meyer cried out against requiring witnesses, prisoners and lawyers to take a stroll down a 260-foot corridor.

JUDGES SATISFIED

According to the architects, Meyer's objection wrecked the smooth running of plans to give Pittsburgh a new post office and Federal building in 1930.

In order to give ample light, good ventilation and freedom from noise, the designers of the structure located a Federal courtroom on each end of the building, one facing Seventh avenue and the other opposite the Pennsylvania Station. In the center of the building was placed a light well to give postal clerks on the lower floors the benefit of sunlight. Flanking the light well it was arranged to have the witness rooms.

The judges and citizens who viewed the plans declared it was a satisfactory plan, but Meyer filed his objection with the suggestion that courtrooms and witness rooms should be side by side.

ROOF FOR PLANES

This happened more than eight months ago. In due time the Department of Justice learned of the United States attorney's stand on the situation and the "red light"

N. Y. THUNDERS GREETING TO ECKENER

Zep Commander Receives Manhattan's Acclaim for Great World Flight

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin, and the man who made the whole world kin, received New York City's official handclasp of greeting this afternoon.

It was a gray day, but there was nothing of gloom in the uproarious reception which this sky conqueror received in recognition of his round the globe flight in three weeks.

SALVOES OF CHEERS

The sky scraper belt of Lower Manhattan gave its usual boisterous greeting with salvoes of cheers and "hochs" and clouds of confetti and ticker tape that belched from roof and lofty windows in a pattering storm. But behind the din and the flying cloudlets of paper there was a deep feeling of awe over the air commodore's achievement in making so nonchantly the world-girdling tour that made neighbors of three continents.

Dr. Eckener came over from Lakehurst, N. J., where the Graf is being groomed for its departure back to Germany, and landed at the Battery at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Then began a triumphal procession uptown to city hall, where Mayor James J. Walker awaited this latest pioneer in world travel and world kinship to shake hands and, in the name of the city, to extend heartiest congratulations.

It was something new in the career of this noted voyager to come into New York by boat. He usually arrives by air.

LOS ANGELES SALUTES

There was a melodramatic touch to the arrival when the United States Navy dirigible Los Angeles, en route from Cleveland, O., to its home port at Lakehurst, flew over the municipal tug Macom while the boat was carrying Dr. Eckener from Jersey City to the Battery.

As the Los Angeles hovered over the Macom the dirigible pilot dipped the hull in a courtesy of salute.

Dr. Eckener, who wore his uniform, stood upon the deck of the Macom and looked with interest upon this aerial demonstration. It was a reunion, in fact, for Dr. Eckener piloted the Los Angeles over the Atlantic some five or six years ago when it was a Zeppelin under another name. It was given

RAMMED, VESSEL SINKS IN THREE MINUTES; FOG HAMPERS RESCUE

International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 30.—The death toll in the sinking of the passenger steamer San Juan early today off Pigeon Point may reach threescore or more.

A dense fog today shrouded the fate of 74 passengers and members of the ill-fated San Francisco-to-Los Angeles steamer which sank 12 miles off the coast of Central California three minutes after a collision with the tanker S. C. T. Dodd.

Seven hours after the collision only 36 of the 110 persons known to have been on the San Juan had been definitely accounted for.

Of this number 27, many badly injured, were en route to San Francisco on the crippled tanker S. C. T. Dodd, and nine were aboard the steamer Munami, which was first to answer the distress call sent out by the Dodd immediately after the collision.

There was an unconfirmed report that the motorship Frank Lynch at the scene had picked up a dozen survivors, which if true would cut the total missing to around 60.

Nine survivors aboard the Munami were transferred to the coast guard cutter Shawnee, a message picked up by the Mackay-Federal Wireless Company said.

With dawn and partial lifting of the fog, wreckage could be seen floating about in the vicinity of the wreck on the oil-covered waters of the Pacific.

Careful search was being made in the hope that survivors might still be clinging to the wreckage.

MANY WOMEN, CHILDREN

Many of the victims of the worst marine disaster in recent years on the Pacific Ocean were women and children. The San Juan carried 65 passengers and a crew of 45.

Radio advices failed to indicate how many of those known to be saved were passengers

CLASHES PERIL U. S. STUDENTS

JERUSALEM, Aug. 30.—(Jewish Telegraphic Agency) — Fourteen Americans are among a group of 29 Jewish students of the Haifa Secondary High School, who are in grave danger in the Jewish colony Metulah, near the Syrian frontier, according to advices received today by the American consul, Paul Knabenshue.

The students started a week ago on a bicycle trip to Syria. Efforts have been made by the consular authorities to arrange for their transportation to safety.

Several American Jewish families are leaving Palestine today, debarking on a steamer for Canada.

BEDOUINS ROUTED

A government communique today said civil authorities had dispersed 1,500 Bedouins who had been massing quietly at Solith. Seventy Arabs were captured at Qalonia after repeated attacks on the Jewish colony at Motza.

British airplanes, guarding against possible further disorders in Jerusalem, today circled above the Mosque of Omar, on the site of Solomon's Temple, where a huge Moslem crowd assembled for the Friday prayers.

The correspondent for the Jewish Telegraphic Agency reported that 13 planes were above this area, while others also were circling other places where trouble might develop.

While Jerusalem, though tense, was calm, reports were received of further attacks on Jewish colonies.

The Jewish Telegraphic Agency correspondent reported that nine Jews were killed at Safed, in the north, Thursday night. Other reports said that five Jews were killed and 20 wounded. Troops finally quelled the attacking Arabs.

The colony of Telpioth, between Jerusalem and Bethlehem, was attacked by Arabs, who were driven off by British troops.

UNREST AT TIBERIAS

A grave situation also was reported to have developed in Tiberias where the Arabs were restless.

Today, the Moslem Sabbath, started in an atmosphere of tenseness.

Several new attacks on the Jewish quarters of Jerusalem last night were repulsed by British troops.

The tenseness was increased around the Mosque of Omar district by the knowledge that it was just

Ex-Vanities Girl Engaged to Marry

PARIS, Aug. 30.—(INS.)—Hallam Keep Williams, of New York, today announced his engagement to Ruth Harrington Anderson, of Philadelphia, a former "Vanities Revue girl." Williams' former wife, Anne Murdock the actress, filed a divorce action in the New York courts at Mineola, L. I., last May. An interlocutory decree was granted, but it will not become effective until October. It is reported here that Miss Murdock will marry a wealthy Cuban.

Lifeboat Inventor Dies of Heart Attack

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Capt. Andreas Petrus Lundin, inventor of the Lundin lifeboat with which many ocean liners and steamships are equipped, died of heart disease yesterday at his home in Flushing. He was 60 years old.

LADY HEATH'S LIFE WAVERS

CLEVELAND, Aug. 30.—(INS.)—The life of Lady Mary Heath, England's famous aviatrix, was hanging in the balance today.

Her condition was reported "slightly worse." at Lakeside Hospital this afternoon where she is putting up a valiant battle for her life.

The aviatrix regained consciousness shortly before noon for the first time.

It was stated that if Lady Heath can survive the next 36 hours her recovery may be expected, although she never will be able to fly again.

A noted Cleveland brain surgeon performed a delicate operation on Lady Heath's badly fractured skull last night with the assistance of Dr. H. B. Wright, chief medical officer of the National Air Races.

It may be several days before the crisis is past, hospital attaches announced. Should meningitis develop, they indicated, the woman flyer has little chance of living. The brain operation was performed in an effort to stop the seepage of the brain fluid and thus prevent meningitis.

Following the operation it was reported that the aviatrix "seemed to

Vets Demand Referendum On Dry Law

ST. PAUL, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—In the most fiery session of its thirtieth annual encampment, the Veterans of Foreign Wars today went on record favoring a national referendum on the eighteenth amendment after tabling a resolution asking for an out-and-out repeal of the dry constitutional amendment.

Louis Glicksman, of Revere, Mass., made a long appeal in favor of the resolution for a national referendum on the dry law after the resolution urging a repeal of the eighteenth amendment had been defeated by a viva voce vote.

Glicksman shouted that "if we had been given a fair shake on the question of the eighteenth amendment in the first place when the war was on, I wouldn't protest now."

Starlight Refinery Swept by Flames

BUTLER, Pa., Aug. 30.—Damage estimated at $70,000 was caused when a steam still of the Starlight Refining Company of Karns City exploded and set fire to the plant.

The force of the explosion was heard for miles and pieces of the still fell 1,500 feet away.

MEINE TO FACE CUBS TODAY

Our Pirates are having a fine time with those Cubs, who were getting set to clinch the pennant when they rode into town Wednesday morning. Since that occasion they have dropped three games to the Pirates, who would like nothing better than to continue the dose this afternoon and tomorrow.

Well, anyhow, it's been a great series, with more excitement promised in the remaining contests.

Heinie Meine will be on Fogarty Knoll ths afternoon in the fourth game of the series. The Cubs will fight behind Guy Bush or Charlie Root.

The Pittsburghers made a fine showing yesterday as they grabbed the third game of the series, the score being 5 to 4.

The lead of the Cubs now stands at 11½ games.

Hitchcock, Stage Star, Ill in Hospital

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Raymond Hitchcock, fambus stage comedian, who is undergoing treatment in a hospital here for heart trouble and asthma, remained unimproved last night. Mr. Hitchcock, who is 64, is not in a dangerous condition, it was said at the hospital.

New York Surgeon Missing in Chicago

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Dr. Frank M. Ende, 39-year-old New York surgeon and second in charge at the City Hospital there, has been missing, police said today, since August 13 when he came to Chicago to attend a convention of the American Society of Physicians and Surgeons.

Dr. Ende registered on that day at a Loop hotel. He talked with a friend in the lobby and complained of not feeling well. He took leave of his companion, saying he was going to his room to take something for a headache. He has been missing ever since.

Fiance Arrives Too Late, Usher Weds Girl

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—(INS.)—Edwin Bixler, young electrical engineer of Navarre, O., who came here to claim his sweetheart at Silver Springs, Md., found her already married to another, and returned to his home today, broken-hearted.

The girl, Isabel E. Kern, 19, had been married the day before at Rockville, Md., to an usher at the Fox Theater here, Raiford J. Conway, 21, formerly of Palatka, Fla. She was to have married Bixler Monday.

She sent a telegram to Bixler which passed him on the way, saying: "Don't come. Changed my mind. Married yesterday."

Squirrel Hill Residents Interested in Straw Vote

Judge Richard W. Martin maintains his lead in the mayoralty straw vote poll conducted by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

A large number of ballots from Squirrel Hill voters in the day's returns gave him a slight lead over Mayor Charles H. Kline, while both had a considerable advantage over President of Council James F. Malone. The latest standing in the poll is:

Martin	484
Kline	426
Malone	367

The vote for the day is: Martin, 112, 67 men and 45 women; Kline, 100, 63 men and 37 women; Malone, 62, 46 men and 16 women.

More than half of the wards of the city have been included in the canvass. Today the poll is extended to three North Side wards and the remaining 13 wards to which ballots have not been distributed will all be reached within a week.

A number of so-called "organization wards" are among the group not yet reached in the canvass.

ZEPPELIN AMASSES AMAZING RECORDS IN WORLD FLIGHT

'SKYLARKERS' IN AIR JUST 12 DAYS

Two Storms, Small Accident, Close Call in Los Angeles Fail to Mar Achievement

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND

World-renowned newspaper correspondent, who crossed the Atlantic aboard the Graf Zeppelin on its first trans-Atlantic cruise, and who is writing the story of the Hearst-Zeppelin-Round-the-World-Flight.

ABOARD THE GRAF ZEPPELIN, AT LAKEHURST, Aug. 30—We are home. The earth has been circumnavigated by an airship. The Hearst-Zeppelin-Round-World-Flight has made history.

We have circled the globe in 21 days, five hours and 35 minutes.

Karl Von Weigand

We have established a new world's record for globe "skylarkers." Of that time, four days were spent in Friedrichshafen, three and three-quarters days in Japan and 19 hours in Los Angeles, approximately nine days. Our actual time in the air was 11 days and 21 hours.

We made a new record for passenger-carrying craft crossing the Atlantic in 42 hours and 42 minutes from New York to the Lizard light at Land's End, England. We blazed the first air lane from Western Europe to the easternmost rim of Asia, through Russia and bleak Siberia, and made the first non-stop flight from Berlin to Tokio in the astounding short time of 93 hours and 40 minutes, another record that promises to be hard to lift.

Cross Two Oceans

We crossed two oceans and three continents. We conquered the Pacific. We flew from Tokio to San Francisco through storm and fog in 68 hours and a few minutes.

We had but one small accident, which caused only slight delay. We also had a cross-hangar wind in Japan, preventing us from leaving the dock for 19 hours.

This is exclusive of the one extra day in Friedrichshafen for tightening the cover of the Graf, which really should have been done in Lakehurst before our start. It cost us one day, but does not really come under the heading of "repairs."

The Hearst-Zeppelin Round-the-World Flight was the greatest practical venture of the age.

It was a marvelous flight—a fiction-like experience, that the 19 passengers—18 men and one woman, have had.

We passed through two storms, one in Siberia, the other off the coast of Japan. The latter was shorter, but more severe than the storm encountered by the Graf off the Bermudas on the first trans-Atlantic flight last October.

In real danger we were but once and that in the take-off at Los Angeles. Then death was, indeed, very near. Our most impressive moments were, I believe, in Siberia when three times the Graf was encircled by a wonderful rainbow and once with a strange halo or aureole, and the sunset as we saw it from above San Francisco. To this I personally should add the silent hour that I spent at night and just before dawn on the bridge and in the navigation room, unforgettable hours.

Roughest in Desert

Our roughest, rockiest and bumpiest flying we had from Yuma to El Paso along the Mexican border, Arizona and New Mexico.

The passengers were an unusually congenial lot, intelligent and in the main with understanding that this was an adventure in which small inconveniences, if they came, did not count. They had sporting instincts. Each passenger had a personality or individuality peculiar to himself. They all were "characters." No others would go on such a romantic adventure. "Billy" Leeds was perhaps the most popular of all.

Latecomer Popular

Joachim Rickard who was vetoed and only let on the Graf an hour before the start of the Hearst-Zeppelin flight, turned out to be a splendid fellow.

Baron Von Perckhammer, art and press photographer, our "Tyrolean wild man," insisted on wearing "shorts"—trousers that come only half way between hips and knees—and a funny little jacket, even when we were near the Arctic Circle in Siberia.

Christof Iselin, an ex-lieutenant colonel of the Swiss army, apparently around 70 years of age, was the most indefatigable note-taker and amateur photographer on board.

M. Gerville-Reache, our one representative of France, brought a touch of Paris into our circle.

Capt. Sir Hubert Wilkins, British explorer of the two Arctics, was one of the most outstanding characters in our party. Commander Rosendahl and Lieut. Richardson were ever on the alert for anything new in ship, meteorological conditions, or navigation. Robert Hartmann, silent, quiet working cameraman, won the admiration of all by his diligence.

Lady Drummond Hay rarely imposed her company on the male passengers except at meal times, but often was on the bridge or in the navigation room with Dr. Eckener.

When we arrived at Lakehurst last October on the first flight across the Atlantic I wrote that the Graf Zeppelin had demonstrated the practicability of the airship as the only safe aircraft at the present time for trans-oceanic air traffic.

The amazingly successful completion of the Hearst-Zeppelin flight around the world certainly confirms the opinion that I then expressed.

Airship Supreme

The Hearst-Zeppelin flight around the globe, the first of its kind in history, had demonstrated beyond cavil the superiority of the airship for trans-oceanic air traffic over the biggest and best aeroplanes that have been developed up to the present time.

Coming rigid dirigibles, and I believe their development will now be rapid, will be larger, stronger and faster than the Graf. Their wireless stations must be more powerful and have larger radius.

Without doubt the most outstanding need that the Hearst-Zeppelin pioneer flight around the globe revealed is a thoroughly organized international weather service for trans-oceanic air traffic. That is an imperative necessity.

The second need is a highly-trained and experienced meteorologist on every airship. The presence of Dr. Heinrich Seilkopf, as meteorologist, proved a very happy experiment. He took all the details of the weather reports and making up the weather charts and helping to analyze them from the shoulders of the commodore or his staff.

Commercial airports for airships and improved docking facilities, with mechanical means and not wholly dependent upon man power, are among other necessities. It is not likely that either the American or Japanese navy can always place its airship docks at the disposal of commercial airships except for emergencies.

The most ideal short airship route that I came across is the run from California to Honolulu, where the present steamer time of five days could be cut down to 28 or 32 hours.

The Hearst-Zeppelin flight around the world was a great success, a rare achievement, because the Graf Zeppelin is a splendid ship and because it was handled and directed by the most experienced staff of airship men in the world. With more than 3,000 flights to the credit of Dr. Eckener, over 2,000 to Capt. Lehmann and more than 1,000 each to Capts. Fleming and Von Schiller, there is not another group of men in the world with that wealth of practical experience. I have urged upon Dr. Eckener to open a training school for future officers of airships.

CLASHES PERIL U.S. STUDENTS IN PALESTINE

SURGEON WOUNDED

Dr. Korkidi, physician, was shot and wounded by a sniper while operating upon a patient in the hospital Misgab L'Dach in Jerusalem.

Sheiks of the Dhur tribe and Arab leaders at Tulkeram, Jenin and Nablus were said here to have declared their independence from England and to have raised the Turkish flag.

Further evacuation of Jewish settlements was halted by Col. Cobbie, head of the British military, since he said he had sufficient troops to afford all protection.

A British colonial office communique said the total casualties to August 28, including those previously listed as killed or dead from wounds, were Moslems, 52; Christians, 4; Jews, 96; totals, 152. Wounded in hospitals, Moslems, 103; Christians, 9; Jews, 151; total, 263.

LOOTERS KILLED

LONDON, Aug. 30.—(INS.)—Twelve Arabs are reported to have been killed at Surbahor and Llfta, Palestine, by British troops who gave battle to recover loot seized by the Moslems, according to advices published by evening newspapers this afternoon.

Fighting is reported to have broken out at Acre, 95 miles northwest of Jerusalem. British troops have been rushed there to reinforce the guards already on the scene.

CLASH IN DAMASCUS

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Excitement over the Moslem-Jewish controversy in Palestine continued today in neighboring districts.

Demonstrators and police clashed in Damascus yesterday and a number of persons were injured, while further demonstrations took place last night in Beirut, Tripoli and Tyr. At Beirut shops are still closed and a manifesto was issued calling for another demonstration after prayers today.

Trade is dead in Palestine and Syria and prices are soaring. The Supreme Islamic Council of Syria has issued a manifesto urging that shops be opened and business resumed on a normal basis.

MEYER BLOCKS POST OFFICE

was thrown just about the time the postmaster general's department and the architects were preparing to give the final "Go" signal for proceeding with the specifications. Since then officials here have received no further word of progress, and they express the belief that nothing has been done.

When the building was planned it was designed to have airplane landing space on the roof. The runway is to be 150 by 260 feet. While this is regarded as being too small for present-day planes, it was declared by far-seeing members of the Chamber of Commerce special postoffice committee that the skyway would be valuable at the future time when mail planes with a helicopter arrangement are enabled to rise perpendicularly into the air.

"I'm thinking," said a member of the postoffice committee, "that we will have helicopter planes flitting about town a long time before our dreams of a postoffice are realized."

Political Posters Go Up Again on County Fence

The neatly-painted gray fence surrounding the construction job of the new county building today was emblazoned with signs urging citizens to vote for Canadidates James F. Malone and Charles H. Kline that covered up the familiar legend "Post No Bills." The fence is in a strategic bill posting position, Fourth avenue, Ross and Diamond streets.

Several weeks ago part of the fence was torn down and replaced when bills were posted.

Later the contractor decided to paint the fence in hope that the neat appearance it would then present would touch the civic pride of the bill posters and prevent further desecration.

JEWS PROTEST OUTRAGES

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—More than 23,000 persons filled Madison Square Garden last night for a public demonstration against the Arab outrages in Palestine and demanded immediate steps to restore law and order.

President Hoover, in a message read at the meeting, expressed the conviction that the riots would result in "greater security and greater safeguard for the future, under which the steady rehabilitation of Palestine as a true homeland will be even more assured."

STUPID, SAYS BORAH

Senator Borah, of Idaho, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate, declared that "this catastrophe was the result of carelessness or stupidity or both." He said that only time would reveal whose carelessness it was and added that the time had come to decide whether Palestine was to be "national home or an international shambles." The homeland undertaking he called one which had not been adequately measured and asserted that it would require the greatest statesmanship and skill.

Other speakers were Mayor James J. Walker, Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, David A. Brown, chairman of the Palestine Emergency Fund; Rabbi Samuel Schulman, of the Congregation Emanuel; Bernardta Rosenblatt, former Representative Nathan D. Perlman, Rabbi M. C. Margolis, Baruch Zchuerman and Bernard S. Deutsch.

DEMANDS ORDER

The meeting unanimously adopted a resolution demanding immediate steps to restore law and order in Palestine; investigation of causes leading to the Arab outbreaks; dismissal of lax and incompetent officials; inclusion of a large percentage of Jews on the police force of Palestine; compensation for victims or their families; opening of the doors of Palestine to increased immigration; settlement of the Wailing Wall problem, and a complete public restatement of the British government's policy in regard to the Balfour declaration and the Palestine mandate.

Rum Smuggling Cut Over 50 Per Cent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—The Treasury's campaign against rum running from Canada in the Detroit area is shown in Customs Bureau figures made public today to decrease the Canadian liquor exports from towns across the border by more than 50 per cent. The liquor imports from Canadian towns opposite Detroit for June and July totaled 171,719 cases, as compared with 439,101 in the same month of last year, or a drop from 1,096,752 to 429,296 gallons.

SHIPS CRASH, 74 FEARED DROWNED

One Vessel Sinks After Collision Off California; Fog Hinders Rescue Work and how many were members of the crew.

In addition to the Munami, the motor ship Frank Lynch was patrolling the vicinity of the wreck and two Coast Guard vessels were steaming full speed from San Francisco to join in the search for survivors.

CRASHED IN FOG

The crash occurred in a dense fog which early today had not lifted. This impeded the rescue search. By dawn hundreds of watchers lined the shore line near Davenport anxious to be of assistance.

Slight hope was held that survivors might be found floating on bits of wreckage.

Meagre wireless details of the crash said the San Juan went down so quickly that it was feared many were trapped in cabins.

The sinking vessel formed a whirlpool which probably sucked down many who were thrown into the sea or managed to make their way clear of the doomed vessel.

Radio reports said those picked up were injured and exhausted. They were unable to give much detail of the disaster, other than there was a rending crash as the vessels collided, tearing a yawning hole in the wooden hull of the San Juan. It began to go down immediately and a few minutes afterward had disappeared.

It was believed that the San Juan must have been rammed amidship and cut almost in two to have gone down so quickly.

Boats were launched quickly from the tanker Dodd, and groping about in the fog they picked up 27.

Summoned to the scene within a short time by the radio calls of the Dodd, both vessels continued their search as the Dodd limped to San Francisco with the survivors she had picked up.

Ambulances, nurses and physicians were assembled at the pier here to give immediate attention to the victims.

CHECKING SURVIVORS

Anxious relatives and friends of passengers and crew of the San Juan besieged the offices of the Los Angeles and San Francisco Navigation Company operating the steamer.

The passenger list of those aboard the steamer was incomplete. Many of the passengers had purchased tickets at the last minute and their names were aboard the vessel. Steamship officials were making every effort to check their available list but it lacked addresses of passengers in many cases.

Capt. A. F. Asplund, last seen going down with his ship, was relieving the regular skipper of the San Juan, who is on his vacation. His staff included First Officer Tulley, Second Officer Olson, Chief Engineer James Norton and Purser John Cleveland.

Built in 1882 in Chester, Pa., the San Juan was 283 feet in length, of 1,308 registered tons, with a capacity of 80 passengers.

CRASHES INTO ROOF

Several pieces of bone pressing against the brain were removed in the course of the operation. Lady Heath was still unconscious at an early hour this morning.

Lady Heath's critical injuries were sustained when the new Great Lakes biplane she was testing preparatory to its use in the national races, crashed through the roof of a loft building here.

While her mechanic, Erwin Kirk, of Cleveland, was able to jump from the plane just before it tore through the roof with its motor revolving at full speed and thus escape serious injuries, Lady Heath was strapped in and was rendered unconscious by the impact.

Capt. William Lancaster, of the British royal air force, who has known Lady Heath for many years, got into cable communication with her husband, Sir James Heath, at the Carlton Club in London last night. Lady Heath and her husband became estranged some time ago, when Sir James objected to his wife's long absence from home on aerial adventures.

NO RECONCILIATION

LONDON, Aug. 30.—(INS.)—The tragic accidentw hich has befallen Lady Mary Heath, Britain's premiere woman flier, in Cleveland, O., will have no effect in bringing about a reconciliation between herself and her multi-millionaire husband, Sir James Heath, prominent British industrialist.

Sir James and Lady Heath were estranged about a year ago. The industrialist objected to his wife's long absences from home while engaged in her numerous aerial activities, and furnished London society with a sensation by inserting paid advertisements in the newspapers stating he would no longer be responsible for any debts contracted by Lady Heath.

"I have read of the accident to my wife in the newspapers," Sir James said. "But I do not see any useful purpose in my going to America. Her ladyship has said that she intends to settle in the United States permanently, and I understand she has made application for citizenship.

THOUSANDS ACCLAIM ECKENER

Mighty Welcome Given Graf Pilot for World Flight; Los Angeles Joins Tribute to the United States as part payment of the German debt.

LADY HAY CHEERED

On one side of Dr. Eckener stood Lady Drummond Hay, the only woman passenger on the Graf on its wide-world jaunt. On the other side were Police Commissioner Whalen, who formerly held the position of "official greeter" for the city, and J. Henry Mears, famous aviator, who held the record for the speediest round-the-world journey by air before Dr. Eckener took it away from him.

Lady Hay, radiant and excited, wore a black satin gown, with a gold-embroidered collar of lace and a picture hat. She carried a huge bouquet of American Beauty roses clasped to her breast.

Mears introduced himself to Dr. Eckener on the deck of the Macom, saying:

"Commodore, I am the man from whom you took the record."

The grizzled old veteran of the clouds shook hands and smiled and he answered:

"I am sorry."

NEW ATTEMPT

"Oh, that is all right," was the cordial response. "Now, I must go out and win it back and bring it back to America."

Mears intimated he would try to make a round-the-world flight in about 15 or 16 days next year, and Dr. Eckener seemed much interested in this revelation.

There was a lineup of fire boats in the upper harbor whose sirens shrieked a welcome as the Macom crossed from Jersey. Other harbor craft joined the din and soon there was a chorus of sound ranging from the great booming sirens of the big liners to the toots of the tugboat whistles.

ECKENER THRILLED

Dr. Eckener stood at the rail alternately chatting with those around him or gazing at the fascinating pictures spread out before him in the haze. It was thrilling, he said, to watch the skyscraper sky line from the water side.

Nine officers and six men from the Graf's crew accompanied their commander and all stared with the same curiosity as their chief and they shared the commodore's feelings when he declared:

"Now I know why they call New York the greatest city in the world; it is!"

Battery Park was jammed with people, who set up a clamorous shout of welcome as the Macom appeared, and continued it while the boat docked and the notables were escorted through lanes in the crowd to waiting motor cars.

Hundreds of police were massed in and about Battery Park and other hundreds lined Broadway to City Hall and were thrown out in a wide flanking formation round City Hall Park to hold back the enthusiastic multitude.

CONTINUOUS CHEER

The cheer which started at Battery Park lasted continuously all the way up Broadway to City Hall and would have continued even longer if the procession had not stopped there for the Mayor's greeting.

As Dr. Eckener rode up Broadway he waved his hand to the crowd and smiled happily. He looked tired after his long trip with its terrific responsibilities and uncertainties. His face was lined and his eyes looked as though he could do with a dozen hours' sleep, but he was full of enthusiasm and obviously enjoyed the sincere plaudits of the crowd.

Judged by massed crowds, by noisy enthusiasm and by the genuine feeling of the multitude it was a welcome placed next to that of Col. Lindbergh.

"This is wonderful, wonderful," murmured the commodore as his motor car moved up Broadway between the mighty buildings with the sidewalks on both sides packed to suffocation with men, women and children. Thousands bore flags or waved hats and handkerchiefs as the procession moved slowly towards City Hall.

ROOFS CROWDED

At the old postoffice building, where the procession turned from Broadway into City Hall Park, hundreds of foot and mounted police held back the crowd, while the windows and roofs of the nearby buildings were crowded with spectators.

While the procession was moving uptown the Los Angeles soared slowly overhead playing its part in the welcome.

The plaza just in front of city hall was held open by police and a squad of soldiers was lined up before the steps, lending a military touch to the scene.

The procession reached city hall at 12:50 where Dr. Eckener was greeted by Mayor Walker and a committee of distinguished citizens.

All warmly congratulated Dr. Eckener upon his exploit in taking the Graf round the world and upon his faith in the dirigible as a transocean ship of commerce.

WALKER GREETING

Mayor Walker warmly clasped Dr. Eckener's hand. The mayor, who is a man of small stature, looked slight against the looming bulk of the German air sailor.

After his remarks of greeting and congratulation on behalf of himself, the city and the people, the mayor handed the commodore a beautiful illuminated scroll.

Dr. Eckener replied, thanking Mayor Walker and the city and expressing his appreciation of aid he had received in New York and America generally. Both speeches were broadcast.

A military band in front of the city hall played the Star Spangled Banner at the conclusion of the ceremonies and the notables left for the Hotel Astor, where Mr. Eckener was the guest of honor at a luncheon given in behalf of the city by a committee of distinguished citizens.

United States and German flags flew over City Hall.

In his speech Mayor Walker said in part:

'No one has ever come into this City Hall or into the hearts of New York who has won a closer or surer place than you. We want you to know how happy you have made us by coming. Of course, you took an unusual way of coming here and got more mileage on your way here than any one before you.

"As the first to circumnavigate the world by air you have written a golden page in history. We salute you and we honor you as one of the greatest men living throughout the entire civilized world."

ECKENER GETS SCROLL

During the speech Dr. Eckener kept his eyes upon the ground and semed embarrassed by the laudatory words.

In addition to presenting the scroll the Mayor gave official gold medals of the City of New York to Dr. Eckener; to Capt. Ernest Lehmann, who will pilot the Graf back to Friedrichshafen, and to the other members of the crew and the passengers.

In his response Dr. Eckener said in part:

"The marvelous and sincere reception combined with the friendly words here have touched us all very deeply—more deeply perhaps because we really see a more friendly attitude toward the German people.

"The American people have always shown great enthusiasm over any progress in a scientific way because they see in it a contribution towards human progress. I know that this attitude is that of the German people."

VARIED EVENTS AT AIR SHOW

CLEVELAND, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—An "efficiency" derby to Buffalo, N. Y., and return, two long-distance derbies, closed course races for men and women and a solo endurance flight held the attention of spectators at the national air races today.

The flight to Buffalo and back was planned to test the efficiency of various types of planes in speed, fuel consumption, handling and relative adaptability to flying conditions met in the race. A number of manufacturers had entered their planes. The schedule of the race was for departure at 1:05 p. m. and return at 5:20 p. m. The second derby drawing the notice of race followers was the non-stop dash from Los Angeles, Cal., to Cleveland.

As the races draw near a close, but one pilot had flown the distance, and nearly a dozen entrants remained. The pilots may fly when they wish, provided they land at the Cleveland airport during the afternoon. Lee Shoenhair, Los Angeles, made the flight Monday in 13 hours 51 minutes and 10.8 seconds, setting a record.

Thomas G. Reid, of Downey, Cal., took the air at 11 o'clock yesterday in an attempt to break the record for solo, non-refueled endurance flight of 35 hours 25 minutes, held by Lieut. Herbert Fahy.

Mrs. Mae Haizlip, of Tulsa, Okla., cross-country derbyist, announced she would attempt to establish a new endurance mark for women today or tomorrow, and Ralph Thomas, Cleveland, takes off tomorrow seeking a new solo endurance record for men.

Hoover Congratulates Eckener and Hearst On Zeppelin's Flight

LAKEHURST, Aug. 30.—Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aviation McCracken flew here to deliver a message from President Hoover congratulating Dr. Eckener and William Randolph Hearst on completion of the Hearst-Zeppelin World Flight. The message read:

"On my own behalf as well as my fellow-countrymen it gives me great satisfaction to welcome you and the members of your party upon the completion of your memorable flight around the world. It has been a great adventure, which again stirs the spirit and interest of all men and women.

"It marks another step in the progress of aviation. The German people are to be congratulated upon this evidence of their great contributions to the art, and you are to be congratulated upon your courage and skill.

"Mr. Hearst, who I understand has importantly aided the trip financially, is also to be congratulated upon its outcome."

Youths Escape Death When 2 Trains Hit Auto

NEW KENSINGTON, Aug. 30.—Escaping death today when a freight train struck their automobile, two Parnassus youths barely escaped being hit by a second train which ploughed into the wreckage of their machine and scattered it for half a mile.

The youths were Donald Stanley, 17, and Frank Adamosky. Stanley is in the Citizens General Hospital here in a critical condition, suffering from a probable skull fracture. Adamosky received a deep laceration of the face and other bruises. He was taken home after receiving treatment at the hospital.

The accident occurred at the East Oakmont grade crossing of the Bessemer and Lake Erie Railroad. The automobile, driven by Stanley, was first struck by a southbound freight train. It was hurled to the northbound track, knocking both youths unconscious.

Adamosky regained consciousness first and dragged Stanley, who was pinned in the wreckage, from the car.

As the youths left the tracks, a fast northbound freight train sideswiped the wreckage and carried it one-half mile from the scene of the first crash.

YOUTH, WOMAN SLAIN IN PARK

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 30.—(INS.)—A double murder near Cliff drive in Kansas City was revealed today when the bodies of a man and a woman were found in the woods adjoining the drive.

The man had been shot in the head. The woman had been hammered to death. The bodies were about a block apart.

The man was identified as Paul O'Dell, 19, employe of the Kansas City Southern Railroad; the woman as Ruth Laughlin, 24. Her head and face were badly beaten.

Police were working on two theories, one that the murders resulted when O'Dell attempted to protect his companion from attack. The other theory, a love triangle, arose when finely torn bits of a letter, apparently written by a woman, were found near the bodies. The scraps contained such phrases as "keep away from danger," "going the limit," "paying the price" and "I love you." The envelope found bore an Oklahoma postmark and had been mailed August 28.

BOOK COMEDIES FOR PARKS

Comedy programs are billed for next Sunday night's free motion picture shows in city parks, according to announcement at the office of Mayor Charles H. Kline.

"The Cohens and Kellys in Atlantic City" will be the attraction at Highland Park; "Speedy," at Schenley Park; "Bringing Up Father," at West Park, North Side, and "His First Flame," at McKinley Park, South Hills.

City employes and policemen have profited by the experience of previous Sunday night movie shows and have perfected a system for handling the crowds, it was said.

KENNA REMAINS ON BALLOT

Judge A. B. Reid, of Common Pleas Court, ruled today that nominating petitions filed August 13 complied with the legal requirement that such petitions be filed five weeks before the primary election.

At the same time he dismissed the suit of Lawrence J. Costello, candidate for alderman of the Eighth ward, who had applied for an injunction restraining the County Commissioners from printing the name of John F. Kenna, a rival candidate, on the primary ballot.

Kenna filed his nominating petition August 13. Costello contended that as the election is to be held September 17, the last day for filing was August 12. But Judge Reid stated that the Supreme Court had held that the election day could be included in counting the five weeks, which made August 13 the last day.

Judge Reid sustained Kenna's objection that Costello's suit, having been filed August 24, did not comply with the legal requirement that proceedings to have candidates' names barred from the ballot must be instituted not later than five days after the last day for filing nominating petitions.

Judge Reid gave as an additional reason for throwing Costello's suit out, that inasmuch as no property rights were involved he questioned whether he had jurisdiction to grant the injunction.

Before Judge Reid finally passed on the matter, Oscar Taylor, counsel for Costello, said he was prepared to show by gas, electric light and telephone bills, and by a birth certificate of Kenna's baby daughter, that he gave his residence as 4519 Liberty avenue, which is in the Ninth Ward, across the street from the Eighth Ward.

Kenna said he was only temporarily living there; that he maintained a legal residence at the home of his father, 4608 Liberty avenue.

ARMSTRONG, LESLIE SEE MELLON

Republican Leader Returns To Find Mayoralty Race Jammed With Bitterness

Former Republican State Chairman W. L. Mellon returned home today to find the three-cornered mayoralty contest featured by increasing bitterness.

Although he discussed the situation with Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong and Senator M. G. Leslie, there was nothing to indicate he has any intention of departing from his announced policy of neutrality.

There were persistent rumors today that Commissioner Armstrong is ready to announce his stand in this fight. To date he has refused to discuss the situation, in public at least.

AWAIT INDORSEMENTS

A declaration from Armstrong, the selection of a sheriff by the Mackrell-Leslie-Malone group and the indorsement of a jury commissioner candidate by the Kline forces are the three most important developments awaited by the city's politicians.

Controller Henry Oliver Evans, speaking at the noon meeting today in the Malone headquarters, William Penn Hotel, declared that he is opposed by the Kline administration because he "fired one of its pet ward chairmen for loafing."

MARTIN ASSAILS AGAIN

Charles F. Hughes addressed the Martin noon meeting while John S. Herron was the speaker at the Kline headquarters.

The statement of Councilman Malone that his home ward, the Fifth, is clean, was challenged by Judge Richard W. Martin at a mass meeting in North Side Carnegie Hall last night.

At the same time Assistant United States District Attorney Ralph H. Smith, speaking in the Malone headquarters, voicing the suspicion that "the same elements control the Martin campaign as have dominated and ruined the present administration."

Mayor Charles H. Kline, meanwhile, declared in an address in North Homestead, a part of the Fourteenth Ward, that he is seeking re-election upon his whole record and said that he was just as glad to have the support of the hard-working, decent men and women who make up the city payroll as of any other good citizens.

OLIVER ON PLATFORM

Adherents of Judge Martin claimed that his meeting was the largest ever held in Pittsburgh by a candidate who did not control a city or county payroll.

A. K. Oliver created considerable talk by appearing on the platform at the gathering.

Smith took off his gloves to attack Judge Martin in his address, delivered to Malone workers of the Twenty-sixth Ward at a meeting in the William Penn Hotel.

"The Judge has a long record of organization politics behind him," said Smith, declaring that Martin had been assistant district attorney by the influence of two-organization incumbents, that he was city solicitor for Mayor William a Magee, that he was a Flinn-Oliver-Magee candidate for district attorney, that he was a Pinchot appointee to the Public Service Commission, that the Pinchot faction here had him appointed to the Common Pleas bench.

SMITH AGGRESSIVE

Judge Martin does not run as an independent until he has failed in every possible effort to get the organization indorsement, Smith declared, adding "he was actively engaged in daily consultation with such well-known factionalists as Charles Flinn, William A. Magee, Joseph Reich and John R. Frankel."

Smith charged Judge Martin with defeating an effort to expose racketeering during the administration of Mayor Magee

Judge Martin speaking on the North Side also removed his gloves.

The answers of Kline and Malone to his challenge to debate the subject of the political protection of crime "are evasive and unsatisfactory," he declared.

Both of his opponents, he said, must share responsibility for that evil.

Zeppelin Travel Safest, Says Wilkins

By SIR HUBERT WILKINS,

Famous explorer, who crossed the Atlantic aboard the Graf Zeppelin from Friedrichshafen, and is writing the story of the Hearst-Zeppelin Round-the-World Flight.

LAKEHURST, N. J., Aug. 30.—A comprehensive history of all the Zeppelins that have taken the air would include hope, faith and charity, comedy, drama and tragedy—in fact, all thrills and emotions known to the human race and mind.

Think of the days, a few years back, when our fathers might have said facetiously, "You can no more do that than fly!" and now, when the one hundred seventy-seventh Zeppelin built since 1900 takes four bites at a 22,000-mile trip around the world, takes 12 days to polish it off, resting only at intervals amounting to nine days—in short, a globe-circling trip in 21 days, counting all stops,—what is the world going to do and say about it?

Sir Hubert Wilkins.

Naturally, the world will ask, Has this hop, step and a couple of jumps given us any information that will help to improve lighter-than-air craft or aid in the establishment of airship passenger and commercial routes?

Learn Nothing New.

"We have learned nothing new," said Dr. Eckener and his officers when asked if this trip had given them any new valuable information. They are certain that the Zeppelin could, barring accidents, go on doing this sort of thing every day and every week.

But the whole crew, including the commander, realize that from many points of view they have profited greatly by this venture and by the adventures we have had. We have actually been over the conditions in Northern Siberia and learned about the behavior and conditions of cloud masses at the north of the Pacific Ocean.

It is impossible for me to tell except by hearsay how long distance lighter-than-air travel appeals to the non-flying man, but from my point of view it is the most pleasant, comfortable, convenient, safe and reliable method of covering distance.

We planned to set out from America look over the Atlantic, Ireland, England, France, Switzerland, Germany, Austria, Poland, Lithuania, Latvia, Russia, Arctic Siberia, Japan, the Pacific, Alaska, Mexico and 13 states of America and to do that as quickly as possible.

The limelight on this trip was rather embarrassing. Kleig lights and movietones and that sort of thing, but these are the annoyances that pioneers must always endure.

N. Y. Unrivaled.

Before swinging out over the ocean we turned to circle the most wonderful city in the world. The electric-light-jewelled windows of New York's skyscrapers, the flash of the Great White Way were sights that are hard to rival and that impressive scene was the standard by which we judged the world, although, of course, there could be no real comparison. Everything has a value all of its own and no two scenes are alike.

The much-traveled and steamer-churned Atlantic slipped beneath our silver chariot for 42 hours. We had thought to see Erin's Isle, but the wind, jealous of our time, carried us too far south and the first sight of land was the Scilly Islands, not far from the English coast.

Easily over the roughest sea we slid and stole over France. The slender, graceful, Eiffel tower thrust up a beckoning finger and bid us welcome, but we have not time to stay.

We followed the silver thread of the Seine, caught a glimpse of the Notre Dame, recalled the charm of the Boise De Bougce, winged our way over the Champs Elysee, Rue Rivoli and Rue de la Paix and on to the beautiful mountains of Switzerland.

In six hours less than three days we had spanned the great Atlantic, covered a vast stretch of land and then like a homing bird the Zeppelin circled the town of it's birth Friedrichshafen, and settled down to its nest.

Fastest Crossing.

The first record of the Hearst-Zeppelin Round-the-World Flight had been made, the fasest crossing of the Atlantic by airship.

At dawn on Tuesday, August 15th, we again took our places at the windows and watched the great big silver cocoon slip from it's resting place.

The shortest distance between the kickoff and the goal was 6,500 miles there was food for the people on board sufficient to last six days, together with some emergency ration. ten tons of water ballast, arms and ammunition, warm clothing, etc., in case of accident.

The big ship rose above the dry ground haze and clouds and skimmed over forest, and cultivation on one of the early cultivated parts of the globe.

We covered Germany's capital and brought people thronging into Unter Den Linden, about their late Kaiser's palace and other public parks to see the sparkling silver monster.

Over Germany's rich fields we flew and on to the lean waste land of Northern Poland.

We skirted Lithuania and Lettland, countries cold, wet and flat, with sour soil for a heritage.

A gorgeous sunset ushered us into Russia.

Then came Tokio, the calm voyage across the Pacific, and the last leg to Lakehurst.

BRITAIN SCORED BY REDS HERE

Race riots between Jewish and Arabian residents of Palestine are provoked by British imperialistic policies, according to members of the Young Communists' League, who have planned an open-air protest meeting at Center avenue and Miller streets at 7:30 tonight.

Daniel Herman, district organizer of the league, said that application for a permit for the meeting had been made to the police, but announced that the meeting would go on even if a permit were refused. He said the league would have both Arabian and Jewish speakers and that the protest would be aimed at Britain's policy of stirring up hatred between the native races in Palestine.

FASTERS GO ON DESPITE DEATH

LYONS, Col., Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Despite the death of one cult member from starvation, the group of Chicagoans who came to Colorado this summer seeking "youth, truth and health" will return to Peaceful Valley next year to fast and expose themselves to the sun, Dr. George Huntley Aron, cult leader, said.

"We expect to have 100 in camp next year," he added.

It was announced that cult members still remaining in Peaceful Valley would leave for Chicago soon.

Chris Solburg, 40, Chicago art model, died at the camp after a 31-day fast. His death was listed by the county coroner as resulting from starvation, but Dr. Aron disputed this. Aron expressed the opinion that long periods of lying unclothed in the sun proved too much for Solburg and that the fasting had not caused death.

The Rev. Herman Arndt, Ohio preacher, is assisting Aron in laying plans for next year's pilgrimage.

BOOZE SUSPECT FOILS CAPTORS

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Aug. 30.—Glenn Allum, held since July 31, when former Constable John Donohoe was slain, was formally arrested yesterday under two liquor charges. Allum had been detained at the New Salem state police barracks until his attorney, Wade K. Newell, served notice that unless he was formally arrested, habeas corpus proceedings would be instituted.

Allum was taken from New Salem to a police station in the Brownsville section. Left alone, he made his escape from a second story window, telephoned his attorney of his whereabouts, and then returned to the lockup without his disappearance being known to his captors.

Arraigned before Alderman Matt Allen, of Uniontown, Allum was committed to jail in default of $20,000 bond. He is implicated in the liquor case charged against Max Hannan, Uniontown politician.

Mrs. Helen Hess, also questioned in the Donohoe killing, was held under $5,000 bond on liquor charges.

Homewood Lumber Watchman Beaten

Attacked by two men in the plant of the Homewood Lumber Company, 511 Homewood avenue, early today, Louis H. Malloy, 50, night watchman, is in a serious condition in Pittsburgh Hospital. Detectives today searched for his assailants, whom Malloy is said to have reported were former employes.

Fifteen stitches were necessary to close wounds in Malloy's head.

Druggist Charged With $300 Theft

James J. Kelton, 45, of Brentwood, formerly manager of the Dow Drug Company store at Carson and South Thirteenth streets, was held for court on charges of larceny and embezzlement in Central Police Station today. F. W. McCulloch, official of the drug company, said Kelton had admitted taking $300 cash and merchandise valued at $18 from the store.

Lady Hay 'Home' in Zeppelin

By LADY DRUMMOND HAY,
Only Woman Passenger on Hearst-Zeppelin-Round-the-World Flight.

ON BOARD GRAF ZEPPELIN, ARRIVING AT LAKEHURST, N. J., Aug. 29.—Here we are home again. It's funny how we have all been thinking of Lakehurst as "home" during the flight. Even the Zeppelin has been nosing across the American continent with renewed dash and alacrity in spite of opposing head-winds, just as if she was happy and eager to return with fresh laurels to the scene of her first world-shaking triumph last October after the pioneer east-to-west trans-Atlantic flight from continent to continent.

Hospitable America is a real "homeland" to everyone who has tasted of her loving-cup of cheer and welcome. I suppose it is quite natural considering that America has played the "mother" to millions of foreign born adopted children for generations and generations. Practically every one of the representatives of nine different European nations aboard has family connections in the United States. The Japanese, no doubt, found theirs in Los Angeles and San Francisco where they left the Zeppelin and from where they will go back to Japan.

Lady Hay

America is certainly going to be a very special kind of home for me this time. Not only does it spell the happiness of being amongst my American friends again—and I count as friends not only those I know personally, but all the kind people who smile and wave at our silver airship as she passes over country and cities, but also the joy of reunion with my mother and father who have rushed from London on the Mauretania to greet me on my return from the round-the-world flight.

I have been trying to tell you all that happened all the way along, and meant to write such a lot about Los Angeles from Los Angeles, but there was no time to do anything, it seemed, once we came to earth.

I was asked at once what most impressed me during the whole three weeks lapse of the world flight and I had no hesitation in answering. "San Francisco at sunset and Los Angeles by night."

I was tremendously struck by the wonderful way in which the field had been kept clear for us at Los Angeles and know enough now about landing exigencies to appreciate what it meant; the efficiency, forethought and days of hard work that the whole affair must have cost the organizers and executives. I did think it funny, though, that the customs officer was commanded to examine so minutely the baggage which was only being taken to the hotel for a few hours.

Baggage Examined

He even made me open my old portable typewriter and peered inside. He asked when I bought my film camera with the name of the well known American maker stuck right on it. He had to poke over my valise containing afternoon and evening dress to wear in Los Angeles and had such grave suspicions of my astringent lotion for the face that he opened the bottle and sniffed hard. I was so happy to be in America again that I only saw the comic side of it all, and thought of our October reception by the Philadelphia customs men at Lakehurst after the trans-Atlantic flight.

Everything that happened on that sunny California day was just splendid.

Alexander P. Moore, whom I met first years ago when he was still posted in Madrid as American ambassador, invited us all to lunch on the terrace. Directly after that I called on Miss Marion Davies, at Santa Monica, and had a long chat. Mary Pickford came in later wearing that beautiful "Madonna" blue which I love so much, but cannot wear myself.

The great event of the day, of course, was Mr. Hearst's banquet in honor of the Zep travelers. It was wonderful. I have been to many, many great functions, but this one stands out for elegance, lavishness and brilliant company.

Sunshine, Smiles

I saw so many smiles in Los Angeles, so much sunshine and received so many flowers that all I could think of to say over the microphones thrust up at me on the field and elsewhere was some remark about "California being the land of smiles, sunshine and flowers."

Once on the airship field of Los Angeles we still had quite a job to "catch" it, as you will have heard, but what few people probably know is that Karl Von Wiegand and myself came near being left behind. In all the running about and scramble we got separated from the rest of the passengers, mostly because I had gone across the field to speak through a microphone, I imagine.

At last the Zep was standing still ready to be released and we were still far away. Starting to run for it, a young soldier barred the way. We could not think that he meant to stop us and so moved forward, and were held back.

Even then we, and the gentleman of the reception committee with us, did not take the young soldier seriously. But he took himself ludicrously seriously and would not let us pass.

"I have heard enough about passengers," he said. "Everyone says they are passengers," and saying that when he received orders to allow the "crowd" to advance—which, of course, would have been when the Zep was in the air—he would let us go, he just stuck firm.

Karl Von Wiegand said: "I will show you my passport—you can see who I am."

Stubborn Soldier

I had my passport along, too, in my bag, and offered to show mine. Karl said: "I will show you my ticket for the Zeppelin journey." The reception committee gentleman produced his letter of identification.

Would this boy let us through? No. He would not look at our passports, he would not listen to us, he would not listen to the people in the crowd, who very kindly cried out, "We know it is Lady Drummond Hay—let her through." No, nothing doing at all and really we began to get anxious, for Eckener might easily imagine that everyone was on board and start off.

"All passengers are on board by now," maintained this redoubtable youth, and there was nothing to do—short of laying him out, but to rush the line of soldiers, which we did, thanks to many gentlemen in the crowd. There was little or no opposition from the other guards—they knew who we were, but evidently this boy had some authority or something. I asked him chaffingly for his name, and told him I would make him famous in the press, but he would not divulge it.

Once aboard, our take-off—in which we nearly took off a bunch of high tension wires, has been told. We would not be here if that had happened. The Zep would have

How to keep COOL

Hot weather calls for light, crisp foods. Eat delicious Kellogg's Corn Flakes at least once a day in summer. A bowlful, with cool milk or cream, supplies nourishment without "heating" the body. Kellogg's are one of the most healthful treats your grocer has. So crisp and easy to digest they really help you feel cool.

Kellogg's Corn Flakes are wonderfully inviting three meals a day. Ideal for the children's supper. Add fresh or canned fruits or honey.

Always insist on Kellogg's, the original Corn Flakes. 12,000,000 people daily prefer them. Always extra crisp.

Look for the red-and-green package. At grocers. Served by hotels, restaurants, on dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Oven-fresh in the patented waxtite wrapper.

This New Way of Fadeless Washing

This Priceless Gold Encrusted Dinner Service Washed 347 Times Without Slightest Wear!

This Exquisite French Hosiery Washed 45 Times Without Injury!

A New Discovery That Ends Ruining Fine Things Regardless How Often Washed—And Cuts Washing Time of Clothes and Dishes ONE-HALF or More

A DISCOVERY has been made that can save the average family many dollars . . . an utterly new way of saving fabrics from wash tub fade and wear, and fine china from dishpan fade.

Yet—a way that cuts the actual labor of that work in half. You wash exquisite things times without number—without slightest sign of soap-fade or wear. You use any kind of ordinary soap, in gentleness and safety.

It marks a new era in housework. Women are flocking to its use. Believe or not what is claimed for it—but try it. Find out what it does—you'll never be without it.

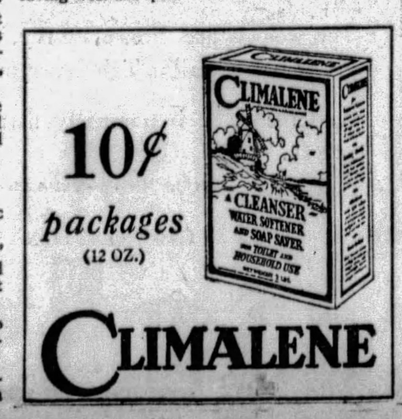
What It Is

It is a preparation called Climalene. A scientific discovery that acts in two ways:

That takes the harshness out of the worst "hard" water; the hardness that makes extra rubbing and the superfluous use of strong soap necessary to get things white and clean.

That turns that harsh "hard" water INSTANTLY into water so soft that it does the work with ONE-FOURTH the amount of soap you now use.

Then, that due to bland cleansing qualities in itself, DISSOLVES all dirt and grime. And thus again cuts the amount of soap you use. And cuts washing time—in either dishpan or washing machine—50 per cent or more. Consider what that means in saving wear and spoil.



You just add two tablespoons to a tub of water. That is all. Use any kind of soap you are accustomed to. Then see for yourself the amazing results.

Laboratory Proved

To prove those points, we wash fine things all day long. French lingerie, for instance, we wash 40, 50 times with this preparation and ordinary soap or washing flakes. Even the most delicate colors do not fade.

We wash fine colored table linens up to 80 times—WITHOUT fade. We take gold encrusted china of almost priceless value and wash with Climalene hundreds of times. And never a sign of gold worn away.

We pay $5 for fine stockings of light tint color. Then TRY to fade them with repeated washings. And only when we fail in fading them, does this amazing preparation go to you.

AND—it acts actually as a BEAUTIFIER to the hands. Never before have you seen a cleanser so gentle.

Remember the name—Climalene. Your grocer has it in 10c and 25c packages.

THE CLIMALENE CO., CANTON, OHIO

TRY your hand at this fascinating game of Anagrambles—the game that is taking the town like the crossword puzzle craze took the whole nation for a ride through the dictionary.

The game is quite simple. Merely change the following words by the addition of the single letter indicated. Do not omit any letter of the original word. The letter may be inserted at the beginning of the word, anywhere within the word, or at the end. Thus, the word "pate," by the addition of the letter "l" becomes either "pleat" or "plate." The word "drag" may be changed to either "grade" or "raged" by the addition of the letter "e."

The original word must be changed in meaning by the commentary letter. To change "mine" by adding "d," to form "mined," would be incorrect. Rearrange the letters of your word to change its meaning, not its tense or number. Take a pencil now and write in your newly formed word in the spaces provided.

THE Goddess who fell flat

The Detroit papers called her one of Michigan's prettiest girls. At college they nicknamed her "The Goddess." Everybody predicted great things for her. Popularity. A career. Successful marriage. But she didn't live up to a single prediction. As the saying is, she "fell flat."

Of course she did! So would any girl with the same trouble she had.

The only one who doesn't realize that he or she has halitosis (unpleasant breath) is the victim. Social ostracism follows. Don't fool yourself that you are always free of this trouble. That is folly. Surveys show 1 person out of 3 is a victim—due to the fact that the mouth is the constant scene of germ activities, many of which result in bad breath.

Don't take a chance

Keep yourself ever free of halitosis by the systematic and frequent use of full strength Listerine as a mouth wash. Though safe and pleasant, Listerine is an active germicide* which immediately attacks the cause of odors. Then being a powerful deodorant, it destroys the odors themselves.

Keep Listerine handy and use it before any engagement, that you may appear at your best. Our free Book of Etiquette may interest you. Address Dept. H. 14, Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

EVERY WOMAN MAY PROFIT

Sallow Skin and Dark Rings Are Nature's Warnings.

Sallow skins and dark rings under the eyes are Nature's warnings to women that they will lose their attractiveness unless they change conditions quickly. In nearly every case these are the result of poor bowel and kidney action. In turn, these are poor because they are usually handicapped by catarrhal conditions. Continuous tenderness or inflammation of the membrane in the nose or throat is only Nature's alarm signal. If that were all there is to catarrh, it might be disregarded. Frequently, however, this is only the symptom of a more serious condition in the delicate membranes that line the stomach and bowels as well as the lungs and nose. When the membrane in the nose or throat is secreting too much, usually the same process is going on all over the body.

Often this is shown by stomach trouble. Many a "weak stomach" is only a serious symptom of systemic catarrh, which disturbs the proper working of the kidneys, stomach and bowels, leading to great discomfort, general debility and more serious disorders. One treatment for this general condition is so remarkably successful as to have won a widespread reputation, a treatment that assists in purifying the blood and helps enrich it, that throws off the wastes through the natural channels instead of through the mucous membranes, and that both soothes and invigorates the organs of the body. It is the result of wide and painstaking research to find the correct medicine.

This treatment is known as World's Tonic. It has met with unusual success, and its popularity in this community is the best evidence of its great value to suffering humanity. You who are the victims of indigestion, derangement of the functions of the bowels and kidneys, constipation and general weakness, will find it worthy of your most careful consideration. World's Tonic can be had at Dow's (formerly McCulloch's), also May's, Mayflower, or at any other first class drug store. (A-1)

ILLNESS DATED FROM WORLD WAR; KONJOLA SCORES

Pittsburgh Veteran, Happy in Newly Found Health, Praises New and Different Medicine.

"Konjola has put an end to stomach and kidney trouble, which began while abroad in the army during the World War."

MR. J. C. WILLIAMS

In these words, Mr. J. C. Williams, of Argone Hotel, Pittsburgh, tells of his remarkable but not unusual experience with Konjola, the new and different medicine that has set the whole nation talking. You can get full information about this modern medicine from the two Konjola Men in this city. One is at the Dow Drug Store (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, and the other at the Dow Drug Store, Diamond and Smithfield Streets, Pittsburgh. Learn all about this super-compound which contains the juices of 22 roots and herbs, scientifically blended with ten other medicinal ingredients, which has given such wonderful results in troubles of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels; rheumatism, neuritis, and nervousness. Read the complete statement made by Mr. Williams; note his enthusiasm over this master medicine, and, if you suffer as he did, profit by his experience:

"I'll tell the world Konjola is a medicine that works. I know, for it put an end to my stomach and kidney trouble, which began while I was abroad with the army during the World War.

"For ten years I had not known what it was to be in real good health until I tried Konjola. My stomach caused me a great deal of suffering. My meals would be followed by bloating and gas would form in my stomach, making me short of breath and miserable. At times my food would seem to form a heavy lump in my stomach. I had to be very careful what I ate, and, as my appetite had gone bad, I never felt like eating much of anything. My kidneys were in bad order, also. They would get me up several times during the night and I had pains in my back over my kidneys. These troubles caused me to lose strength and energy, and I was getting discouraged.

"I was advised by friends to try this new Konjola, and I surely received wonderful results. These troubles that had bothered me for ten years were all gone after the third bottle of this medicine. Gas on my stomach does not bother me any longer. I have a great appetite and never suffer from indigestion. I hardly ever have to rise in the night and the pains in my back are gone. I feel like a different man, and I tell all my friends that if they ever are bothered with stomach or kidney trouble they can't go wrong by taking Konjola."

Strange as it may appear, Konjola seems to be at the peak of its power when pitted against the most stubborn and obstinate cases—troubles that have held on for years defying everything that was done to relieve them.

There is a Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, and one at the Dow Drug Store, Diamond and Smithfield Streets, Pittsburgh. There also is a Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store, 5939 Penn Avenue, East Liberty. All are introducing and explaining the merits of this new and different medicine.

Old Favorites Vie on Radio With Classical Bills

OLD favorites and songs of current popularity will share interest in the radio broadcasts for tonight with compositions of old masters.

In one of the early programs to go on the air through KDKA at 6:30 o'clock, Al Bernard and Billy Beard, the Raybestos Twins, will be heard singing the humorous piece, "My Dear Old Mother-in-Law." They also will sing "Whoopee Hat Brigade," and Lannie Ross, tenor soloist, will contribute "Yours Sincerely."

Three old favorites: "In the Good Old Summertime," "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree" and "Sweet Rosie O'Grady," will be revived by the Gillette Blades during their entertainment to come through KDKA at 8:30 o'clock. In contrast "Ain't Misbehaven" and "That Rhythm Man" all show the change that has taken place in music during the last 25 years.

CLASSICAL PROGRAM

"In a Russian Village," Cities Service and the Armour programs are just three of the night's radiocasts that will have much to interest those who prefer the classical and semi-classical in music.

Sascha Fidelman, violinist, will play Drdla's reminiscent "Souvenir" during the Cities Service concert over WCAE at 8 o'clock. The concert orchestra will present Rubinstein's "Ballet Suite," from the opera "Feramors," and the Cavaliers, a male quartet, will sing a special arrangement of the Negro spiritual "Steal Away."

"In a Russian Village," the WJAS feature for 10:30 o'clock, will bring to the audience several songs of the Cossacks. During the same hour compositions both of the masters and the contemporary composers, will be sung and played by a mixed chorus of 18 voices, a vocal trio and a 30-piece concert orchestra augmented by a pipe organ. Fred Waldner, tenor, will be the featured artist.

We Now Present

Charles Correll and Freeman F. Gosden, who write and portray Amos 'n' Andy in their nightly radio episodes over a wide network of the NBC stations, including KDKA, studied Harlem with a critical eye before they approached the microphone in their newes and colored comic strip of the air.

When they decided to carry the locale of the episodes to New York they both went from Chicago their home location, to New York and took up residence in Harlem.

Just as there is a difference between the life and the habits of the people of Chicago and New York, so there is a difference between the life and habits of the Negro of Chicago's South Side and New York's Harlem, Correll and Gosden found. From their years of showmanship and experience, they knew that these differences would be quickly caught by radio listeners, especially if there were flaws in their conversation or settings.

The two actors and authors were not content with anything that merely smacked of a sight-seeing trip through New York's great Negro district, but decided they would learn to portray the natives of Harlem by living among them. They not only learned how the Harlem colored folk live, but had a number of novel experiences, learned new phrases, new meanings and saw a new side of life.

These colorful findings are being portrayed in their nightly comic strip broadcast at 11:00 to 11:15 p. m.

KDKA—Philco Theater Memories.
"The Geisha."
An Oriental musical play in two acts by Sidney Jones, with libretto by Owen Hall and lyrics by Henry Greenback, featuring Jessica Dragonette, soprano, and Colin O'More, tenor, in the leading roles.
The scenes of the play are laid in an imaginary Oriental kingdom, and the time is the present.
Wun-hi is the proprietor of the Tea House of Ten Thousand Joys, under a license granted to him by the Marquis Imari, Governor of the province and Chief of Police. In Mimosa San, Wun-hi has a most valued possession, whose charms as a singer and dancer have brought him abundant wealth. Some day she will marry, being betrothed to Capt. Katana of the Japanese army. In the meantime, the Marquis Imara has set his heart on marrying Mimosa, and to further this purpose he warns Wun-hi, under threat of ruin, to keep her hidden from the sight of the foreigners. However, Lieut. Fairfax of the British battleship Turtle, stationed in Japan, and engaged to Miss Molly Seamore, is involved in an interesting flirtation with Mimosa and this is carried on in defiance of the Marquis and his orders.
Lady Constance, on her way around the world in her yacht, arrives with a party of friends, among whom is Molly Seamore. Lady Constance learns of Fairfax's flirtation. She upbraids Fairfax for his disregard of his engagement to Molly Seamore. Imari, when he sees Fairfax and Mimosa together, becomes furious at Wun-hi, revokes his license, and puts the Geisha girls up for auction, intending to secure Mimosa for himself.
But Molly, unknown to her friends, and in a spirit of mischief, has permitted Mimosa to make her up as a Geisha girl, and is sold to Imari, who has been outbidden for Mimosa by Lady Constance.
When the time for the marriage ceremony arrives, Molly, although a prisoner in the Marquis palace, refuses to marry. Wun-hi disguises Mimosa as a fortune-teller and tricks the Marquis into marrying Juliette. Molly goes happily o Fairfax, and Mimosa, appropriately enough, returns to her Japanese Captain Katana, as the opera ends happily.

EVANS FOR CONTROLLER

This is the first of a series of articles, written by Henry O. Evans, now City Controller and candidate for election as City Controller at the September primaries. In these articles, Mr. Evans will tell how he was elected Controller, describe the duties, problems and needs of his office and detail exactly why he is being opposed for election, and by whom he is being opposed.

We are advertising this series of articles because we believe in Mr. Evans; approve the good work he has already done; know the further constructive improvements he has planned for the future, and, therefore urge his retention in this important office.

On January 7, 1929, I was unanimously elected by Council as City Controller. In other words, my opponent voted for me as Controller then. Why does he oppose me now? I have obtained good results in the office. Why is the Mayor opposing me? This and the succeeding numbers of this series will show, plainly, the reasons.

The City Controller handles the disbursement of about $32,000,000 a year. He is, ex officio, School Controller handling about $13,000,000 a year, a total of $45,000,000 a year. The largest item in this immense sum is the payroll for employees, about $21,000,000 a year. The Controller audits this large payroll. "Auditing" in the past, has, for the most part, meant only making sure that the additions, substractions and multiplications were correct. Is that all the people expect of the Controller?

I do not believe it is. I have acted upon the belief that my oath requires me to ascertain so far as I can, whether the employee actually works and whether his pay is charged to the proper account.

The first and perhaps the main reason I am opposed is that I fired a city employee because he did not work and stopped the pay of another junketing on the City's time. The first of these employees is a Ward Chairman of the North Side "organization." The second is a protege of a prominent cog in the Mayor's machine.

The Mayor solaced his Ward Chairman henchman with another job at greater pay, thus serving notice on the "payroll" that political activities outweighed, with him, City duties.

Is it any wonder that the Mayor, his hand-picked candidate for Controller and all of his machine oppose me?

Last Day!... August Furniture Selling and Fur Selling

DAILY SHORT STORY

What Came With the House

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD.

THE town of Haddamville has for years expressed its kindly emotions towards its fellow townsmen with a form of entertainment popularly known as "showers." It gave linen showers kitchen showers, aluminum showers, hosiery showers. Showers, in short, adapted to any and every occasion.

Ever since she could remember, Mattie Fairchild had been contributing to these showers as one by one her friends got engaged and married, acquired homes, babies and anniversaries.

But it had been all outgo and no income. For Mattie herself had never been given a shower. She had never done anything which entitled her to one.

On the morning after the Thursday Sewing Society decided to give Bunny Raymond another shower (she had already been given several of one sort or another) Mattie sat herself down to consider. So far as she knew she was the only one of the crowd of girls who had grown up together who had never been surprised—more or less—with a crepe paper adorned clothes basket heaped to overflowing with daintily wrapped parcels.

Only one other had, like herself, remained unwed. That was Mabel Corbin, who kept house for her brother Will, but Mabel had once taken a trip to Montreal at special excursion rates, and the crowd had fairly overwhelmed her with a Bon Voyage shower.

"I might take a trip myself," thought Mattie, "if riding on trains and boats didn't make me seasick." Suddenly her gray eyes twinkled.

"I believe I'll do it!" she cried aloud. "I'll buy the old Corbin place with my savings and the crowd will simply have to give me a housewarming!"

When the father of Will and Mabel had died he had left them with two houses. One was the old farm house in which he and his parents before him had been born. The other was a small two-family house in the center of the town which he had taken over in payment of a debt and into which Mabel had persuaded Will to move.

She was sick, she said, of living so far away from things with nothing but cows and fields for neighbors.

As a result, the old homestead had been rented to one tenant after another and was rapidly falling into a state of sad decay. In fact, Mabel had one day told Mattie that she would be glad to let the place go for a song were it not for Will. "He's a sentimental old fool over it," she frankly described his attitude.

So it was to Will that Mattie went with the few hundred dollars she had managed somehow to tuck away out of a very meagre living made mostly by keeping Haddamville properly clothed. For Mattie was the town seamstress.

Without preamble she laid her desire before him and it was a minute of two before Will, tipped informally back in his swivel desk chair—he was Haddamville's one insurance man—replied.

Then he spoke thoughtfully. "I hate to let the farm go," he said "Always sort of had it in mind to go back there some day and fix things up. But I guess, what with Mabel feeling the way she does, I'd better sell and I don't know as there's anyone I'd rather sell to than you. Only—" and he looked at her curiously, "I don't quite see what you want with it, Mattie."

Mattie flushed. How could she tell him she was buying it so her friends would give her a housewarming But the flush made her look years younger and, for the moment, almost pretty. For the first time in her life, Will saw her as a someone else than "Mabel's friend," or "Miss Fairchild, the dressmaker."

"I'm going to make it into my home," said Mattie simply. "I'm going to have blue gingham curtains at the kitchen windows, a flower garden with Early Morn petunias and lobelia in it, and a Maltese cat."

Will regarded her with admiration. "By Jove, Mattie Fairchild," he exclaimed. "I'll bet it will be the sort of home a man—an old fellow like me, say—would go crazy about. Flowers and not shut in by pesky houses."

Then for some strange reason Mattie blushed again and rose hastily. "You make out the deeds," she said, "and let me know when they're ready. I'll pay what I can down and the rest I'll take on a mortgage, if agreeable to you."

Will did not answer right away. And Mattie couldn't know that she was looking back over the lonely years since his mother died and the sister who had never taken her place had made his home for him. She had hung no blue gingham curtains at his kitchen windows, planted no pink petunias in his yard.

Then for a man slow to think and slower to act, Will Corbin did an amazing thing. He jumped up and, reaching out his hand, grabbed Mattie's prim little black gloved fingers as if he were suddenly afraid that this woman whom he had always known might go out of his life forever.

"Don't think I'm crazy," he begged her almost wistfully," but I believe—I believe that you and I might get married and make that little home together. What do you say, Mattie?"

And Mattie, who could remember when little Willie Corbin had been fond of reaching across the school aisle and surreptitiously snatching at her curls, heard herself saying, "If you'll only give me time to think about it, perhaps we could!"

So Mattie had her showers. My, yes, beginning with the one which celebrated the announcement of her engagement to one of the town's solid citizens and continuing through an entire series until there was reached the greatest housewarming the town of Haddamville had ever seen.

But it will have to be admitted that everyone who buys a house to get a housewarming out of it is not sure to draw a husband as well.

Karns City Man Killed in Collision

BUTLER, Pa., Aug. 30.—Samuel Reddick, 51, of Karns City, was killed and A. D. Bell injured when the car in which they were riding was struck by a heavily loaded truck at a crossing on Route 75, near here. Reddick was thrown to the concrete and his head crushed. He was carried a distance of 200 feet. Bell, driver of the car, escaped with minor injuries.

The accident happened as the car was being driven across the highway, which is under improvement.

COUNTY FARM APPROVED

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Aug. 30.—The Greene County Grand Jury approved a proposal made by the county commissioners for creation of a workhouse and prison farm on the George Worley farm, two miles east of Waynesburg. The proposition will also have to pass the December Grand Jury.

Plans submitted by the commissioners call for purchase of the Worley farm for $50,000, and for construction of a modern jail at an approximate cost of $125,000 to accommodate 60 prisoners.

The farm contains a 12-room house suitable for a sheriff's residence, in addition to five producing gas wells and limestone deposits, which it is planned to develop commercially with prison labor.

Trolley Wrecked In Crash With Van

SHARPSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 30.—Several people were shaken up when a Sharon street car was struck by a moving van operated by Carl Burnett, of Masury, O. The front end of the car was torn off. Drew Ball, operator, seeing that the crash could not be avoided, applied his brakes and then stepped back into the car, narrowly escaping serious injuries. Mrs. Frank McDonald, of Youngstown; Mrs. John Davis and Mrs. Fred Susi, of Sharpsville, were the passengers most painfully injured.

Bachelors—and Husbands

THE bachelor's slogan is "Give me liberty—or give me death!" But the married man's is "Every day is ladies' day to me!"

A bachelor's idea of relaxation is to spend a few evenings at home—a married man's is to spend a few evenings far, far away from home.

The English language contains nearly half a billion words, and yet the average man can't find three or four of them that fit together effectively when he's trying to tell a woman that he loves her.

A man wouldn't think of hitching a high-strung, nervous, mettlesome race horse to a plough; but he'll nonchalantly marry a high-voltage prima donna or a fluffy dancing doll, and expect to tie her down to a budget and a grocery book and hitch her to the kitchen range.

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Plot Against Georges Is More Sinister Than Was Suspected.

MR. UNDERWOOD crossed the room when he had turned on the light and drew a chair close to the sofa upon which he had seated Princess Olina and me. He cast a speculative and appraising glance at the window, by the side of which we were seated in such fashion that no one could see us through it, nor could any missle projected through it reach us.

He nodded imperceptibly to me as his glance returned to us and I glowed with the flattering assurance that he expected me to understand his precautions, but would have to explain them to the Princess Olina if she became inquisitive.

But the princess was so obsessed with the terror which had made her summon us that she had no room in her thoughts for any lesser fright. Her fingers, clasping a small pistol, were trembling so violently that Mr. Underwood reached over to take the pistol from her. As he did so, Fedor, the wolfhound, which had kept close to his mistress' side, sprang past her, retreating only at Olina's quick command and assurance that everything was all right.

"Whew!" Mr. Underwood said, wiping his forehead. "Do you train him to do that to every bird who tries to hold your hand?"

He had meant to relieve her tension with a laugh, but though it came there was more of hysteria than of mirth in it, and her hands relieved of the weapon twisted convulsively together.

"What has happened?" she said. "You haven't told me. Is Georges—"

Her voice failed her, and looking at her working face I wondered whether her fear sprang only from her affection for a valued comrade and old friend or held unknown to herself something more vital.

"He is very much alive," Mr. Underwood said promptly, "and only slightly hurt."

"He was shot then?" she asked. "I could not believe it."

"Yes, but a glancing bullet put him out for a little while, gave him a flesh wound, nothing at all serious. He'll be out in a day or two."

Mr. Underwood was voluble, hurried, merging his explanation into a command.

"Now suppose you tell me again just what frightened you," he said. "I couldn't get it straight over the phone, I was in such a hurry to get over here."

"I was asleep," she said, "when I heard Fedor growl, and then I heard a low knocking below on the door. Uncle Henry is a bit deaf and it wasn't loud enough for him to hear. My night light was burning, so I suppose the man thought he'd knock on the door nearest that."

I saw Mr. Underwood's fingers clench into his palms and knew that he was as eager as I to have her get on with her rambling tale.

"I went to the window and called just as I did to you, only I didn't threaten to shoot, because I wasn't frightened then. I thought it might have been a telegraph messenger or something. But the man below—I couldn't see him for he'd put himself behind a post and it was only his voice which came up to me—said he was an unknown friend of mine—oh! he knows who I really am, for he called me by name—and that he wanted to know if Georges had been brought to my house. He said somebody had shot Georges, but that he didn't know whether he was dead or not, and that he was hunting for him. He asked me to put a light in the window if anybody brought Georges to the house. And to get rid of him, I promised I would, and he went away. But I don't think he went far."

"Neither do I," Mr. Underwood said grimly, and I guessed that he was visioning as I was the sinister figure of an assassin lurking in the grounds of The Larches on the chance that the wounded prince might have come to the home of his friend for aid.

"Would you have put that light in the window if Georges had come here to you?" Mr. Underwood asked.

"No, indeed," Olina replied. "His voice sounded treacherous—somehow, I couldn't have trusted him."

"You'd soon have found out how treacherous if you'd given him that signal," Mr. Underwood replied. "It would have been Georges' death warrant and probably yours. But you needn't worry any more, Georges is safe in the hospital and I'll have young Veritzen come down with a trooper for the rest of the night. Where's the telephone?"

But Olina had jumped to her feet and was staring at him with frightened eyes.

"But where is Noel?" she said. "I called and called him before I called you."

MOTHER HANDS

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

LOVE it is that makes the world go 'round. But it's the Mother hands, prompted by Love that really do the trick. What would we do without their tender, guiding care? Where would we all be if it hadn't been for the loving hands that tended us and cared for us when we couldn't do for ourselves?

Whose hands smooth all the troubles away for you and tenderly hold you and try to keep all the hard things of life away from you? From the time you are a wee baby, the hands are never still—always seeking what they can do for you and one of your very first impressions is of the hands that are always there to help and guide you. They may not be soft and white and perfectly shaped. More probably they're hard and calloused and seamed with hard work, but they are the most beautiful hands in all the world. Mother hands!

Someone has so beautifully said that "God couldn't be everywhere, so He made Mothers!" And isn't it true? Mother Love and Mother Hands are truly what guides the world and "makes the wheels go 'round," and whatever you are or hope to be, it's the Mother Hands that guide you through everything. God bless them!

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Cataract Cure Now a Simple Operation

OF ALL the serious troubles come to plague the human family, perhaps the most satisfactory one is cataract.

DR. COPELAND

Perhaps this statement will puzzle you. How can a trouble so serious as this be considered satisfactory? This is what I mean:

Blindness is a most distressing affliction. There are forms that come from causes so hopeless that there is absolutely nothing to do. Gradually the light fades and it is only a question of time when enduring blindness will be the dreadful end.

But in cataract there is practically a certainty that sight can be restored. After the shock of learning that the sight will fail gradually and reading become impossible, this feeling will be replaced speedily by the comfort of knowing that pretty soon a painless operation will restore the vision.

There are many mistaken ideas in the popular mind about cataract. Lots of people think it a growth over the surface of the eye, a sort of "skin" that shuts out sight. This is not the case.

In the interior of the eyeball, back of the pupil, is a transparent structure called the "crystalline lens." In health, it has a part to play in focussing the rays of light and making the vision distinct. In cataract this lens becomes cloudy. As the cloudiness increases, the vision becomes more and more hazy. This goes on until the cataract is "ripe." Then the whole substance of the structure has become involved and its original transparency has disappeared.

When this time arrives the eye is ready for operation. Cocaine is used to deaden the nerves. Then the delicate knife can be inserted into the tissues and other tiny instruments employed to remove from within the eyeball the entire crystalline lens. And all this is done without pain!

The eye is bandaged, and after five or six days or a week the wound is healed. Within a couple of weeks glasses are fitted and the joyful patient finds it possible to see his friends and read the newspapers.

If your vision seems impaired, have your family doctor recommend an experienced and capable oculist. He will examine the eye and find the cause of the failing sight. Nine times out of 10 there will be no cataract or other serious trouble. But if it turns out that cataract is really present the oculist will arrange for the operative work necessary to get rid of it.

Don't worry about it. It is only a question of a little time when the cataract is out and the sight restored.

Horoscope

Saturday, August 31.

WITH the gracious Venus dominating the affairs of this day, it would be safe to forecast the activities of love, pleasure, social and artistic affiliations as engaging the attentions, unless the business interests be aligned with catering to these avocations or with domestic and feminine projects. All these should flourish and give much happiness, as should poetry, music or all idealistic and mystical and emotional expressions.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which the higher and more human ideals and proclivities will be indulged, rather than the commonplace activities of life. Affectional, romantic, domestic, social and cultural affairs may be uppermost, with sordid matters calling for but routine application.

A child born on this day will be affectionate, socially inclined, kindly and humane, with a leaning toward high ideals of culture. It may devote itself to these aspirations, attaining a worth-while place in public popularity.

I could not live without the love of my friends.—Keats.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Seating the Guests of Honor

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. At an informal dinner where is the hostess seated and where is the guest of honor seated?

2. If a gift is presented, when should this take place?

3. Is it correct to use a filet lace table cloth? Can regular linen dinner napkins be used?

4. If place cards are used, how should they be marked—with the prefix Miss or Mr. or just the first and last name?

M. D. M.

THE hostess sits at the head of the table, and the head of the table is anywhere she chooses to sit. The woman guest of honor is seated at the right of the host, and the man guest of honor is seated at the right of the hostess. The next two most important positions are the left of the hostess and the left of the host, and the hostess places in these the two people who are to receive "second honors."

2. There is no regulation about this, and it might be placed either as a favor, on the table when the guests come in, or brought in with the coffee, the more leisurely time.

3. Yes, it is correct—and very luxurious—to use a filet lace table cloth. Such a cloth makes an exceptionally charming and artistic background for a table setting. Regular linen dinner napkins may be used if there are no matching napkins.

4. Since the use of placards at dinner or luncheon suggests a formal occasion, the former title is usually written before the name.

The Bride's Trousseau

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am to be married soon and I am in doubt as to whether I should pay for my wife's trousseau or whether she should bear this expense. What do you think about it? R. D. D.

THERE is a most definite social rule about this, a girl pays for her own trousseau. It is terrible form—impossible form—for her to allow her fiance to pay for any part of her trousseau.

When a Child is FEVERISH, CROSS, UPSET

Colic, gas, sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, in babies and children, generally show food is souring in the little digestive tract.

When these symptoms appear, give Baby a teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Add it to the first bottle of food in the morning. Older children should be given a tablespoonful in a glass of water. This will comfort the child—make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy. It will sweep the bowels free of all sour, indigestible food. It opens the bowels in constipation, colds, children's ailments. Children take it readily because it is palatable, pleasant-tasting.

Learn its many uses for mother and child. Write for the interesting book, "Useful Information." Address The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York, N. Y. It will be sent FREE.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade-Mark of The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

KDKA TO GET BYRD SIGNALS

Malcolm P. Hanson, radio engineer of the Byrd expedition at Little America, is conducting a series of special tests over Byrd's radio station WFA from the Antarctic ice caps to determine what causes fading and dead spot areas in wireless communication. These tests are being transmitted on several short wave bands.

Tonight between 7:15 and 7:30 o'clock station KDKA will listen for signals transmitted by Hanson, and if they are of sufficient strength, telegraphic dots from Little America will be rebroadcast on the standard wave length of the station for the public to hear the signals. The results of this test will be reported back to Hanson on the short wave band of the pioneer station.

Ford Strikes Snag In Plan to Move Lincoln Relic

LINCOLN, Ill., Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Henry Ford, who recently purchased the old Postville courthouse in which Abraham Lincoln once practiced law, has met with opposition in his efforts to remove the historic building to Dearborn, Mich.

In a letter to Lawrence B. Stringer, county judge of Logan County, W. J. Cameron, of Detroit, spokesman for Mr. Ford, said the building was purchased with the intention of moving it to Dearborn "and giving it a setting exactly similar to that of Lincoln even to the point of orienting it as it has always been."

In reply, Judge Stringer said the community appreciated what Mr. Ford was doing to preserve items of American historical interest, but that to remove the courthouse from its present environment would turn it into an "empty shell."

HOOVER TO TAKE 21 TO CAMP

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—A party of 21, including six members of the Federal Farm Board, has been invited by President Hoover to spend the week-end at his Virginia camp on the Rapidan in the Blue Ridge Mountains.

The President and his party will leave Washington late today and will remain over Labor Day, returning to the capital Tuesday morning.

In addition to Mrs. Hoover and the President's son, Allan, the party will include Chairman Legge, of the farm board, and four of his colleagues, Commissioners Teague, Denman, Wilson and Williams and their wives. These board members will be able to give the President a first hand account of the session this week in Chicago, where final plans were made to organize the Farmers' National Grain Marketing Corporation. Secretary Hyde, who serves ex-officio on the board, also will be in the party.

BANDITS SHOOT AT 2 IN AUTO

Two bandits who failed in an attempt last night to hold up two men in an automobile, after firing a shot into their car at Paulson avenue and Auburn street, were being sought by police today.

Their intended victims, Thomas Collinger, 24, of 4710 Lorigan street, the driver, and Carmen Gurrier, 22, of 4607 Lorigan street, told police that the men, in another machine, fired a shot into a window of the car when Collinger increased his speed. The thugs, apparently frightened, abandoned their car, a stolen one, at Ashley and Auburn streets.

Collinger told police that he was carrying $500 and was followed by the pair from Bloomfield.

Film Comic, Short In Alimony, Sent To Rock Pile

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Al St. Johns, motion picture comedian, was sentenced to the county rock pile by Superior Judge Charles Burnell for failure to pay alimony.

St. Johns was ordered to pay Mrs. Lillian St. Johns, his first wife, $1,600 back alimony. St. Johns said he was supporting his parents, his present wife, Mrs. June St. Johns and their child, and because he had been out of work during the recent "Equity strike" in motion pictures, could not make the payments.

Judge Burnell said St. Johns could "stay on the rock pile until he pays, even if its the rest of his natural life." The actor replied "I guess I'll have to stay that long."

WAR DEBT PLAN RATIFIED

THE HAGUE, Aug. 30.—(INS.)—A general protocol, making official the agreements reached in The Hague reparation conference, was signed here this afternoon by England, France, Italy, Belgium, Japan and Germany.

The gold pen with which the signatures were written was given to Henri Jasper, of Belgium, in recognition of his conciliation efforts when the conference appeared doomed.

The meeting broke up in an atmosphere of amity, the delegates smiling and shaking hands.

Representatives of the powers are hopeful the last of the problems left by the great war have now been liquidated and that Europe can now concentrate upon her economic recovery. Issues of secondary importance can be handled in the future by the League of Nations, it was stated.

Rico Calmly Reads Story Describing Murder of Captain Courtney

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Sam Vettori, Chicago gang leader, outlines a holdup of the Casa Alvarado night club. Joe Massara, dude; Otero, The Greek; Tony Passa, ex-choir boy, and Rico, Sam's lieutenant, carry it out. In spite of Sam's warning against gunplay, Rico shoots a man when he reaches for his gun. It is Courtney, a captain of detectives. Back at Sam's place, Rico is berated. He retorts by threatening Vettori's leadership, calling him a coward. Supported by the gang, Rico is made leader and the hold-up cash is split among them. They hide as three detectives appear. Sam is questioned.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VII.

VETTORI sat down at the table and began to shuffle the cards.

"There's a big auto draped around a pole a couple of blocks down the street and we just wondered if you knew anything about it."

Vettori began to lay out a game of solitaire.

"How should I know anything about it? Ain't it got no license plates on it?"

"Sure, but they're phoney."

"Yeah?"

"Yeah. It was stolen about 8 o'clock tonight on the North Side and we got a pretty good description of the guy that stole it."

"Well," said Vettori, "I got a good business. What the hell'd I be doing stealing automobiles."

He laughed and shook his head.

"Oh, you got me wrong," said the detective with elaborate innocence. "You see, it's piled up right straight down the street from here and I thought maybe it was some of the guys from your joint, see? I mean some of the guys that come here to dance."

"Well," said Vettori, "how would I know?"

The detective took out a cigar and began to chew on it.

"Wasn't there nobody in it?" asked Otero.

"Yeah," said the detective, "one guy, but he beat it."

"I don't know nothing about it," said Vettori.

"Well, no harm in asking," said the detective. "Come on, Mike, let's get going. I guess Vettori don't know nothing about it."

The two of them walked slowly to the door. The big one turned.

"Say, Vettori," he said, "did you hear the news?"

Vettori looked up.

"What news?"

"Why, some rat bumped Cap Courtney off over at the Casa Alvarado."

"Yeah?" said Vettori, "some guys are sure careless with the lead. That's a tough break."

The young detective opened the door and they started out.

"Ain't it?" said the big one. "Well, so long."

As soon as the door closed, Vettori went over and shot the bolt, then peeped out through the shutter. Rico came out of his hiding place.

"Well," said Vettori, glancing at Rico, "things ain't going so good."

Rico shrugged.

"They don't know nothing. Just feeling around. Listen, Sam, where's your nerve? We got to stick together on this."

"I know," said Vettori, falling back into his chair, "but I never seen things break so tough."

Rico held out a roll of bills.

"Here's your split, Sam."

Vettori took the bills and stuffed them into his pocket. Rico handed Otero his. Otero got up and put on his overcoat.

"I think I go see my woman," he said.

When he had gone Rico went over and sat down beside Vettori.

"Listen, Sam," he said, "I been taking orders too long. We're done. Get the idea? But we got to see this through. We get a break and we'll come clean. Only we got to shoot straight. See what I mean? I got a rope around my neck right now and they can only hang you once. If anybody gets yellow and squeals, my gun's gonna speak its piece."

"That's O. K. with me," said Sam.

They sat silent. Downstairs the jazzband was playing and the saxophone was sending vibrations along the floor. Vettori laid out another game of solitaire.

"Funny for Tony to crash," he said.

"He lost his nerve," said Rico.

"You suppose he'll show?"

"Not till tomorrow if he's got any sense. I'll leave his split with you."

Rico went over to see Ma Magdalena, the fence. Her fruit store was still open and her son Arrigo was sitting half-asleep beside a pile of oranges.

"Hello," he said.

"Where's Ma?" asked Rico.

Arrigo pulled a cord which rang a bell in the rooms beyond the store. Ma, leaning on her stick, came out into the store. Seeing Rico, she said:

"Oh, it's you! Well, well! Come back. Come back."

"Can I come too, Ma?" said Arrigo.

"You stay and mind the store, you lazy loafer," said Ma, shaking her stick at him.

Arrigo sat down once more by the pile of oranges.

Rico followed Ma Magdalena back into her little office. She pulled up a chair for him and he sat down, then she got out a bottle.

"You talk, I drink," she said, sitting down beside him and pouring herself a drink.

Rico took out his split, peeled off a few bills and handed her the rest.

"Plant it," he said.

She took the roll, counted it, and put it down inside her dress.

"Had a big New Year's Eve, did you?"

"Yeah," said Rico, "plenty big, There'll be lots of fun tomorrow."

"Well, well," said Ma, "that's the way it goes."

She poured herself another glass of wine, then she reached over and touched Rico with her stick.

"Look, Rico, you ain't got a nice little girl who wants a big diamond ring, have you?"

"Me, buy a diamond ring for a skirt?"

Ma Magdalena made a chuckling noise and shook her head.

"You are cold, Rico. Don't like wine. Don't like women. You are no good, Rico."

Rico smiled.

"Me, I like women once in a while, but I ain't putting out no diamond rings."

Leaving Ma Magdalena's Rico went in the direction of Sicily Pete's. The wind was blowing hard and Rico, turning up his overcoat collar, leaned against it. It was after 3 o'clock and the streets were empty. Southward the lights of the Loop made a reddish glow in the sky.

At Sicily Pete's the mechanical piano was playing. Three men, all Italians, and two girls, both Americans, were sitting at a front table. They were drunk. They played with their food, spilled their coffee, and banged on the plates with their knives. Pete stood behind the counter, scowling.

When Rico came in he said:

"Hello, my friend, where have you been keeping yourself?"

"I haven't been around lately. Got some noisy birds, ain't you?"

Pete shrugged his shoulders.

"Yes, the fools. They drink gin. That is no drink for an Italian."

Rico took out his cigarets and offered Pete one. They stood smoking. One of the girls pulled up her dress and fixed her garter. Rico smiled.

"Get an eyeful of that, Pete."

"Yes, yes," said Pete, "that's all I get, an eyeful. Every night I stand here while other people have a good time."

The girl looked up at Rico and he winked at her. She said to one of the men:

"Look at that smarty over there. He thinks he's cute."

The man looked foggily at Rico, Pete put his hand on Rico's arm.

"My friend, don't start no trouble, please. That's all we have around here, trouble. With one thing and another, I think I go back to Italy."

Rico turned his back on the girl.

"O. K," he said.

While Pete was getting Rico a cup of coffee, a newsboy came in:

"Extra! Extra! All about the big hold-up."

Rico bought a paper and glanced at the three-inch headlines.

THUGS KILL CAPT. COURTNEY IN CASA ALVARADO HOLD-UP

Rico showed Pete the paper.

"Another killing," he said.

"Yes," said Pete, "kill, kill, that's all they do. I wish to God I was back in Sicily. The Mafia, what is that? That is a kindergarten."

One of the Italians bought a paper and started to read the account of the hold-up aloud. All the people round the table stopped eating to listen. Rico sipped his coffee and watched them.

Leota Demands Money From Ann Marie for Visit To Neal Forsythe

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Ann Marie Macy, though young and pretty, is the "easy mark" of her motherless family. She is forever waiting on her more modern, flapperish sisters, Alice and Jeanie, and lending them her clothes and trinkets to aid in their conquest of the boy friends. The money she earns by painting cards in her father's bookstore partly goes in payment of her brother, Howard's, debts. She is hoping to earn enough to pursue her art course. When Neal Forsythe arrives to visit the wealthy Lawlers Ann Marie quickly loses her heart to him in spite of her disillusionment when she finds him embracing Leota Ingram, the town's bad girl. Her dream of an art course is rudely shattered when Howard, her brother, tells her he is in trouble with Leota and asks Ann Marie to intervene. Leota unexpectedly appears at the Macy home as Florence and John Lawler call.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XIII.

ANN MARIE carefully closed the door of the front parlor so that Leota would not be able to see Florence Lawler and Howdy if she came into the house.

Then she opened the front door to her.

On the floor of the porch, at Leota's feet, were two bags and a cheap oil-cloth hat box.

As Ann Marie looked at them a feeling of sudden and enormous relief came swelling up into her heart. . .It almost looked as if Leota were getting ready to leave town!

"Going away, Leota?" she blurted out hopefully.

The girl put her head in its loud pink felt hat, to one side.

"That all depends," she said slowly, "on your brother. I want to see him."

Some of the hope in Ann Marie's heart died. . .Perhaps Leota had come to the house to persuade Howdy to run away with her and be married! To threaten him into doing what she wanted him to do—

But she kept her fear out of her voice and manner when she answered.

"Won't you come in?" she asked pleasantly, "I'll call Howdy."

She helped Leota bring her bags into the hall.

At the far end of it, under the staircase, was the tiny room that Jeanie used for a sewing room. The door stood open.

"Won't you come in here and sit down?" she asked, still smiling as naturally as she could. "Howdy is talking to a—a caller in the parlor but I'll get him."

She turned as if she were going out of the little room. But she had no intention of letting Leota see Howard if she could prevent it.

She had always realized that he was weak; since that morning she had known that he had once been in love with Leota. Perhaps he still was, she figured. . .And it would be just like him to give up everything all at once and run away with this worthless girl!

"Leota," she said, stopping with her hand on the doorknob, "do you mind if I ask you something that probably isn't any of my business?"

Leota looked at her dully for a minute. "Naw. Go ahead," she said finally.

"Do you need some money? Is that why you want to see Howdy?"

Leota nodded. "Yes, and he's got to give it to me! I been thinking things out, and I don't want to marry him if he's off me like I think he is."

It seemed impossible that so coarse and common a voice could come from between those perfect Cupid's bow lips of hers.

"But I ain't going to stay here no more, now that this story about his giving me the run-around is out," she went on sullenly. "So I'm going to get out. I hate this little one-horse burg, anyhow, and I know a man in New York who says he can get me work as an artist's model. But I got to have some money to take me there and keep me for a while. See?"

Ann Marie nodded, thinking hard. . ."A man in New York who can get me work as an artist's model." . . .That would be Neal Forsythe! . . . That had been Neal Forsythe's letter lying on the desk in Leota's sloppy little flat that morning, of course!

"I knew it all the time!" said Ann Marie to herself.

"And you want the money from Howard?" she asked aloud. "How much will you have to have, Leota?"

Leota's beautifully arched eyebrows went up into her shining hair. "Oh, a couple of hundred will do me," she said arily.

Two hundred dollars! Ann Marie's heart sank. She had only about half as much as that in her little savings account at the bank.

"Wait a minute," she said, and went out, closing the door carefully behind her.

Jeanie and Alice were coming down the stairs, dressed within an inch of their lives and both of them fragrant with Ann Marie's French perfume.

"Listen, you two!" she said to them in a tense little voice that was not much more than a whisper. "Get Florence Lawler out to that car as quickly as you can! Don't ask me questions, but just do it!"

Then she flung open the door of the parlor.

"Howdy, come here a minute," she called to him. "Come on, Florence, we're all ready to go! You girls go out to the car and Howdy and I'll be there in a sec!"

She could hardly breathe until the three girls were out of the house and the door closed behind them.

Then she turned to Howdy, her eyes going from him to the shut door of the sewing room.

"Leota's in there!" she told him in a frightened whisper. "She's going to leave town right away—if only you and I can get a couple of hundred dollars together for her!"

She clasped her hands and unclasped them nervously.

"Well—why ask me about it?" Howdy said after a long pause. "You know I haven't any money for her! Last night you promised me that you'd give her money if that was what she was after. And now you don't want to make good on it, do you?"

He took the smart double-breasted overcoat from the hall rack and began to put it on.

"Oh, Howdy! You know I meant what I said!" Ann Marie's voice was a wailing cry now. "But all I have is a hundred dollars or so—and she wants two! She says she won't leave town unless she has two—" He adjusted his hat at just the right angle. "Oh, shucks!" answered Howdy, putting on his new tan gloves.

He quietly opened the front door.

"Offer her your hundred," he said easily. "You'll see she'll jump at it! And if she says she's got to have more, tell her you'll send it to her."

"That's all I can do," Ann Marie decided, watching him go swaggering down the front walk to the Lawlers' car and get in.

"Don't wait for me, kids!" she called out. "I'll be along pretty soon."

They drove away. And not until they were out of sight did Ann Marie feel safe.

Then she went back to the sewing room.

Leota has taken a cigaret case from her bag and was placidly smoking.

"I thought you wasn't never comin' back," she said, blowing blue spirals at the ceiling. "What kep' you so long?"

"I asked Howdy if he had any money," Ann Marie told her frankly. "But he didn't—he never has any money, Leota, just as I tried to tell you this morning. Didn't I?"

Leota just blew smoke out of her nostrils and said nothing.

"But I have a hundred in my savings account," Ann Marie said quickly, "and I'm going to write you a check for that. Probably your friend in New York will cash it for you."

"Probably," said Leota. "But I've got to have some cash right now—for my train fare. I'd like to get the six o'clock train if it's all the same to you."

Once more Ann Marie turned to go out of the room.

"All right. Wait a minute," she said again.

Mrs. Leezy was asleep on her bed, snoring all up and down the scale, when Ann Marie opened the door of her room and shook her.

She sat bolt upright and stared widly.

"Great heavens! What's happened?" she cried out. "Don't ever wake me up like that again, girl! You've given me a shock I'll never get over in a month of Sundays! What is it you want, for mercy's sake?"

"About $30," answered Ann Marie. "And I want it right away."

On the top of Mrs. Leezy's dresser lay her own brown suede handbag.

Ann Marie picked it up and handed it to her.

"Please don't tell me you haven't that much!" she cried. "If you haven't, I don't know what I will do!"

Muttering and still confused with sleep, Mrs. Leezy's work-worn hands went through the bag, tossing keys and handkerchief and old letters out upon the bedspread.

At last she held out three $10 bills. "There 'tis," she said, sniffing. "You'll pay it back to me, won't you? I put it aside for my insurance money—"

Her anxious voice followed Ann Marie down the stairs.

Leota had come out of the sewing room and was standing at the bottom of the steps, looking at the cheap little silver watch on her wrist.

Ann Marie flung her the money and flew into the back parlor, where Mr. Macy was still dozing on the couch.

Slipping softly past him, Ann Marie sat down at his desk and wrote out a check for Leota . . . It was a check for $104.50, and it was for every penny that Ann Marie had in the whole world.

"Send me your address in New York, Leota," she said, when she handed over the slip of paper to Howdy's ex-sweetheart. "And I'll send you the rest just as soon as I can."

Leota looked doubtful.

"I'll give you my friend's address now," she decided. "You can send it to him and he can give it to me. He'll know where I am."

She took from her handbag a large square white envelope covered with fine, dashing writing—the envelope that Ann Marie had seen on her desk that morning.

"Here's his name and address," she said, turning it over.

Ann Marie copied it down: "N. Forsythe,
2 Susquehanna Hall,
Perry Street,
New York, N. Y."

Neal Forsythe! . . . She had known it all along, she told herself.

She had known all along that he was the kind of Don Juan person who would make friends in a few hours with a Leota Ingram! Who would write her letters, promising to find work for her in New York, where he was, if she would come there—

"Now she's gong to him—and I'm paying her way!" thought Ann Marie bitterly.

She wanted to run after Leota and take the check and the money out of her hands! To tear them up and scatter them to the winds! . . .Then Leota would have to stay here and Howdy would have to marry her whether he wanted to or not! Or he'd have to get out of it the best way he could!

But it was too late now to do anything about it. . .Leota was on her way to Neal Forsythe. On her way to Neal Forsythe—

"And I'd give anything on earth just to be in her shoes!" thought Ann Marie, suddenly sick with jealousy. "Anything — anything — anything—"

In that moment she made up her mind to go to him.

DAVID BELASCO TURNS DOWN $600,000 FILM OFFER, REPORT HAS IT

By DOROTHY HERZOG.
(Copyright, 1929, by Premier Syndicate).

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 30.

REACH for the smelling salts and act nonchalant. For David Belasco, the high priest of stagecraft in New York, is said to have brushed aside a flick offer to come West and supervise two vocalloids for the stupendous sum of $600,000. Gasp that one off.

David Belasco

Noah Beery's dome still resembles a billiard ball. All for "Golden Dawn," a sinema, not a painting. In which Noah plays a very despicable Negro. Noah has yearned for years to bring Eugene O'Neill's "Emperor Jones" to the screen. As a result of his characterization in "Golden Dawn," don't be surprised if he gets his wish.

He looks so young, too. This Ralph Forbes lad, who heroes for Corinne Griffith in "Lilies of the Field." But if the truth must out, Ralph is Fay Bainter's godfather and Fay isn't a youngster any more. The relationship occurred thusly. Miss Bainter—whose married name slips the elusive memory—arranged to have her small son baptized at the Little Church Around the Corner in New York. This was several years ago. Ruth Chatterton—Mrs. Forbes, yuh know—acted as the infant's godmother. Miss Bainter recollected she had never been baptized, so she might as well share the ceremony with the baby. Whereupon Ralph acted as her godfather. And there's the end of that.

Mary Hopes It Isn't Printed

MARY DUNCAN says if I print it it's a dirty trick. But my weak character can't shy from the temptation.

Ralph Forbes

It happened thus. I was standing outside the Fox Studio watching a photographer click Joe Riley, head of the Fox police force. Along came Mary totin' a can of celluloid under her arm.

"Uh, huh," with Sherlock Holmes acumen, "you've got your screen test there."

"I have not!" indignantly.

"Well, it's a good story."

"It's a test of a dress I wear in 'Romance of the Rio Grande' that I don't think photographs very well."

"Yeah? 'Taint a good story. Mine's the honey."

Mary started across the lot. "If you print it," calling over her shoulder, "it'll be a dirty trick."

But newspaper persons are like that.

Several years ago, the name Herbert Blache ranked among the directorial lineup. Today, Mr. Blache owns and runs a lamp shop in Hollywood.

SCREENALITIES: Lee Tracy hits the aerial trail to Chicago tomorrow. His mother accompanies him. She came a-visiting her son from Wilkes-Barre, Pa. She is 65 years old and Lee is flying East because she's keen for it. . . . Alice White sorta expects to hit on to New York when she finishes her next vocalloid, "Playing Around," direction Mervyn Leroy, with Billy Bakewell, the lead. Because Patsy Ruth Miller's brother, Winton, has to get back to Princeton pretty soon, she advanced her marriage date with Tay Garnet, the director, from September 15 to the 8th . . . Sue Carol's vacation is over. Um, Sue has been making clothes and wig tests for "The Lone Star Ranger," in which she will share honors with George O'Brien. This Zane Grey yarn was made eons ago with Tom Mix the romantic galloper of the plains. Now Tom's in a circus and George goes open space. . . Big party at ye Roosevelt hostelry. Welcoming the songster team, Van and Schenck to Hollywood and a flick. Sally O'Neill and Roland Drew there like-a-that-a. WAYNESBURG, Pa., Aug. 30.—The Waynesburg and Washington Narrow Guage Railroad provided wags with more wisecracking material yesterday when the caboose on the lone freight train operated over the line was lost near Reese's Mill. The brakeman was in the caboose at the time it was lost from the rest of the train.

BARLOW ARREST INQUIRY ASKED

HAVANA, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Cablegrams from prominent persons in Washington advised Joseph E. Released on bond reported put up by J. M. Barrque, secretary of justice, Barlow was resting after a 24-hour incarceration at Principe Fortress, which he described as an "awful nightmare in which I was placed in a cell with crazy men."

Barlow proposes to leave for Washington to make a formal report of his arrest which he termed "false" and his imprisonment which he holds "illegal."

'LEAK' ON NOTE TO CHINA SEEN

SHANGHAI, China, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—The American Shanghai Evening Post published the purported text of the American extra-territoriality note to China as printed in the August 24 edition of the Tsingtao Times.

The American paper flatly stated that it was presenting the "American note to China in which Washington refused China the desired abolition of extra-territoriality."

The publication has increased belief here that the official text of the note has "leaked out."

C. T. Wang, the Nationalist foreign minister, would make no statement, but it was evident that publication of the note had been made against the wishes of the Nationalist government. Minor officials said that if the true note had been published it was in violation of the Nationalist government's understanding that it be held up.

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 30.—Frank Duffie, 31, of Republic, arrested in New Kensington, has been returned to Fayette County as a suspect in the robbery of the crew of a West Penn street car, near Martin, last December. Duffie is also alleged to have been implicated in the robbery of $380 in cash and other valuables from the Red Tile Inn recently. He and a companion obtained two gold watches and a sum of money from the street car conductors.

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT NEWS

U. S. DIRIGIBLE DROPS GREETING OVER CITY

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

WHAT always strikes me hard is the rigor and stoicism of some big league baseball managers who quit their jobs. Donie Bush, the Pirate manager, is the latest case on record. With a contract running until October, Bush picked up and left. No one ever knows exactly what salaries are paid to managers, but it is a fair guess that Bush was drawing down about $18,000 a year, which is not to be sneezed at.

He probably thought it over for quite a while, weighed the salary against the onerous duties he had to perform, and finding his work unendurable, sacrificed his job, buttressed by a contract. I can think of no other line where such jobs, paying such salaries, are tossed aside with the grace affected by baseball managers. True, most of them figure they can get work in other baseball pastures, but they also must realize that they are going to start in again at a salary considerably less than the one they tossed aside. It may be argued, too, that Bush, no longer at perfect peace with his employer, felt this would be his last year, anyway, and that in reality he was giving up but six weeks' juicy pay, but there have been managers in greater storms than those which afflicted Bush who have come back for another trial.

While usually skeptical of the boys who say money is not everything (the boys who say that usually have a pretty good bundle themselves before they reach that philosophical outlook), the retirement of Bush would indicate there must be something in the statement. The "slings and arrows of outrageous fortune," the fans' contumely, and possibly baleful glances, if not downright sarcastic criticism from an employer, possibly caused Bush to believe that a lot of money was not too high to purchase an escape.

I always regret a resigned manager's silence, but for a few bromides about wishing the team well, and regretting the bad breaks, which mark his exit from the scene. I, for instance, should like to hear Bush's real reasons—those that he will tell to a sympathetic comrade. His cynicism, promoted by what he deems the unfairness of the fans, for example, the ingratitude of certain players under him, or his observations on his relations with his boss—all this would make juicy and spicy reading. But there seems to be an unwritten rule in baseball that you takes your hat, you gets out, and you keeps your troubles to yourself. This all is graceful and inspiring, after a fashion, but not nearly so interesting as a full and calm recital of the events leading up to the tragedy.

THERE may be some girls and women listening in tonight, and wondering what this is all about, but they will get the idea if they visualize their sweethearts or husbands as returning home some evening to say: "Well, I just kicked the job where it should have been kicked." Imagine all the dresses and knickknacks for $18,000 or so a year!

And now to get back to the men: Bush's successor is Jewel Ens, a gentleman I'd like to see have a real chance at the job. He has native shrewdness and intelligence. He has a dandy sense of humor—and what is best of all he can play bridge like nobody's business. He picked up his bridge by torture and sweating. He never saw a book on bridge, but relied on trial and error, and was aided by an intuitive card sense which stuck out all over any game he played in. To beat him is a pleasure. He groans and grunts and squirms, and I am sorry to say, sometimes is driven to swearing. If he strains and manages to drive himself to a four heart bid you should hear him when some skunk says "four spades." His thinning hair is not from pulling tight shirts over his head, but from tugging at his locks, fitfully, when the king is on the wrong side for his finesse. But bridge playing will not make a good manager, some will say. The answer is that I never saw a good bridge player who was stupid. To silence the hisses I might say I play poor bridge.

BINDLEY WIDOW INCOMPETENT, COURT HOLDS

Trustees Named to Handle $3,050,000 Estate Affairs For 73-Year-Old Woman

John H. Musgrave, Attorney Roy J. Bostwick and the Commonwealth Trust Company were named co-trustees for Mrs. Mary J. Bindley, 73, of the Schenley Apartments, adjudged incompetent to handle her $3,505,000 estate, today by Judge Ambrose B. Reid in Common Pleas Court.

She is the widow of Edwin Bindley, who until his death 15 years ago, was vice president of the Pittsburgh Steel Company.

Musgrave, first cousin and nearest relative of Mrs. Bindley, testified that she had become physically unable to handle her affairs and that she might fall a victim to designing persons.

Eccentricities of Mrs. Bindley, Musgrave said, were her insistence on wearing old clothes, refusal to eat any place except in her room and refusal to leave her apartment except at night.

Her affairs have been handled by a nephew, Edward Bindley, who died several months ago. James and Maria Musgrave and Mrs. Lizzie Lawson, of Wireton, Pa., and Jennie and Maria Musgrave, of Mathilda street, all cousins of Mrs. Bindley, corroborated Musgrave's testimony. There was no opposition to the naming of the trustees.

1 DEAD, 12 HURT IN THREE AUTO CRASHES

Paulson Ave. Man Dies After Cars Collide in East End; 5 Women Among Injured

Automobile accidents in the city last night and early today took a toll of one dead and a dozen injured. Five of the injured are women, none of them seriously hurt, according to hospital reports.

Daniel Campbell, 24, of 418 Paulson avenue, died in Pittsburgh Hospital today from injuries suffered when his car collided with one driven by George L. Blockridge, of 5233 Holmes street, at Shetland and Lincoln avenues shortly before last midnight. Blockridge and Phyllis Constable, 20, of 517 Larimer avenue, an occupant of Campbell's car, suffered cuts and bruises.

U. S. NAVY DIRIGIBLE SOARING OVER GOLDEN TRIANGLE

An unexpected but welcome visitor, the dirigible Los Angeles is here seen floating over the Golden Triangle on the return trip to its Lakehurst hangar from Cleveland. Note, on the left, the William Penn Hotel and the Oliver Building.

PITTSBURGH MAN CHIEF ON TRIP

Thousands See Los Angeles Pay Unexpected Visit Here On Way Home From Akron

Greetings from the United States Navy dirigible Los Angeles as it flew over Pittsburgh were received by Linus F. Rodgers, of 310 Orchard place, Knoxville, late yesterday. The letter was dropped by Lieut. Com. Bert J. Rodgers, a brother, in charge of the dirigible as it passed here yesterday.

A letter was dropped from the ship in a regulation pouch. It fell onto a rooftop six blocks from the Rodgers home, and was recovered by three boys, who delivered it. The note follows:

"CITYLOOK S FINE"

"Dear Lin:

"On our way home from Cleveland. Believe me, Sinoky City sure looks fine to me. Just a thin blue haze, not merely smoke at all to a native. Had word from mother in New York and hope to see her tonight. Cedarhurst Manor sure looks fine from the air. You should take your friends up over it before you take them on it. Best to you all.

As ever,

BERT J. RODGERS.

IN WORLD WAR

Lieut. Commander Rodgers is well known in Knoxville. He is one of six brothers who served in the Army and Navy during the war. His mother is Mrs. Clara Rodgers.

TWO SISTERS HAPPY

Linus Rodgers was out of town yesterday when the message was received at his home. However, it was opened by his two sisters, Mrs. Charles Kennedy and Mrs. Walter J. McGreevy. The women were happy over receiving a message from their brother as he soared over the city.

Thousands of Pittsburghers saw the ship as it passed silently over the city. The Zeppelin paid an unexpected visit here and many were surprised to see it glide over the downtown buildings. No reports had been heard from it after it left Akron, O. Many persons believed it to be the Graf Zeppelin.

The Los Angeles had been at Cleveland for the air races and was unable to return Wednesday. It started back to Lakehurst yesterday afternoon and reached Pittsburgh about 5 o'clock.

PASSES POTTSVILLE

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 30.—(AP.)—The Navy dirigible Los Angeles was sighted at 4:25 a. m. (Eastern Standard time) today flying due east. The ship was estimated to be traveling about 80 miles an hour. The Los Angeles left Cleveland, where she had been at the national air races, yesterday afternoon. She visited Pittsburgh, Washington and Baltimore on her way back to her station at Lakehurst, N. J.

SIX ARRESTED IN DRY RAIDS

Six persons were arrested in as many raids by prohibition agents yesterday. Two of the places visited were clubs in the East End.

A club in the rear of 7241 Tioga street, where Joseph Barbles, 39, was arrested, yielded the agents several bottles of whisky and gin, they reported. George Sipple, 53, was taken into custody in a raid on a club on the second floor of 110 Paulson avenue, after several quarts of gin were seized in the place, according to the agents.

The stores of Sam Disamo, at 7239 Tioga street, and William Pendleton, at 2846 Penn avenue, were found to contain small quantities of moonshine, the raiders said. Both owners were arrested.

In a building at 3059 Penn avenue, several gallons of moonshine were confiscated and Jerry Horak, 40, arrested, the agents asserted.

Twelve barrels of mash were destroyed in a dwelling at 136 Middle avenue, Wilmerding, and Louis Volpe, 29, released on his own recognizance, it was reported.

Federal Church Class Gives Play

"The Class in the Corner" of the Federal Methodist Episcopal Church, Federal, last night presented "Parlor Matches," a two-act comedy, in the Federal K. of P. hall. The play was directed by Edith E. Edwards. Several hundred persons attended the performance.

Sproul and Wife Sued by Attorney

Attorney Kenneth R. Cunningham yesterday filed suit against the Rev. John W. Sproul, evangelist, and his wife, Elsie A. Sproul, of 6938 Thomas boulevard, for $7,500 counsel fees he claims they owe him for service. A large part of this amount was for procuring from the Federal Radio Commission a permit for the Sproul broadcasting station in Frankstown road, the suit says. Demands for payment for his services have been denied, he claims in the suit. Cunningham was counsel for the defendants in several suits against them in the county court last winter.

MOTHER, GIRLS, CASH MISSING

State police and county detectives today are investigating the disappearance last Sunday of Mrs. Walter Sharkey, 34, of Twelfth avenue, Tarentum, who left home with her two daughters and $1,500 which she and her husband had saved for payment upon property for which the couple had been negotiating. The three were last seen when they left their home in an automobile, taking the money to give to the owner of the property.

The woman expressed fear of carrying the money alone and took with her the two children, Alair, 10, and Marie, 16. The woman is an attractive blonde. The husband fears they have met with foul play. The license number of the machine has been broadcast to all highway police.

Spoon Taken As Souvenir Returned

Are souvenir spoon-taking days over is the question Fort Pitt Hotel officials are asking today.

At least some Pittsburgher had a turn of heart. Manager W. E. Morris' morning mail brought back a spoon. It was attached by heavy twine to a shipping tag that carried this unsigned message: "This was taken as a 'souvenir' by a lad who was a guest—Sorry."

METRO APPEAL HEADS DOCKET

The Supreme Court hearing to decide whether the Metropolitan Charter plan can be re-submitted to the voters in November will be one of the first on the list when the Supreme Court convenes in Pittsburgh the last week of September, it was learned yesterday. An order has been made in that court placing the appeal at the head of the list of cases.

Appeals from the decision of the Common Pleas Court have been filed by the county commissioners and also by the Metropolitan Plan Commission. The appeal is from a decision made recently in Common Pleas Court to the effect that the county commissioners did not have the authority to resubmit the question, under the act of legislature.

Patient Hangs Self In Hospital Ward

Edward F. Shannon, 43, of 3326 California avenue, a patient in the mental department of St. Francis Hospital, ended his life by tying his belt around his neck and hanging from the top of a door, according to a report to the Coroner today.

Coats Stolen, Man Caught After Chase

Alleged to have stolen four women's coats from a store in Frankstown avenue, Tony Sanah, 23, of Braddock avenue, Braddock, was chased two blocks before he was arrested. He was lodged in the Frankstown avenue station and will be arraigned today.

LIQUOR DOUBLE TRAGEDY CLUE

County detectives and deputy coroners in their investigation of the murder of Miss Margaret C. Niemetz, 27, of 5354 Kincaid street, and suicide of Hays Ray Fry, 29, of 237 Brown avenue, Turtle Creek, whose bodies were found in an automobile Wednesday night on a lonely road in Wilkins Township, have been unable to establish a motive for the tragedy.

A bullet was fired into Miss Niemetz's left temple and one was discharged into the right temple of the man, according to deputy coroners.

A partly-filled bottle of moonshine and a nickel-plated revolver, found in the automobile, were turned over to Evidence Custodian Theodore Sidenstricker. Analysis of the liquor will be made by the county chemist and an effort made to determine where it was purchased.

The morgue report recorded Miss Niemetz as a victim of murder and Fry as a suicide.

TEACHERS END MEET TODAY

Dr. John Bacon Leeds, prominent educator, was scheduled to speak this morning at the seventy-ninth annual institute of Allegheny County school teachers in Memorial Hall. He will speak on "International Relations." The institute closes today.

More than 2,500 teachers have been attending the lecture sessions of the institute. Today's program will include the adoption of resolutions and the presentation of nominations. Dr. Charles Dickey, superintendent of county schools, will preside.

Westinghouse Man Gets R. C. A. Post

Photophone, Inc., it was announced today. In his new position he has charge of the photophone recording studios and all engineering features of the company. His offices will be at 411 Fifth avenue, New York. He had been a radio engineer with the Westinghouse company since 1920.

SCHOOL PLANS O. K. ASKED

Plans have been completed and forwarded to Harrisburg for approval by the state authorities of a new 8-room grade school building in West View, adjacent to the present Oakwood building.

The plans, it is expected, will receive final consideration by the school board at its meeting next Tuesday. The structure will be of brick and stone, fireproof interior, and is estimated to cost approximately $80,000. A banner enrollment is anticipated when the borough schools open next Tuesday morning for the fall term.

Lucky Bucks—New Money for Old

By LUCKY BUCK.

Folks, I heard from "Sleepy" Joe Wehrheim, of A. Wehrheim's store on Bigelow boulevard, yesterday. Yes, sir, I heard from him with a bang!

This bird, after missing his second try at a Lucky Buck, lets me know, real confidential-like, that he'd like to throw me in the river. Why? Just because I didn't tell him, "Here, you big stiff, here's a Lucky Buck, and it's worth $20, and save it," when I gave them to him. He claims I should have known that he'd never find one of his own accord.

And when I declined his polite suggestion that I pay him a visit, "Sleepy" Joe breaks the news, confidential-like, that he's leaving town today, two days ahead of time, to escape the "rides" that Gasoline Alley has in store for him. And that's how much gratitude I gets, folks.

I'd like to do to "Sleepy" Joe what Mrs. C. R. McCafferty is doing to the Bank of Aspinwall. She drew some singletons from the bank the other day, and there, folks, was Sibilant Suskin No. R43392603D, the second Lucky Buck I spent at the American Legion street bazar last Saturday Not content with drawing $20 from the bank in exchange for one, this lady's going to draw 4 per cent interest on the double sawbuck from the same bank's saving account funds.

Nine-year-old Anna McKernan, 6 Buffalo street, Oakland, retrieved Fortunate Simoleon No. V59335706D. She was looking in her mother's roll, as is her nightly custom, and there was the mazuma disguised as a singleton.

The building superintendent of Trinity Cathedral, Sixth avenue, lives at 334 Parallel street, Carrick. The gentleman's name is George Miller. That's a good name and that's a lucky hombre, for, sure enough, that restless thing in his pocket was Rambling Rock No. R83931839D which I spent on August 20, at the T. F. McCarthy drug store, Penn and Lang avenues.

Today, start looking in Cleo Nolan's A. & P. store at 3106 Chartiers avenue, Sheraden, and J. L. Birchard's drug store, 47 Station street, Crafton, and Hippler and Lansberry's dry goods store at 1618 Broadway, Beechview, and Stouffer's lunch room on Smithfield street and the William Penn Hotel barber shop's manicure account for Lucky Bucks described like this when last seen:

Mr. Buck at the Sun-Telegraph office will give holders of the above numbered bills twenty dollars each in new money.

If you haven't a Lucky One-Spot, some of your friends may have it. Be sure to tell everyone you know of the Sun-Telegraph's offer. It may mean many dollars—new ones for them.

Many Lucky One-Spots will be put into circulation. Every day numbers of these Lucky One-Dollar Bills will be printed exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

Thoughtful Anna, 9, of Oakland, checked the $1 bill which her mother gave her to buy groceries. It proved a Lucky Buck. Mr. Miller, building superintendent, of Carrick, received his Lucky Buck in change.

SURPRISED PARTIES!

Miss Cousins, downtown waitress, was quite surprised when a $1 bill turned up in the restaurant and Mr. Keener, downtown barber, was equally surprised when he discovered that he had been toting a Lucky Buck for days and days.

Will Rogers' Say

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Aug. 30.

President Hoover certainly opened up a Xmas tree for the politicians when he suggested that all government land be turned back to the state in which it was located.

Just announce that there is something going to be divided up and you got the whole nation interested in national affairs.

Announce there is something to pay and you got one hundred and ten million anarchists on your hand.

So Mr. Hoover is becoming a politician fast.

I don't know how bad the Federal government manages the land, but as bad as they do it, it can only be one forty-eighth as bad as the states will do it.

Claremore, Okla., is just waiting for a high tension line so they can go ahead with locating an airport.

Yours, WILL.

NEW IRENE KAUFMANN PLAYGROUND AND POOL OPENED

BOYS AND GIRLS WITH PARENTS CELEBRATE

Hundreds Take Part in Flag Raising, Singing and Races At Settlement Dedication

The new playground and swimming pool at Irene Kaufmann Settlement were opened yesterday.

Hundreds of eager children milled about he gates hours before the start of festivities. With the youngsters came parents and visitors, who found lots to commend in the various implements of fun and play, the exhibits of girls' and boys' handicraft, and the extensive program put on by the children themselves.

There was a flag raising, singing and cheering, and awards were made to the winners of the girls' and boys' handiwork and "better neighborhood" contests.

PRIZES DISTRIBUTED

The Midget, Junior and Secondary classes of boys engaged in a spirited swimming meet, girls of all ages staged track events, and even the grown-ups participated in races and games.

Prizes were distributed. The program closed with the presentation of "The Village Fair" by the children of the settlement.

EXTRAORDINARY POOL

The principal of safety has been cared for thoroughly. The tile throughout is non-slip, the waterline is flush with the edges, and the ladders of entrance and exit are recessed. The water is incessantly changed, filtered, chlorinated and heated to an unwavering temperature. There is an emergency lighting system.

The whole space has been accoustically treated, so that no echo can exist to drown out the cry of anyone calling for help. These features are unique to this pool, and make it an object of visit by architects from all sections of the country. The visitors yesterday were unanimous in pronouncing it a thing of beauty, which should be a joy forever to the children of the Settlement.

MILLION IN TAX ABATED HERE

An abatement to Frank S. Love, of Pittsburgh, of $514,219 for over assessment of income tax in 1918 was among the income tax refunds announced by the Bureau of Internal Revenue in Washington yesterday.

All abatements and refunds are for the year 1918. The bureau said that over assessments in each case were caused through determination that amounts which had been assessed as income upon further investigation had been determined to represent loans and were not taxable.

Armed American Police Awe British Writer

ALFRED P. PERRY is a young English newspaperman and holder of the Walter Hines Page Fellowship in Journalism for 1919. Under this fellowship, which was established some years ago by the English Speaking Union of the United States with the object of promoting fuller understanding of America in Great Britain through the medium of the press, British newspapermen are attached for periods amounting in all to one year to the staffs of leading papers in this country. During the three weeks which he will spend as a guest of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Mr. Perry will write his impressions of America and Pittsburgh from day to day.

By ALFRED P. PERRY

The American policeman always fascinates me. He is an old friend of boyhood's dreams come back to life. To see him in the flesh is like meeting Charlie Chaplin walking down the street, or taking tea with Mary Pickford. He is the hero of a hundred desperate battles and never-failing victim of the wildest farce.

At any moment expect him to leap up the side of a skyscrapper amid a hail of bullets from an incredibly ferocious villain on the ledge above; or to sprawl upon the sidewalk, neatly tripped by some moon-faced comedian as he dashes madly in the wrong direction.

And as he stands at the street-corner eyeing the passing throngs, with his night-stick dangling so suggestively from one finger, I wait instinctively for him to spring forward and club a suspect who will turn out, of course, to be the newly-appointed chief of police.

GUN DISPLAY AWES

For is not any wild adventure possible for one who wears a great six-shooter on his hip and a row of shining cartridges in his belt? Any self-respecting boy who has contributed his precious dimes to the prosperity of Hollywood knows it must be so.

Such interest may seem childish to Americans and unworthy of one grown to man's estate. The Londoner can only plead the novelty of what he sees as his excuse. For the "bobbies" of his own home town carry nothing more deadly than a wooden truncheon. And ever that is very rarely seen, because the British policeman is not allowed to draw his weapon unless he is about to use it on an offender's head.

SOME WEAR SWORDS

Most other European police, it is true are more formidably armed; and some even carry shining swords as well as pistols strapped in polished holsters to their belts. But they look so stiff and neat in their tight-buttoned uniforms that it seems impossible they could unbend so far as to draw their weapons in a public place. And their little automotics are mere toys beside the formidible guns of the American cops.

It may appear strange that the British police should be sent out to enforce the law armed only with a weapon which any schoolboy could fashion for himself. But the reason is simple. It does not pay the criminal to shoot. He has no temptation to "make sure" by firing first, because he knows that the officer who catches him is not armed. And he knows also that if he kills he stands achance of 20 to one of ending on the gallows.

For Scotland Yard is unpleasantly efficient and the courts let few fish slip through their fingers. So the safe-cracker caught in the act usually throws in his hand and "goes quietly," in the hope that his sentence will be less severe if he refrains from violence.

There was, however, one exciting incident in London some years before the war. A gang of foreign crooks, unused to British customs in this matter, had the bad taste to open fire on the "bobbies" who disturbed them at an inconvenient moment.

Highly scandalized, the police retired and informed the military authorities, having first set a guard around the house to catch the gunmen if they should try to bolt.

A platoon of Guards was promptly rushed to the scene and an astonished London heard the crack of rifles in its streets. Finally, a field gun was brought up which blew in the front of the crooks' stronghold and extinguished its desperate garrison. After that there was no further trouble with gunmen, home grown or imported.

FEW WORDS END ROWS

But as a rule the London bobby does not have to resort to anything stronger than moral suasion to preserve the peace. A few words are usually sufficient to nip a street row in the bud.

Two men square up to each other and a crowd gathers round to watch the fun. Then up strolls six feet of blue-clad dignity and the spectators draw aside to let the Law enter the ring. "Wot's all this about?" demands Robert severely.

"Well, 'e called me a b—— b——!" growls one gladiator sullenly.

"An' 'e called me a blinkin' thief!" retorts the other fiercely. "I'll knock 'is bloomin' block orf, I will!"

"No, you won't," says the Law firmly. "Now then, you two, 'op it! See?" Slowly the would-be warriors button up their coats and depart in opposite directions, muttering mutual promises of thick ears and black eyes to come, while the spectators go upon their several ways, regretful for the promised show which they have missed.

PUPILS PARADE IN WILKINSBURG

Colonial dames, cupids, Siamese twins, Indians, cowboys and other figures roamed the streets of Wilkinsburg last night as 1,000 or more children celebrated in honor of the borough's playground association.

Ending another season of successful playground activities, the parade of children moved over the principle streets of the borough just at twilight. Costumes, comic and tragic, showing months of thought and needlework by the wearers, were included in the array.

Nearly 50 prizes were awarded, Catherine Morrison as the rose girl, getting the best costume prize, with Norwin Lewis, cowboy on a pony, coming in second. The four playgrounds were represented, with Miss Harriet Fullerton and other teachers guiding the children.

Five judges reviewed the mimics. They were William Ewing, J. K. Townsend, Park Lambert, Mrs. J. G. Chalfant and Mrs. A. B. McMurray.

Six gold pieces, donated by Councilman William M. Turner, and a number of other prizes given by business men were presented the winners. Three bands furnished the music. The playgrounds festival was in charge of Mrs. R. Gilliland, director of playgrounds of the borough.

18 Roasting Ears At One Meal Wins Title

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 30.—Downing 18 large roasting ears, Ansom Moore, of Greensburg, won the title in a contest at the farm of George Eicher at Pleasant Hill, near here. Lack of opposition kept him from extending himself, the champion declared, intimating half a dozen additional ears could have just as well been stowed away.

Little Girl, Brother Bitten While Playing

Leona Tachna, 5, and her brother, Lawrence, 3, were bitten by a dog while playing near their home, 92 Roberts street, last night. Robert Blatt, of 73 Roberts street, owner of the dog, was ordered by police to tie up the animal for observation.

COUNCIL PLANS LEASE DETAILS

Several changes in a proposed understanding between the city and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for leasing of a tract of land west of the Manchester Bridge for use as a river-rail terminal, have been suggested by City Council. Councilman P. J. McArdle proposed that an arrangement be made so that the city could purchase the property from the railroad and Councilman Robert Garland suggested an agreement be drawn up whereby the city might lease the property but have the right to purchase the tract at any time within five years.

Other councilmen agreed to the proposition of Mr. Garland and City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt was instructed to aid Director Edward G. Lang of the Public Works Department in procuring such a lease.

PLANE IN FLIGHT TO TAKE MAIL

Government and aviation officials were in Youngstown, O., today to attend the inauguration of the new system of discharging and picking up mail by airplanes of the Pittsburgh-Cleveland route while in flight.

Clifford Ball, operator of the route, said early today that he expected about 10,000 pieces of mail would be handled by the planes making the East and West flight.

Mail from Pittsburgh for Youngstown will be put down on the flying field in that city, and Cleveland mail will be picked up without a stop being made by the plane, which was to leave Bettis Field at 3:30 p. m.

WIFE LEAPS FROM WINDOW TO ESCAPE HUSBAND

PLUNGES FROM SECOND FLOOR IN TERROR

Feared Her Mate Intended To Shoot Her, Is Claim; Man Is Held for Hearing

Mrs. Marie Walter, 39, leaped from a window of her apartment on the second floor of Allentown Turner Hall, 80 Allen avenue, early today when her husband threatened her with a revolver, according to testimony in Morals Court today.

She fell in Manton avenue and was taken to South Side Hospital suffering severe sprains and bruises. She was removed to her home later.

HUSBAND HELD

Mrs. Walter was unable to appear in Morals Court today. Her husband, Otto C. Walter, 42, janitor of the Turner hall for many years, was held over by Magistrate A. D. Brandon until tomorrow in custody of his counsel, Attorney Joseph J. Winslow.

Patrolman C. J. Everett testified that when summoned to the Walter home police found all doors locked. They were compelled to enter through a second-story window, he said. Walter, the patrolman testified, had a loaded revolver in his pocket.

Mrs. Walter told him, Everett testified, that her husband had threatened her with a revolver and she jumped, thinking he was about to shoot.

JUMPS HEAD FIRST

At her home today Mrs. Walter said her husband was jealous of her.

"I heard him talking loudly in the hallway and went out to see what was the matter," said Mrs. Walter. "He kept hiding a revolver behind his back.

"'Go to bed and keep the lights on,' he told me," said Mrs. Walter. "I went into my room, quietly raised the window and jumped out head first."

Three of five children, Arthur, 15, Frank, 13, and Harry, 12, were at home at the time, she said.

TROLLEY HITS CAR, 2 HURT

Mrs. M. B. Lappe, of 5508 Baywood street, and her chauffeur, John Fletcher, 50, suffered body bruises last night when the Lappe automobile was thrown against a beacon light at Fifth avenue and Beechwood boulevard. They were taken to Pittsburgh Hospital.

The accident occurred, police said, when an outbound Hamilton street car ran through a red light at that point and crashed into the Lappe machine, which was thrown against the beacon light. A passing motorist took the victims to the hospital.

SCHOOL'S PLAY TERM CLOSING

"Come on, Tarzans. Let's get 'em out o' there."

"Try an' do it. Us Eagles are better'n you any day."

These and similar cries have resounded about the usually quiet grounds of Arnold School on Braddock avenue during the summer months. They have been great days for the boys in attendance at the recreation school, but they are fast drawing to a close.

After Labor Day, the regular school sessions begin, and the swimming, baseball, mushball, tennis and like activities will be a thing of the past for another year.

The boys, under the supervision of S. P. Crago and B. Hanna, have romped and played without thought of reading, writing or arithmetic.

The personnel has been divided into two patrols, or divisions, which have been styled Tarzans and Eagles. There has been keen rivalry between the two, and that feature has helped make the vacation months enjoyable to the boys.

A fort, constructed by the youngsters, and graced by secret doors, has been a bone of contention, with the factions struggling almost daily for possession thereof.

REUNION AWAITS MEMORIAL

More than 1,000 members of the Custer family today agreed to postpone a reunion at the birthplace of Gen. George A. Custer at New Rumley, O., when they learned that the government intends to honor the memory of the famous Indian fighter with a $50,000 monument. Included in the extensive relationship are scores of persons in Western Pennsylvania.

Charles Custer Moore, of Mitchell, S. D., a member of the family and a representative of Gov. William J. Bulow, of South Dakota, announced the change in the reunion plans on a visit here today.

"The Custer family is one of the largest in the country," he said. "The general's great-grandfather served as a soldier in the Pennsylvania militia during the Revolution," said Moore. "About 100 years ago he settled in Harrison County, O., not far from Steubenville, and there Gen. Custer was born 90 years ago. Appropriations of $30,000 have been made for a birthplace monument, and this sum will be substantially increased. The family reunion will take place when ground is broken for the memorial."

3 TOWNS JOIN LIST HAVING AIR SIGNS

Markers to Guide Aviators Placed on Factory Roofs For Safety of Pilots Here

By MAX HENRICI

"Air-marking" of Western Pennsylvania towns continue apace.

Leechburg, Homestead and Dormont are the latest to join the movement to promote the safety of aviators by putting up signs giving the names of the town and indicating by an arrow the direction of the nearest airport.

Etna called attention today to the fact that it is already on the air map with a large sign on the roof of the Spang-Chalfant plant.

It is well for those doing this useful work to remember that the Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics, New York City, is awarding certificates of distinguished service to aviation for air markers conforming to government specifications.

SIGN RULES FURNISHED

What the government specifications are can be learned from the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Corporation, Oliver Building, which is co-operating with the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in this campaign. The corporation will be glad to give any information on the subject that may be desired.

George J. Hetrick, of the West Penn Power Company, writes: "Being more or less air-minded and wishing to be of help to those who are continuing along with the air game, we have started a movement in Leechburg to have the name of our town painted on the roof of one of our buildings."

The Homestead Kiwanis Club has obtained permission from the Mesta Machine Company to put up a sign on the roof of its plant. It will be completed by September 7, when a junior model aircraft tournament will be held at West Field, Homestead, under the auspices of the club.

DORMONT ON MAP

Dormont is getting on the air map with a sign in letters 10 feet high on the roof of the St. Clair Sales Company's garage on West Liberty avenue.

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph has received an appreciative letter on the "air-marking" campaign from A. C. Robinson, president of the Peoples Savings and Trust Company. Mr. Robinson writes:

"What you have published has also been helpful to the local aviation interests, such as the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Corporation, for it is essential as to the complete success of Pittsburgh as an aviation center that our local enterprises be encouraged."

Amateur Yeggs Tussle With Safe in Vain

Failing to open the door of a safe after battering off the combination, thieves who last night entered an Atlantic Refining gasoline station at 4708 Friendship avenue, departed after dragging the safe 15 feet to a door in a room in the basement.

Edward Auth, of 4976 Cypress street, attendant, told police that when he opened the station this morning he found a rear door had been forced, as well as one in the basement leading to the room in which the safe was kept. Nothing else in the place was touched, he said.

POLICE TRAIN FOR GUN MEET

Six members of the Pittsburgh police department are in Camp Perry, O., today, preparing for the national rifle and pistol matches, which will be held there next week. The Pennsylvania state police and highway patrol also have sent their best shots to the meet.

The Pittsburgh marksmen are City Detective Guy M. Daily, captain of the police team; William McCready and George Brubach, of the Bertillion department, and Patrolmen Clurg Shelton, O. H. Hopkins and Charles South.

Tomato Juice Cocktail.
Roast Leg of Lamb with Mint Sauce.
Creamed Potatoes. Scalloped Corn.
Lettuce with Thousand Island Dressing.
Peach Joy. Cake.

IT'S time to think of Sunday dinner again, and I trust you hadn't forgotten. Perhaps this menu will give you a few suggestions.

It has several things in it which are quite rare, for instance, the tomato juice cocktail. Just mix five ounces of tomato juice with one-half teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, two drops tobasco sauce, the juice of one-fourth a lemon, and a little salt and pepper, shake well with ice and serve.

THIS recipe for scalloped corn in individual ramekins is a noble one. Make a rich cream sauce, add chopped peppers, pimentos, two cups of corn and seven sliced hard-boiled eggs. Pour in ramequins, cover with crumbs and cheese mixed together. Bake 20 minutes at 400 degrees.

Oh, and by the way, here's a simple recipe for mint sauce: Wash the mint and chop it fine. To each cup of chopped mint add one-fourth cup sugar and one-fourth cup of vinegar and water, and let it stand overnight or for several hours. Place it over the heat and bring it to the boiling point. Serve with the lamb.

PEACH JOY is a very simple dessert. Order some peach ice cream from your favorite dealer. Dredge some fresh, sliced peaches in powdered sugar, place on top of individual servings of ice cream, and add a generous amount of whipped cream.

Served with cake, peach joy makes an appropriate and elegant climax to Sunday dinner.

JELLY making is a subject of varied interests. It will give you a broader viewpoint as to the thing you are doing if you take into consideration its various angles and possibilities.

When making fruit jellies, which may be defined generally as sugar-sweetened fruit juice jellied to a clear, firm product by the pectin in the fruit, remember there are great jelly making possibilities with meat and vegetable juices. These are jellied by gelatine either home prepared from veal or in convenient commercial packages. Agar-agar is also widely used to bring about the jelly condition of liquids, but is now used mostly for laboratory test and experiment work. Jellies made with meat stock are known as aspic and are as easily prepared as fruit jellies.

THE fruits low in natural pectin and all fruit juices or beverages may be made into delicious jelly by the use of commercially prepared pectin. Extra glasses of jelly are added to the gift shelf by ladling off the juice from fruit being prepared for canning or jam. Dip it out after the fruit and sugar have boiled five minutes. Add pectin after fruit has been removed from the fire. Pour it into hot sterilized glasses and cover hot jelly with hot paraffin.

Coffee, tea, mint flavored syrup, the juices from any canned or fresh fruit, maraschino cherries, bottled grape juice, loganberry juice or orange juice can be quickly made into delicious jellies.

EXTRACT JELLIES

Put six and one-half cups of sugar into a large saucepan. Add two and one-half cups of water and bring to the boiling point. As there is no fruit to cook and a small proportion of water, the pectin can be added at once, use a cupful or one small bottle for this quantity.

Stir constantly while adding the pectin. Replace over the flame and bring liquid to a brisk, full boil for 30 seconds. Remove syrup from the fire and allow it to cool a moment, then add desired extract flavoring and any color necessary. Use one teaspoon of any fruit flavor desired; almond, wintergreen, mint, orange or lemon. Coffee jelly is made the same way, using double strength coffee instead of two and one-half cups of water. The juice of one lemon added improves the flavor. Paraffin the jellies with hot paraffin while the jellies are hot. Add more paraffin when they are cold. This prevents surface mold.

In an attempt to increase a given jelly receipe, be sure to use a sufficiently large preserving kettle. The fruit syrup needs room to boil briskly without boiling over. Commercial pectin can be replaced in these recipes if desired by mixing into the fruits rich in natural pectin, as apples, currants, quince or grapes.

CHERRY JELLY—Three cups of cherry juice (one and one-half pounds), six and one-half cups of sugar (2¾ pounds) and one bottle of commercial pectin. Stem and crush about three pounds of ripe cherries. Do not pit. Add one half cup of water, stir until boiling, PRACTICAL housekeepers of today frequently face the problem of what to do with leftovers from previous meals.

About twice a week the home manager finds her refrigerator contains an array of odds and ends of food much too good to throw away and still not tempting enough to be served as they are.

TO serve a dish which has been reheated will perhaps spoil the entire effect of the meal. It is the cook's job to find ways and means of overcoming this drawback.

The well made meat or fish loaf comes nearest to a real roast of any leftover dish.

Either cooked liver, heart or kidney may be made into a meat loaf that has the added vitamin and blood building value offered by these special meats.

Substitute cooked beef, pork or lamb heart or liver for the meat in recipes for cooked meat loaf.

SAUSAGE LOAF is a complete luncheon in itself.

Mix one cup of sausage meat with one cup of canned tomatoes, two cups of cracker crumbs, one cup of cooked beans, one cup of mashed or diced potatoes, one egg, one tablespoon of bacon fat, one teaspoon of salt, one-fourth teaspoon of pepper and one teaspoon of safe or poultry seasoning.

Mix thoroughly and bake forty minutes. This quantity will make twelve servings.

Fish of all kinds may be made into delicious rolls or cannelons.

A simple method is to prepare a white sauce and make the loaf with a blended white sauce foundation. Any cooked meat or fish, vegetables and cooked eggs can be used instead of the cooked sausage meat called for in this recipe.

SURPRISE CHEESE LOAF—Peel and slice three tomatoes. Cut the top from one small loaf of bread, scoop out the center and save for bread crumbs. Brush the inside of the loaf with salad oil or melted butter, place in the oven and heat until brown and somewhat crisp. In the loaf put a layer of sliced tomatoes, sprinkle with salt, cover with one cup of diced, cooked carrots, one cup cooked veal, diced, one onion thinly sliced and a little chopped parsley. Cover this with two hard-cooked eggs, sliced, add remainder of tomatoes, sprinkle with salt and parsley and a dash of paprika. Sprinkle lightly with buttered crumbs. Then add a layer of grated cheese. Place in a shallow dish and bake in a moderate oven for 20 minutes or until the tomatoes are tender. Serve in the dish in which it was baked in order not to break the loaf in removing it. Garnish with sprigs of parsley and sections of tomatoes.

Meat Contains Large Quantity of Protein

In Summer, cold meats served with salads an appetizing dish. But meat should not be served alone.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.
Former Health Commissioner of New York City, United States Senator from New York.

FOR growing children, as well as grownups, it is important to have a sufficient amount of proteins in our daily diet. We need some protein every day to make up for the wear and tear on the muscles. Cells and tissues must be built up and kept active.

Meat is most important for the high value of its protein content. It contributes to the body, too, its stimulating effects of flavor and extracts.

Every homemaker must think of the family dietary needs more than ever during the warm summer weather. Nothing is better on a hot day than some form of cold cuts, served with a delicious vegetable salad. Cold lamb, beaf, veal, tongue, chicken or turkey as well as different varieties of fish, are most palatable when served with salad, or a vegetable plate.

In warm weather children are so apt to want iced drinks, various sweets and fruits, that the appetite is taken away for the more nutritious foods. But it must be remembered that they, as well as grown ups, need something more than delicacies in their summer diet, quite as much as in their winter diet—they must have muscle-building food.

Everyone needs four or five ounces of protein every day. By including meat once a day we can best meet this need. Of course, one may take milk or eggs to make up for the lack of a meat diet, but few adults are willing to drink sufficient milk to meet the protein need.

Meat is somewhat acid-forming in its tendency and therefore it is quite necessary that other foods be eaten with it. Lean meats should be eaten by persons inclined to be over-stout.

I do not have the prejudice some physicians have against meat. In my opinion, if taken temperately, meat is one of the best means of getting the necessary protein.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Mrs. Lawson, C. H. Lysle Marry

THERE'S been quite a rush these last few days for those girls who want to be late August brides. Of course September 1 will not be the end of interesting weddings. Rather there'll be more than ever in number, and many just as important in social realms as several that have taken place this week.

Word has come to us from Mrs. Walter H. Duff, of Flushing, L. I., of the marriage of her cousin, Mrs. Gertrude Wood Lawson, of Woodland road, daughter of the late W. Dewees Wood, to Charles H. Lysle, of Fifth avenue, which took place yesterday in New York.

Mrs. Lysle and her first husband, Charles T. Lawson, were divorced in 1922, I recall.

AND August will end, as far as weddings are concerned, with the marriage tomorrow of Barbara Talbot-Peterson, daughter of the Harold Talbot-Petersons, of Hobart street, and A. Evan Gwynne, of New York, son of the late Abram E. Gwynnes.

The ceremony will take place in the home of Barbara's aunt, Mrs. Robert Bunker Gardner, of Park avenue. As her only attendant Barbara will have Mrs. Maude Imlay, of New York, as matron of honor, and Mr. Gwynne will have his brother, Henry Collins Gwynne, as his best man.

A reception, I understand, will follow the simple ceremony. After a wedding trip the young Gwynnes will live in New York.

Barbara is a member of one of the oldest families in Pennsylvania. She is of Quaker descent on her mother's side of the family tree. Her maternal grandfather was Robert Bunker Gardner, of Nantucket, Mass., and she is a granddaughter too of the late Capt. Peter Talbot-Peterson, who was a member of Trinity House, London.

Mr. Gwynne is a nephew of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, and of Mrs. William E. Shepherd, of New York. In 1921 he was graduated from Brown University. He is also a former member of Squadron A.

HOME from Sagamore Island, Lake George, and from Spring Lake are the Sidney Heckerts, of Penn avenue, and their daughters, Margaret and Frances Heckert.

And have you heard that the J. Reuben Roses and their daughters, Ruby and Dorothy Rose, are back from Estes Park and Denver, Col.

And that Hester Murtland Lyon, daughter of the Prescott Lyons will be back this week from Keewaydin Camp in Aly, Vt.?

And that the Robert A. Applegates and their children came back Tuesday from the Iron City Fishing Club in Canada?

THE marriage of Miss Marie Margaret De Loche, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Louis De Loche, of Hawthorne avenue, Crafton, and Amos William Hardie, son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Hardie, of Stowe street, Ingram, took place Saturday evening in the De Loche home with the Rev. H. M. Eagleson performing the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, John Brua De Loche, was attended by her sister, Miss Loretta De Loche, as maid of honor. Joseph R. Kelly, of Ingram, was Mr. Hardie's best man.

After an eastern motor trip, Mr. and Mrs. Hardie will be at home on Hawthorne avenue, Crafton.

THE Sample-Crawford reunion will be held Monday at the Epworth League Home, Bakerstown. Mrs. C. L. Newell is secretary of the association and Ira C. Crawford is president.

MISS CLAIRE REESE, of Lincoln avenue, Bellevue, will entertain at bridge in her home Tuesday afternoon in honor of four prospective brides. Sharing the honors will be Miss Mary S. Long, whose engagement to William Ryland, of Raleigh, N. C., was announced recently; Miss Helen Dillman, whose wedding to William Walker, of Bellevue and Cumberland, will take place Saturday of next week; Miss Catherine R. Booth who has set September 9 as the date for her marriage to Victor H. Guy, of Ben Avon Heights and Salem, O., and Miss Louise Gardiner, finance of Alec Gilliland, who will select a fall date for her marriage.

MR. AND MRS. P. L. SLOAN, of Youngstown, O., announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Virginia Hileman, to Victor R. Leeper, son of Mrs. Mareline Leeper, of York, which took place in Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, Youngstown, on August 17. The Rev. N. M. Hamacker, pastor of the church, read the service and H. H. Reese played the wedding march.

The bride, who was given in marriage by Mr. Sloan, wore a rose-beige transparent velvet gown with uneven hemline and rhinestone trimming, with a large picture hat of horsehair braid to match, and carried yellow tea roses and lilies of the valley. Her only ornament was a platinum pin, a gift of the bridegroom. Miss Betty Showecker, also of Youngstown, who was bridesmaid and only attendant, wore beige chiffon, with hat to match, and carried pink roses and garden flowers. David Robertson was best man.

The ceremony was supplemented by a reception at the Poland Country Club for the two families and intimate friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Leeper are motoring through the East and after September 15 will be at home in Youngstown. Mrs. Leeper formerly lived in Braddock.

MR. AND MRS. H. W. LOWE, of Glenmore avenue, Dormont, announce the marriage of their niece, Miss Mary Eleanor McKelvey, to Edward Charles Frank, which took place Tuesday in the First Presbyterian Church. Mr. and Mrs. Frank will be at home after September 10 on Newburn avenue, Mt. Lebanon. They are now traveling in the East.

* * *

MRS. J. STEWART EDWARDS and son Billy left last night for their home in Orlando, Fla., after spending the summer with Mrs. Edwards' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Roeser, of Baum boulevard. Miss Betty Roeser accompanied her sister and will remain in Florida until early spring.

FROM MARTIAL ET ARMAND

Exemplifying the New Ensemble in Matched Color

Sketched in Paris

THE coat in this costume is of dark bottle-green broadcloth, trimmed in ermine. The knotted scarf collar, of the same fur, may be worn with loose ends, hanging straight in front. The dress is of matching heavy crepe, designed along original new lines. Note the bands indicating the waistline—one of the latest Parisian style novelties—and the small bow knots fastening the tunic.

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Aug. 29.—The band plays an important part in the August fashion pageant. Bands are imposed at the waist to indicate a normal or raised waistline, and also at the knees to emphasize the flaring skirt, contrasting with the sheath-like bodice that is generally accepted as the outstanding mode for the coming season.

The ensemble is still with us, both for day and evening wear. Many of the costumes designed for early autumn wear have dresses of faille or crepe exactly matching in color the accompanying coat of broadcloth or velvet. This is quite an important fashion note, and it is expected that it will find general acceptance, especially by those women who are loath to surrender the delight and comfort of the ensemble.

DARK green and various shades of brown ranging from beige to mahogany stand out as the favorite colors for daytime wear.

We have therefore selected for your scrutiny today an ensemble of dark green broadcloth and crepe that has been voted one of the high-lights of the autumn collection of Martial et Armand. At the left is sketched the dark bottle-green broadcloth coat, which is richly trimmed with ermine. A noval note is, the knotted scarf collar of the fur, which may be worn untied, with the ends hanging straight in front.

THE lovely dress shown at right is of matching heavy crepe, and is very new and original in cut. A series of small bow knots fasten the bodice and tunic at the side of the front. The tunic is somewhat circular and decidedly longer in the back. The slightly raised waistline is indicated by the series of superimposed bands at that point.

Those that seek the novel and new in their dresses would do well to give this model careful attention, as it reflects the very latest trend.

LEGION HEARS DRAFT PLEA

SCRANTON, Pa., Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Routine business, which included committee reports covering the past year's activities; addresses of welcome, and the report of the convention rules committee, marked the opening session of the Pennsylvania department convention of the American Legion here yesterday, in addition to the address by Edward E. Spafford, of New York, past national commander.

Mr. Spafford made a plea that members of the legion align themselves solidly behind the movement for a universal draft act to be placed in operation in the event of another war.

John J. Deller, Pittsburgh, and L. Steele Clark, Cherry Tree, are opponents in the struggle for the post of vice commander in the western district.

State Commander Charles A. Gebert, Tamaqua, called the opening session to order. Nearly a thousand delegates from the 666 posts in the state were in attendance.

George A. Smith, Somerset, was elected to succeed William S. Yeager, Girard, as grand chef de gare of La Societe Des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux.

DEBT COMPACT AID TO PEACE

THE HAGUE, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Statesmen of Europe, assembled here for the conference of the governments on reparations, today believed that in agreement on the Young committee's reparations plan to replace the Dawes plan they had done much for the future peace of the Continent and the world.

The various national delegations, faced with but one more plenary session, tomorrow, were more intent on departure than on preliminaries to tomorrow's closing session. Some of the national representatives who must go to Geneva next week for the assembly of the League of Nations, left here today.

The general atmosphere here, which was strained almost to the breaking point, was one of relief that the days of crisis were past. There was satisfaction over achievement of that for which the conference primarily was convened, that is approval of the Young plan, created by the committee of national financial experts in its four months Paris session.

Agreement on the plan in the end brought certain definite gains to each. Mr Snowden goes back to London with arrangements for reduced payments in kind from Germany, and with 80 per cent of the additional reparations annuities he sought from Germany guaranteed him.

The German delegation, headed by Dr. Gustav Stresemann, will take to Berlin an allied agreement to evacuate the last of the Rhineland occupied areas by June 30 next year, with the creditor nations bearing a proportionate share of the occupation costs after September 1.

GIRLS AWARDED TO MOTHER

Mrs. Nellie Johnston, of 1419 Kinmore road, Akron, O., was awarded custody of her 7-year-old twin daughters, Margaret and Loretta, by an order of Judge Ambrose B. Reid in court today.

Mrs. Johnston brought habeas corpus proceedings against the girls' grandmother, Mrs. Ella Johnston, 942 Penn avenue, Turtle Creek, when the latter refused to give up the children, the mother contended.

At a hearing last week the mother testified she and her husband had parted a year ago and he had taken the twins to his parents' home. Four months ago he was killed by a fall and she was not notified, she said. The court made the order after receiving a report that the mother had employment and could properly care for her children.

'GOBS' ESCAPE FROM SUB

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Twenty-six officers and blue jackets came out of the after hatch of the submerged submarine S-4 this morning and shot to safety through the waters of the Thames River with the use of the navy's new invention, the "lung," in the first instruction class working under actual conditions at the submarine base.

Lieut. C. B. Momsen, inventor of the "lung," and one or two others previously had used the apparatus with success, first at Key West, Fla., and then at the submarine base. But today marked the first series of escapes from a submerged submarine of an entire class of officers and sailors under actual conditions.

DAINTY FOODS BEAUTY AID

With the slim movement now a well-established fact among the fair sex, light foods are the prevailing favorites. Meats, potatoes, pies and rich puddings have been sidetracked for salads, light vegetables, fruits, flavored gelatins, ice creams and the more delicate cakes. Brillat-Savarin, famous French gastronome, foresaw the dietary needs of the ladies. He said among other things that "succulent and dainty dishes will give the eyes a fine sparkle, the skin a lovely bloom, the flesh more firmness, thus keeping away wrinkles, beauty's worst enemies. Those who know the art of eating, other things being equal, are proportionately 10 years younger than those who scorn it."

Thieves Loot Safe In Penn Theater

Robbers broke off the combination of a safe in the office of the William Penn Theater, Federal and Isabella streets, last night and escaped with yesterday's receipts, the management reported to police today. No estimate of the amount was given. Police believe the thieves may have remained after the movie last night and later entered the office on the second floor where the safe was kept.

Zeppelin Lady Hay's Home

burst into flames in a second, and the only blessing that it would all have been so sudden that we should not have known a thing about it. As I took off my white tulle party dress, laid aside my silver slippers and my ermine cloak, I felt very much like Cinderella, whose party ended, too, at midnight. So it was all over—that glorious day. "Just too bad," smiled Commander Rosendahl, as I passed through the salon in my day dress carrying my typewriter to the table.

Lots to Do

There was plenty to do until nearly 4 in the morning. Karl von Wiegand could not find his typewriter, which had been mislaid in the Zep during the day at the mast, and as he cannot use mine, which has a continental keyboard, not the standard, he had to dictate his work to me. Rohendahl was up, and one or two others, but most of them just rolled into bed the moment they saw the last of Los Angeles.

The next day there was a funny "deadness" about everything. Three passengers had descended, leaving the salon a bit emptier. Mostly all the passengers slept late, and when they did get up they were quiet and tired. In the evening most of them slipped away to bed as early as they could. No water to wash with at night, any more than there was in the morning. I got a little from Steward Kubis, but not much. Boiling water for tea or coffee has always been liquid of rare value on the Zeppelin—as the electric stove is dependent upon the generator which heats it just so much and no more. Now it was hard to get a drop of water to wash one's hands, and I had not any Eau de Cologne along. Mine was finished and I forgot to buy more in Los Angeles, so Mr. Kauder loaned me his. No one minded about the shortage of water, in fact it is on record that one of our "most prominent members," when told there was no water for washing, said "Thank God." We are still trying to fathom what he really means.

Presents, Prayers

Every one was supremely happy with stacks of mail to open and peruse. Very few of us have ever before had such a big personal post bag. They include everything from little gifts tucked away between sheets of note paper, pressed flowers, handkerchiefs, photographs, to prayers written for our recitation in special circumstances, hymns dedicated to our use, praise, requests for everything from autographs to free rides in the Zep, letters from unknown relations, manuscripts from aspiring but unrecognized authors soliciting help, to countless begging letters. Some are in English, others in German and foreign languages.

One of the nicest I have seen is addressed to Sir Hubert Wilkins from Japan. The sender "takes the liberty of sending a letter, though I have confidence that you are busily engaged." He has confidence, too, that the Zep will pass over Japan in August "as it was seen over New York City last year" (shades of our vaunted records). With true Japanese courtesy the writer explains that "though it is very selfish" he wants Sir Hubert's autograph "on the back of your name card."

We all enjoyed our mail, and feel most grateful to the unknown correspondents, who have given us a few minutes of their precious time.

The funniest thing that happened yesterday (Wednesday), was passing over Kansas City. Whistles blowing, crowds waving, aeroplanes escorting us—a reception to bring tears to our eyes. We were all at the windows, but kept them shut, only Perckhammer, the photographer, leaned right out to show himself to a plane passing near—Perckhammer with his swollen cheek heavily tied up in one of the washing towels (for which we find no use now there is no water) looking for all the world as if he had been terribly mauled in some fight.

"Pull him in," cried Eckener from the luncheon table, "they will think we have fights on board the Zep."

Everyone but Perckhammer himself is wondering whether the Kansas City polit mistook us for a hospital ship and Perckhammer never minds what people think. If he did, he never would have indelibly ornamented the seat of his khaki pants with the Zeppelin post office stamp.

Kansas City, Davenport, Chicago, Detroit. A quartet of amazing welcomes, and amazing cities for those who have never seen an American city from the air. Gerville Reache, the handsome Parisian of the party, has, up to now, only known America through the Americans who come to Paris. He speaks no English, only Frenc.., so expresses himself picturesquely in his own lovely language.

Zep as Peacemaker

"Kansas City—So that is Kansas City," he mused aloud dreamily. Often have I, in my role of newspaperman, examined the visitors' books of the great hotels in Paris and seen names of unknown celebrities who arrived from Kansas City. The world is after all so small. Now I know Kansas 'est bien, tres bien." He looked 'round and asked me where the cowboys were.

Chicago was tremendous. It took our breath away and nearly set discord loose in the airship arguing for and against the fact that it was the greatest reception we have had anywhere, where we have not come down, but only passed over.

Did we ever get tired or blase of those mighty welcomes? I should say not. First of all, we know how genuine they were, and know that they came from the hearts of the American people. Secondly, it was emotioning to be coming home from such a record breaking round-the-world flight and be welcomed in such a manner. One of the newspaper girls in Los Angeles asked me how it felt when the people crowded round, wanted to shake hands, and all that. One of the press men asked the same sort of question, but in a more general way. I never thought about it until then. I just enjoyed it because the whole thing represents so much good will and kindness. Curiosity as well, of course. Curiosity killed the cat, as we know, but it often urges humanity to enterprise and to discovery.

I love people—I'm interested in them and mind a great deal what happens to people, even those I know but slightly. I think that it is perfectly wonderful of people to be so kind and so friendly, and only wish every time, that I could thank each one separately for their words and thoughts.

The man asked the question in a different way. He said, "What do you think of this—America turning out to cheer old adversaries?"

I told him that I considered the Zep is fulfilling the mission as peacemaker between all nations, not only former adversaries; that America is proving herself what the world believes her to be—noble, chivalrous and generous; that the admission of a change of opinion, whether in a nation or an individual, is a proof of strength of character and bigness; that, above all, America is a sporting nation, a nation of sportsmen, and as such I had not regarded the matter as unusual or even worthy of remark. It is natural.

Strange the questions people ask me, revealing more of the workings of their own minds than they ever could get of mine in an interview. I was most interested to see Detroit from the air—in fact, to see it at all. That is one of the big cities of America which I want to visit.

Hail Los Angeles

The girl who sent me two mascots for the trip lives in Detroit. Her name is Milly Smith. I have never met her and do not know who she is, but I wondered if she saw us this evening. Again everyone was more than astonished—I might say moved—to see such a huge city laid out before their eyes. Dr. Eckener, who was just eating some caviar on bread for his dinner, said:

"I never saw such tremendous cities as there are in America."

Steward Kubis, who was leaning over Lieut. Jack Richardson's shoulder, was proud to be able to maintain his assertion that Berlin is much larger than Detroit, which it is, being the fourth largest city in the world.

Cleveland provided the real excitement, however, for the Los Angeles was there. We peered through the darkness to make out her graceful silver form and then found that we were passing right over her. Wild Indians could hardly have made more noise than Commander Rosendahl and Lieut. Richardson at the familiar sight.

If the Hearst-Zeppelin-Round-the-World Flight has been like a dream, it seems just as much a dream that we landed again in Lakehurst. It seems to me that so much should have happened in the time that we were going around the world. I can't imagine that things will be the same. They might not be, of course, if we had circled the globe by steamship and train in some nine or 10 weeks.

Ambition Won

But three weeks! It is nothing, and yet we have spanned the globe, and achieved, I suppose, the limit, or one of them, of man's ambition.

MEINE FACES CUBS TODAY

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Portland's Streak Ends.

BUC SHOWING CREDIT TO EX-PILOT

ROGERS HORNSBY, the main gun in the Cub attack, was one of the visiting players to express great surprise at the announcement of Donie Bush's resignation as manager of the Pirates. Hornsby, like Manager Joe McCarthy, Coach Jimmy Burke and other prominent figures in the Bruin outfit, ranks Bush among the best pilots in the country and says Donie did not receive the credit he deserved for the showing he made with the Buccaneer crew in this year's race.

Rogers Hornsby

"In my opinion Bush did remarkably well to put the Pittsburgh club where it is in the pennant standing," said McCarthy's star hitter. "I don't see how in the world the fact that the Pirates failed to win the pennant this year can be charged up as reflecting upon his managerial ability. On the contrary, it is a distinct credit to Bush that the club is even as high as second place. Personally, I am surprised that it has done that well.

"INSTEAD of being a disappointment, therefore, the showing of the Pirates this season has been really better than any one had any license to expect. In the spring, no one figured it to get anywhere, at any rate not anywhere higher than third.

"Only the fact that young Bartell stepped in there at shortstop and held the club together enabled the Bucs to stay out in front for a time, but the absence of a regular with the ability of Glenn Wright to knock in runs was bound to tell in the end.

"IT WAS not surprising that the team slumped. In my judgment it never had any right to be up there.

"Instead of having the season charged against him as a failure, Bush ought to be given a lot of credit for landing the club in a higher position than the one to which its strength on paper entitled it."

JESS PETTY'S present pitching gait, if maintained throughout the remainder of the season, probably will bring about a change in any plans the Pittsburgh club chiefs may have tentatively formed to dispose of him before the arrival of another campaign. During the first part of the race, Petty came so close to being a total loss that there appeared to be no chance of his remaining here in 1930. He lost six of the first games that he pitched to a decision, and was knocked out of almost every event in which he started.

Jess Petty

BUT during the last month there has been a marked change for the better in Petty's work. Since the abuse heaped upon him by some of the fans early in the season was turned into encouragement, the veteran left-hander has been getting far better results. When he defeated the Cubs yesterday and thus gave Jewel Ens a perfect record for his fourth victory in the last five games and his sixth win in his last eight contests.

But for errors behind him in his game in New York last Sunday, Petty would have won five in a row and seven of his last eight. His present clip is a pleasing change from his poor stride early in the season. Evidently the former Brooklyn forkhander is not going to turn out a bad bargain after all.

ONE of the season's longest winning streaks in the minor leagues was ended Wednesday, when the Portland club of the Pacific Coast loop was defeated by Los Angeles. Prior to that reverse the Portland team had won 16 games in a row.

Two former Pirates figured prominently in the drive of the Beavers, Roy Mahaffey being one of the pitchers to win steadily and Mack Hillis putting up a fine game at second base.

John L. Hernon

WHEN does the outdoor season end, and when does the indoor season open? That's the question with which Commissioner Havey J. Boyle has been wrestling since the conflicting claims of promoters in this district forced him to draw a line between the two seasons. According to the Moose Temple Club, the indoor period opens September 6; according to Jim McGirr, of McKeesport, it opens September 12; and according to Manager John L. Hernon, of Motor Square Garden, it opens September 23. All three clubs proceeded to arrange indoor shows for those dates.

AS FAR as the Moose Temple and McKeesport promoters were concerned there was no objection to the dates they selected, but a possible conflict loomed up when the owners of the North Braddock bowl contended that the outdoor season should continue until September 23, applied for by Motor Square Garden, but also the following Monday night, September 30, on which date Motor Square planned to hold its second show.

Commissioner Boyle finally settled the argument by effecting a sort of fifty-fifty compromise between the North Braddock promoters and those of the East End arena. Each club will alter its schedule to the extent of one week. The North Braddock bowl's closing show will be held on September 23 instead of September 30, and Motor Square will not open until September 30 instead of September 23. The decision was based on the time at which Motor Square opened last year.

WHILE the "ash-can derby" is being run at the Bridgeville speedway on Labor Day afternoon, together with some novel side features and the "triple A" windup, the longest dirt track automobile race of the current though fast-fading tri-state season will be decided at Butler.

A crack field will race over a route of 150 miles, which means that on the half-mile track the drivers will be forced to cover 300 laps.

THIS will be the first time that the 150-mile distance has been attempted by racers of the dirt tracks, previous events in this section having been at 50, 75 and 100 miles. Ebensburg opened the 1929 campaign on Memorial Day with a race of 100 miles, and Monongahela, Tarentum, Washington and Warren, Pa., have held other century events. At Apollo, New Kensington and Arden Downs, 50-mile speed tests have been held. The promoters of the Butler race have set a time limit of 3 hours and 20 minutes.

ANY lingering doubt as to the championship qualities of Kid Chocolate were just about dispelled by the achievement of the Cuban Negro in winning the decision over Al Singer in their 12-round bout in New York last night. Singer is not a champion, but, barring the one occasion when he was knocked out by Ignacio Fernandez, he has shown so much class as to indicate that only a champion can beat him.

Kid Chocolate

Chocolate, therefore, though he won no title by his victory last night, must be accepted as possessing every championship requisite by those few who have until now declined to recognize him as a throne possibility. His triumph over Singer was all the more an attest of his uncommon ability by reason of the fact that he gave away almost four pounds, quite a difference where small fighters are concerned, and won out by an uphill fight over the latter part of the distance. It is pretty safe to predict that Chocolate, who easily scaled under the class limit of 126 pounds yesterday, will defeat Andre Routis without trouble and become the first Negro to hold the world featherweight championship since George Dixon lost it to Terry McGovern on June 23, 1900.

MISS WATTLES, MISS WRIGHT BEATEN

CLEVELAND, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Mrs. O. S. Hill, of Kansas City, and Mrs. Gregg Lifur, of Los Angeles, swept into the final of the western women's golf championship today, the former defeating Miss Peggy Wattles, of Buffalo, 1 up; Mrs. Lifur defeating her home town rival, Kathleen Wright, 1 up.

ROSS LEADS IN SWIM

TORONTO, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Three hundred yards in front of his nearest rival, Clarence A. Ross, of Brooklyn, was leading the pack at the end of the first two-mile lap of the Wrigley-Canadian national exhibition 15-mile swim today. In second place was Lyle S. Hubbard, Toledo, O., who was 10 yards ahead of Norman Ross, Chicago. Clarence Ross' time for the first lap was 51 minutes 26 seconds.

A crowd of 25,000 persons viewed the spectacle.

According to the official report, the water registered 59 degrees outside the breakwater, and 60 degrees inside, appreciably warmer than the temperatures of the last two days, which necessitated two postponements.

Ross was 300 yards ahead and still going strongly at a 60-stroke a minute clip at the end of four miles. Lyle Hubbard, of Chicago, was in second place with Norman Ross, of Chicago, in third place, 15 yards behind. Ross had lapped 30 swimmers and many had withdrawn at the start of the third lap.

Byron Summers, of San Francisco, who had been swimming in fourth place, failed to reach the end of four miles among the first dozen, while Harold Florence, of Brooklyn, and John W. McMahon, of New London, Conn., previously in fifth and sixth places, respectively, also were absentees.

Marvin Nelson, of Fort Dodge, Ia., moved up into fourth place with George Young and Ernest Vierkoetter, two of the favorites, swimming 50 yards apart in that order behind him. Ruth Tower and Mrs. Armstrong, two women entries, were among the trailers, about 20 places back.

British Ring Chief To Protect Baldock

LONDON, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—The has decided to send Charles F. Donmall, its secretary, to the United States "to look after the interests of the board and of Baldock" on the occasion of the match between Teddy Baldock, English titleholder, and Al Brown, Panama Negro, for the world bantamweight championship.

Baldock is now en route to New York, where, on September 17, he is to battle Brown, the "defending bantamweight champion of the world in the eyes of the New York state athletic commission."

Wrigley Ontario Marathon on Today

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 30.—(INS.)—With the temperature of the water in Lake Ontario at 60 to 61 degrees, officials of the Wrigley 15-mile swim announced this morning that the race will be "run."

Swimmers entered from all over the country were out early "warming up." Conditions today were ideal in every way.

TOMORROW—BAKE YOURSELF A PIECE OF ICE.

M'TIERNAN, BUNTACK BAN LIFTED

Buck M. Tiernan, Swissvale ring star, and Bunny Buntack, his manager, are ready to resume their climb toward a possible boxing championship. McTiernan and Buntack have been "on the outside looking in" for more than a month, but their troubles evaporated late yesterday when Boxing Commissioner Havey J. Boyle lifted the indefinite suspension under which he had placed them, and restored them to good standing in ring circles.

The Buntack-McTiernan suspension dates back to July 8, when McTiernan was to have fought Andy DiVodi, of New York, in a return bout of 10 rounds in a double windup show at the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock. The idea was to give the fans an even break after they had watched two previous main bouts end in fouls. Tony Herrera fouled Phil Goldstein in the main go of the July 1 show and the McTiernan-DiVodi affair, on July 8, ended in the second round with the New York acrobat squirming on the floor yelling foul.

McTiernan was sick in bed from the effects of poison tonsils when the second DiVodi bout was in the making, and after Buntack closed for the bout he found that Buck was under care of a physician and would be unable to fight for at least a month. He then told the Meyers brothers and the boxing commissioner of his plight, but it seemed that both parties thought that Bunny was trying to pull a fast one over on them in breaking the contract, and the "set down" followed.

So with everything patched up, McTiernan is all ready to go again, and eager to get back into action against the best available opponents.

Bobby Burns, of Swissvale, a national amateur bantamweight champion in 19[illegible] has cast his lot under the Buntack guidance and as did his stable mate, Buck McTiernan, Bobby should advance to the front ranks. Burns has natural boxing ability, and is very aggressive. One of the boys Burns defeated as an amateur is Eddie Reed, Negro lightweight, who recently lost an unpopular decision to Johnny Mellow at McKeesport. Al Rowe and Jimmy Rapaport are Philadelphia fighters to whom Bobby handed a lacing in the national tournament at Philly in 1926, where he won the championship.

And Bobby's pro record is one deserving of much praise. The new addition to the Buntack stable has lost but one money fight in 14 starts.

McTiernan also is a former amateur champion, winning the national junior welterweight title in 1927 at Cincinnati.

FIGHT ON COAST

Buck Lawless meets Young Corbett in a 10-round melee on the Pacific coast tonight. The eastern section of Pennsylvania gets plenty of action tonight when George Courtney, the Oklahoma cowboy, takes on the rugged Lou Scozza, of Buffalo, in a 10-round bout at Scranton. Scozza holds two decisions over Maxie Rosenbloom.

Johnny Dawson Not to Play In Amateur

DEL MONTE, Cal., Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Formal withdrawal of one of the outstanding contenders for the national amateur golf championship, Johnny Dawson, of Chicago, was announced last night.

Dawson's withdrawal caused something of a sensation because it avoided possible issue over his amateur status, as a result of his business connection with a New York sporting goods firm.

BOBBY JONES SHOOTS 71

DEL MONTE, Cal., Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Bobby Jones changed pastures yesterday, but kept his golfing up to its usual trim style. The master of the game cracked par on the difficult ocean-bound Cypress Point Country Club course for a 71, one under par. He was practicing for the national amateur championship, which will be played at the Pebble Beach course September 2 to 7.

The national amateur champion from Atlanta paired with Francis Ouimet, who turned in a card of 75, three over par; Roger Lapham, vice president of the United States Golf Association; Norman Macbeth, Jr., and Louis Lapham.

Three birdies on the outgoing nine with a five, one over par, on the first hole, netted Bobby a 35. Coming in, he slipped over par once in the eleventh, where his putt hit a ball mark and jumped to one side of the cup.

ROLLY HEMSLEY SHOWS SPEED ON PATHS

The speed of Rolly Hemsley and the fielding cleverness of Stewie Clarke played heavy roles in the Pittsburgh victory over the Cubs yesterday. Hemsley scored an important tally in the fifth when he sprinted over on a close margin in front of Hazen Cuyler's throw.

Cuyler is one of the game's best throwers and when Bartell sent a fly to his territory with one out in the fifth, a lot of us figured that Hemsley ran a long risk in being pegged out as he sprinted from the bag. There had to be a break in favor of the Buccos, regardless of Hemsley's speed, and the home boys won this smile of Lady Luck.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

As they set themselves for their fourth clash with the Cubs, the Pirates today realized they were not accomplishing anything in regard to the National League flag, but they figured they were having a merry time while prolonging the suspense of the Galloping Bears. And there was another consideration that was quite serious—the Freebooters by winning as often as possible can get closer to the second-place honors and the money that goes with the runner-up position.

Owning three spectacular victories in a row over the Cubs, the Oaklanders were eager for more action this afternoon. Manager Ens, who has made a brilliant start in his career of major league leadership, stated today that Heinie Meine would be the pitcher of the day for the Freebooters. The lanky right-hander with the musical name opened the season in a brilliant manner, but later his slab work fell off in efficiency. Ens, however, thinks the St. Louis Dutchman has the stuff to win and he is not alone in his belief. Boss McCarthy probably will use Guy Bush or Charley Root on the slab.

MAY USE FLAGSTEAD

Owing to the injuries sustained by Adam Comorosky and Fred Brickell, Pilot Ens may have to throw Ira Flagstead in left field today. Comorosky did not start yesterday, owing to an infected leg. The trouble grew out of a "strawberry" which the Polish flyer picked up while sliding.

Brickell wasn't in the contest long before he hurt his leg in fielding a double off Hack Wilson's bat. The Wichita speedboy could not finish the round, Commy going to his post in the middle of the inning. If the latter is able to play today he will stay at the post, but Flagstead is all set for duty.

The Bruins will swing into battle

BOBBY BURNS BUNNY BUNTACK BUCK M'TIERNAN

Bunny Buntack, of Braddock, recently added another former national amateur boxing champion to his stable of fighters when he signed to manage Bobby Burns, of Swissvale, national amateur bantamweight champion in 1926. Buck McTiernan, also of Swissvale, and national junior welterweight champion in 1927, came to the front as a pro under Buntack's guidance last winter. In July, McTiernan had his tonsils removed and he and Buntack were suspended. Yesterday the ban was lifted, and the "family" is a happy one.

STOWE CIVICS 2-1 VICTORS

Stowe Civics continued their walk towards the City League leadership last evening when they set down the North Side Civics by a 2-1 score. The victors bunched their hits in the third inning to put across the winning tally.

In the Greater Pittsburgh League Edgewood defeated North Bessemer, 4 to 3, in a closely contested battle. Welch and Dempsey staged a hurling dual.

Philadelphia Company bumped Equitable Auto, 12 to 10, and Pittsburgh Railways swamped Equitable Gas, 13 to 2, in the Philadelphia Company League games played last night.

Book Shoe added another win to its string by upsetting the Crawfords, 7 to 4.

Sheraden M. E. and Kokinos Cards played to a 3-all tie; Frick Park Collegians tripped the East End Cardinals, 5 to 1, and the Duquesne Steel nine beat the Duquesne Builders, 16 to 7, in other contests.

with much determination, for it is natural for them to wish to keep their flag advantage. They still have a margin of 11½ games, yet they are a bit nervous as they lose to the Pittsburghers. They would feel pretty tough if they lost the whole series here and will do everything within the law to avoid such a slump.

The Pirates looked like champs yesterday as they whipped the Bears, 5 to 4. The oldfashioned timely hit in the clinch was a big factor in the success of the Oaklanders. The Cubs outhit the home boys, 10 to 8, but Jess Petty was every bit as clever as Hal Carlson, former Bucco, who fought it out with the Silver Fox.

Capt. Traynor connected for a fine three-bagger to left center with one out in the sixth, that led to the winning of the game. Grantham whistled a double to right and George followed Pie over the plate on a hit by Comorosky and Hemsley's sacrifice fly.

L. Waner's sixteenth triple of the season, an event of the first inning, was the pivotal punch of two runs made by the Pirates at the outset of the fight. Bartell opened with a single and when Brother Lloyd hit to the center field fence the leadoff boy went over. Traynor's single scored Lloyd.

TIED IN SECOND

Singles by Wilson and Cuyler, a sacrifice by Stephenson and Tolson's single tied up the game in the second. McMillan opened the fifth with a double and moved ahead on a sacrifice to be scored on Hornsby's single. Wilson's double scored the Rajah and the Cubs were two in front.

Hemsley's speed enabled the Pirates to score an important run in the fifth. Rolly started with a pass and stayed on first as Clarke flied out. McMillan threw wide to Hornsby on Petty's roller and Hemsley hustled to third. The catcher took a long chance in heading for the plate on Bartell's fly to Cuyler, but the fast throw of the outfielder carried a bit too far enabling Hemsley to slide over in the nick of time. And the Pirates went out and won the game in the next frame.

KARCIS RIVALS 'FIVE-YARD' M'CARTHY

By JESS CARVER.

Mr. Joe Dasher, the energetic keeper of statistics for Messrs. Steffen and Waddell, Carnegie Tech football chiefs, has computed, on his little computer, the exact yardage harvested by John Karcis, Tech's beefy fullback, during the 1928 campaign. Mr. Dasher, who took advantage of Tech's invasion of Albany, N. Y., last year to effect his entrance into the highest society circles of the Empire State capital, has figured that Monaca John gained a fraction under five yards each time he carried the pigskin. A scout reports that the exact figure is 4.8976 yards.

John Karcis.

In any event, be it 4.8976 or 4.8977, this fellow Karcis is going to be a big help to Tech's football family again, for with the added experience, together with the new tricks with which Judge Wally and Bob will equip him, the Monaca bone crusher figures to put a few bruises on opposing lines.

SWELL IDEA

Georgetown and Temple University football squads will enhance the training days at their respective camps at Ocean City and Atlantic City by scrimmaging against each other.

The two elevens were tossed together in informal scrimmages last year at Wildwood, N. J., and the play worked out so well that Coaches Miller and Little decided to put on the stunt again this fall.

Bob Thorn, who sits in the drivers seat at Grove City, handling various combinations, including the one to the safe, will be in charge of the Grovers' football training prior to the arrival of head coach Charley Berry. Charley, catcher for the Boston Red Sox, cannot report until the Sox definitely decide whether they are going to remain in last place or not.

NEW SUCKER CHAMP

Fight promoters and matchmakers will welcome this news. Bunny Buntack, the w. k., manager of Buck McTiernan, stepped out on the street yesterday afternoon and paid a whole dime for a Tuesday's newspaper.

"Can you imagine that fresh punk taking me for a sucker?" Bunny wailed. "There I was, digging down for a 'thin one' to slip the kid for a nice fresh paper and he gives me a fast one, slipping an old one in my mitt and taking it on the lam. Whoole, if the Meyers boys hear about that, they'll be charging me admission to the Bowl."

GREER KEEPS TITLE

BUTLER, Pa., Aug. 30.—S. W. Greer, champion of the Butler Country Club in 1928, retained his laurels by taking the 1929 title from John H. McClung in the final, 7 up and 6 to play. The 36-hole match found Greer going around the first nine in better than par. He was seven up at the end of the morning match.

STEELMEN, MILKMEN BATTLE

By TOM BIRKS

The second game of the Commercial and Industrial League postseason series will be played this evening at the Salt Works grounds, with Reick-McJunkin battling to tie up the series with the Carnegie Steel nine.

The first game, played at Garfield Park last Tuesday evening, found the Steelers on the long end of a 7-to-5 score. It was a good battle between Laboon and Engleman, and the Steel nine gave him better support than Laboon got in the game.

Managers Hatch and Stuhlfire intend to throw both twirlers back into the game this evening. The Steelers want to cinch the title, while the Milk boys will try hard to tie up matters and force the championship race into a third and deciding game. The tilt will be called at 6:15 o'clock, and both clubs are expected to have a large rooting delegation on hand.

Dormont will be the attraction at Pleasant Valley this evening, meeting the Smillers. Quite a number of North Side boys are playing with Dormont and the Inter-County League Club should be a good attraction at Wilson field.

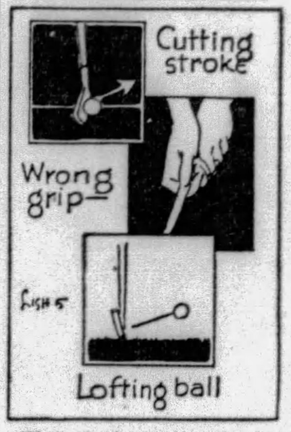
The Crawfords will be the attraction at the H. W. Doelfels' field Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The Fondulac A. C. football club will be back on the gridiron again this season under the leadership of "Irish" Tyler, and intends to hold a practice session this evening at Homewood playgrounds. The Fondulac club passed out when the Thomas club was organized, but Tyler dropped in to say that the old club will be one of the strongest outfits on the independent gridiron this fall.

SUPERINTENDENTS WIN

The Webb Superintendents defeated the Conley Riveters in a mushball game at an outing of the Independent Bridge Company employes at Irwin, Pa. Wrestling and boxing also were on the program.

GOLF AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT



What are the commonest causes of balls rolling crooked when putted? How can a golfer make his putts run truer?

Answered by

BOBBY CRUICKSHANK

Winner of Los Angeles, San Antonio, Hot Springs, North-and-South Open Championships, 1927. Maryland Open, 1928.

One cause is cutting across the ball when striking. This is caused by pushing the clubhead outside a line straight back from the ball. This causes a side spin and as soon as the ball loses strength it falls away to the right or side it is spinning toward. If the hands are turned over when the ball is struck, closing the face of the putter, the ball will roll crooked. Again, a fairly long putt lofted at the start will fall away due to an improper spin.

The truest way to hit the ball is right in the back center and straight through it with the putter face finishing towards the hole. The whole stroke should be made smoothly and with absolutely no effort or movement of the body or head.

"As you gentlemen are likely aware, my claim to fame rests upon my ability to impose cognomens upon Pullmans that are about as easy to say as diplodocus. And needless to say, this is an art . . . in fact, my only rivals are the scientists who place those tongue-twisters as the names of new germs or diseases. It has been my habit to wear Plus-Six Suits ever since you opened that Annex Store of yours . . . and I'm more than satisfied with them. My only suggestion would be a new name . . . you can take it or leave it of course . . . why not call your suits "Multiple Pantz Suits" . . . getting over the extra trouser idea, see?"

Well, Flaccus, We'll Leave It . . . . If You Don't Mind

A "Plus-Six suit by any other name would still be the best in Pittsburgh at 21.50, to be sure, but we're perfectly satisfied with the name we're using. And, far more important, every "Plus-Six" wearer is satisfied with the suit . . . . we've never even heard them complain about the label. And labels, you know, Flaccus, don't add one iota to "Plus-Six" quality.

ATHLETICS ADD HALF GAME TO LEAD

Associated Press.

The march of Pittsburgh phantom legion moves on through the darkness in a stubborn attempt to recapture a vanished hope. It all seems so immpossible, but this return of Corsair ghosts from the grave nevertheless is giving the National League, and all baseball for that matter, the only shred of a supreme moment the stretch run of 1929 can know.

The miracle may last no longer, but remarkably enough, it has carried through three games in two days to the utter amazement of Joseph McCarthy and the Cubs. The third Pittsburgh decision was gained by 5 to 4 at Forbes Field yesterday as a small huddle of the faithful sat and watched.

MIRACLES WILL HAPPEN

This latest Pirate victory served only to reduce the lead of the Cubs to 11½ games. The Dreyfuss Dragoons need all the series, and all may be too little, but they at least hope that Brame and possibly Grimes can continue the spurt against Bush and Blake. Then, with the Bruin lead shorn to 9½ engagements, Jewel Ens might be permitted to wonder just how great a miracle was needed to accomplish what would be the greatest of all baseball miracles.

Bill Walker, the young Giant southpaw, flirted with the hall of fame at Ebbets Field yesterday when he held the Robins hitless through eight rounds only to see them pick up four blows and two runs in the ninth. The Giants won the game by 6 to 2. Mel Ott helped with his thirty-third homer. The Phillies scored twice in the tenth at Boston to nose out the Braves, who came back with one in the same half, by a score of 5 to 4.

The Athletics added half a game to their lead by shading the Red Sox by 7 to 6 at Shibe Park as the Yankees divided two with the Senators at the big stadium in The Bronx. Babe Ruth's thirty-seventh home run enabled the Yanks to save the opener by 5 to 4 after a circuit drive by Goose Goslin apparently had sewed up the decision for Fred Marberry and the Senators. Washington routed Hoyt in the nightcap to win by 8 to 4. Pennock was the winning pitcher in the opener.

INFIELD FAILS

Big Ed Morris deserved a better fate in his game against the Macks, but that Red Sox pretense at an infield fell to pieces in the seventh, and three unearned runs dashed [illegible] before the tide could be stemmed. Jack Rothrock smashed a homer in the fourth with the bases filled. The Messrs. Shores, Quinn and Walberg pitched for Mack, with Quinn winning.

Ted Lyons continued his rampage by shading the ambitious Indians in Chicago by a score of 2 to 1. Willis Hudlin made the White Sox work for everything they got, but they finally broke down his armor in the ninth.

The Browns seized the Cleveland defeat as an opportunity to intrench the St. Louis standard more firmly in third place. Sammy Gray gave eight scattered hits as the Browns defeated Earl Whitehill and the Tigers by 6 to 1.

TUFFY WINS

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Jerry (Tuffy) Griffiths, of Sioux City, Ia., hammered out a technical knockout victory over Big Boy Peterson, of New Orleans, at Mills Stadium last night.

HOLE IN ONE

DEL MONTE, Cal., Aug. 30. — (AP.) — Eugene Homans, New Jersey, sank a hole in one on the 185-yard twelfth at Pebble Beach yesterday. He turned in a card of 74.

Dozen Sections Enter Racers at Butler

BUTLER, Pa., Aug. 30.—Twelve different cities and towns will be represented by drivers in the 150-mile dirt track auto derby at the local Fair Grounds Labor Day afternoon. At least 15, and possible 20, will face the starter's gun.

The following localities, Pittsburgh, Brookeville, Turtle Creek, Braddock, Youngstown, O., Struthers, O., Wilkinsburg, Greensburg, Johnstown, Alliance, Tarentum and Pitcarin will have home town boys piloting cars in the long 300-lap race. Tarentum has the best representation, with three racers entered.

Whitey Flickinger and his Dusenberg front-drive creation rules a slight favorite at present, though drivers of the hbfilfy of Lafe Stahlman, Henry Langer, Maurice Lardin, Howard Truesdale, Art Stewart and Earl Johnson also have many followers.

Interest in the races, and the accompanying balloon exhibitions, is mounting daily a record crowd is expected.

Two More Qualify For Altoona Race

ALTOONA, Pa., Aug. 30.—(AP.)—The number of automobile race pilots who have qualified for the Labor Day speed event at the Tipton Bowl reached nine yesterday when Gordon Condon and Fred Winnai attained the qualifying speed or better. A speed of at least 125 miles an hour must be made to qualify. Condon attained that mark and Winnai's speed was 125 5-10. Three more pilots were scheduled to qualify tomorrow.

Drivers who have already qualified include Lou Meyer, winner of the last two races here; Lou Moore, Deacon Litz, Shorty Cantlon and Cliff Bergere.

WINS GOLF TROPHY

Mrs. W. H. Hochberg yesterday won the president's trophy of the Alcoma Country Club by defeating Mrs. Frank Hunter in an 18-hole playoff match, 2 and 1, despite the fact that her opponent was given a handicap of 28. The match was the third between the finalists, the first two ending in deadlocks.

ASHCAN DERBY POPULAR

In many Western Pennsylvania back yards, garages and junk yards today are young men toiling over the shambang wrecks of once perfect automobiles, working against time to get their decrepit machines in sufficient running order to get to the Bridgeville speedway on Labor Day afternoon for the now famous "Ash Can Derby," to be run in connection with the A. A. A. auto race and thrill show.

The ambition of many is to beat John Stugan and his mount, "Terrible Tessie," a 1908 Hupmobile, and well they might prepare, says Stugan, for Tessie, he says, will win hands down.

An automobile of unknown pedigree, "Wander Bozo," is to be driven by George Sondecker, of 2232 Tilbury street, who says he will make Terrible Tessie look like a beaten rug. "What Price Parts," a 1912 Ford, will try its luck with Lawrence Malica, 91 Harlem avenue, at the wheel. "The Can You Can't Forget," an old Templer, is entered by Joseph Blew, of Bridgeville, who says he will be on hand if he can secure the services of a tow truck to take him to the track. "I have only two gears, reverse and high," said Blew, and I will race in either direction, east or west. I must start on a grade as that is the only way it will take off on high."

Eighteen other cars have been entered in the event, and Ward Beam is expecting many more to enter before the day of the race. The only condition of the entry is that the car is not to be worth more than $50.

Other features of the show are to be a head-on collision between two automobiles driven at 35 miles per hour, and an A. A. A. auto race and airplane stunts.

Willows to Stage Big Meet Tomorrow

The Willows Swimming Club have details complete for its "Queen of fashion pageant, parade and water gala at the Willows pool, Oakmont, Saturday, at 3 o'clock. The list of contestants include school teachers, golf players, track athletes, swimmers and girls who have just finished college. Any one of the entrants is worthy of the title of "Miss Willows, 1928." The entry list is still open and late entries are requested to telephone Penhurst 6878 J.

John Jay Burke, prominent in golf circles, will serve as director of the pageant and C. A. Wakeman, will be master of ceremonies and Dick Powell of the Enright theater will be honorary judge. The celebrities who will judge the pageant are: Margaret Wolff, of Greensburg, Edward Ludwig, Tom Birks and Miss Lucille Bejach.

BRODD WINS ON FOUL

CUMBERLAND, Md., Aug. 30. — Charley Brodd, McKeesport heavyweight, subbing for Stanley Simmons, won on a foul from Socko Trenaman, of Cumberland, in the first round of a scheduled 10-round bout here last night. Chuck Zelnack, of Glassport, Pa., scored a technical knockout over Buddy Reed when the referee stopped the fight in the third round.

ROLLY HEMSLEY SHOWS SPEED

the sphere to Zach Taylor, but he had just a little too much carry on his shot. The ball caused Taylor to back up a couple of feet in order to get it on the conventional first bound. Before Zach could fall forward on Rolly the youngster was on the plate. The whole action was pretty to behold.

Clarke's part in the victory was enacted in the clever handling of two hard-hit balls in the eighth. Stephenson doubled to the left-center fence with one out. Tolson hit a mean roller almost over second, but Clarke "came up" with the sphere and followed with a perfect toss to Grantham. Taylor then lambasted a liner which Clarke grabbed.

WILSON "RAZZED"

Hack Wilson had a wordy argument with one or two of his hecklers as soon as the battle ended. Hack remained at the Cubs' dugout upbraiding the subjects of his scorn, but no blows were struck. It appears as if the sturdy outfielder were inviting somebody down into the field where they could meet man to man, but the John L. Sullivan of the diamond could find no takers.

The same fans who are razzing Wilson in this series will be pulling for him to knock the fences over in the World Series. And nearly every one of his hecklers in Pittsburgh pursues the razzing policy not because they dislike Wilson, but from natural causes. If they can throw Hack off his stride a little by teasing, they will do it, and why not?

But Wilson has many a last laugh. He has to stand for a lot of stuff, yet he is O. K. Come back, any time, Hack.

KID CHOCOLATE DEFEATS SINGER

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Glistening under the flood lights like a shaft of polished ebony come to life, dazzling Kid Chocolate punched out a tingling victory last night over Al Singer, Jewish idol of the Bronx, while 45,000 of the fight faithful yelled themselves almost into silence in the spacious National League ball yard.

From every section of the Bronx, settlement of Singer's kinsmen, from the Negro section of Harlem, where the dusky chocolate drop from Cuba now makes his home, the rank and file of boxing as well as the city's elite turned out to form one of the largest crowds of the season at a match where nothing but individual supremacy was at stake. The gate receipts ran well over $200,000.

But even after a solid year of wholesale argument as these two flashing kids rose along separate paths to pugilistic stardom, the question of supremacy still was not settled to the satisfaction of all. Finding their voices after the strain of the furious battle, the crowd booed the decision lustily and long. Even the referee and judges failed to agree, two voting for Chocolate and one for Singer.

NO KNOCKDOWNS

There were no knockdowns as the two youngsters, almost letter perfect in boxing technique, fought swiftly and cleanly through the 12 rounds. The Associated Press score sheet gave the grinning Cuban "keed" a margin in six rounds, with four for Singer and two even.

Fighting a careful counter campaign from the start, Chocolate met the swift rushes of the black-haired Jewish lad with remarkable skill, set the pace of battle despite Singer's aggressiveness and spurted with furious rallies whenever the going got rough and dangerous.

The ebony enigma silenced Singer's heaviest gun, a straight powerful right to the head, tied up the Bronx favorite effectively in the clinches and out-generaled the fiery little Jewish lad at every stage.

With only a few lapses, gloves flew in clouds through every round as the youngsters set a mad pace. And despite a weight advantage of 128¾ pounds to Chicolate's 125, the Negro lad was the stronger at the close.

TWO GREAT ROUNDS

Both Singer and Chocolate had two great rounds when the battle seemed about to be terminated suddenly. In the fifth, the Cuban chocolate drop flashed his right hand to Singer's head in one fast rally and the Jewish boy barely kept his feet. In the eighth the Negro again caught Singer with a ruinous right uppercut and Al had difficulty holding the shadowy "keed" while his head cleared.

Singer flashed his best form in the second and eleventh rounds when he drove Chocolate about the ring under a bitter attack that almost found the vital spots the Negro boy guarded so well. But in the twelfth, the final session, it was Chocolate again who stole the play, mustered the final measure of strength and pinned Singer to the ropes with a flood of punches that settled the argument as far as the referee and judges were concerned.

Chocolate fought a cagey, well planned battle through the early rounds, fighting only in bursts on the defensive as Singer plunged confidently to the attack. He had a shade the better of the first session and a clear margin in the third. Singer's aggressiveness, the occasional punches that seeped through Chocolate's guard in the open, and his better organized attack at close quarters, gave the Jewish boy the second, fourth and fifth rounds.

After the sixth, Chocolate rallied and unleased a right hand that previously had been held in reserve for blocking purposes. He beat Singer consistently to the punch, outsmarted him in the hot exchanges, and easily won the seventh, eighth and ninth rounds. The tenth was even, Singer staged his final rally in the eleventh, and Chocolate again took complete command of the situation in the final session.

For all the clean and accurate punching, the only damage either showed when the melee was over was a deep cut in Singer's right cheek, opened in the fifth round, and a "mouse" that appeared under Chocolate's left eye a round or so later.

This was an increase of $132,000,000 over last week and was contributed to chiefly by interests outside the banks. These interests poured $3,468,000,000 into the security market, an increase of $96,000,000 over the previous week, while the banks themselves increased their loans in the market by $66,000,000 for a total of $992,000,000. The out of town banks decreased their loans during the week by $31,000,000 for a total of $1,756,000,000.

South Penn Profits to Show Gain

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

PROFITS of the South Penn Oil Company for the present year will exceed those of 1928 by a large margin. The company will not do as well in the second half of the year as it did in the first six months but, even after allowing for the decline, a good margin of profit will be shown.

The first six months of 1929 were the best in many years. The top grade of Pennsylvania crude oil sold for $4.10 a barrel during the entire period. Prices have since been cut 85 cents a barrel but they are still 10 cents a barrel higher than a year ago and 45 cents a barrel higher than in January, 1928.

Although the reductions in prices made it necessary for the company to absorb some inventory losses, the exceptionally large profits of the early months of this year more than compensated for any shrinkage in the value of oil in storage.

Production Expanding.

ANOTHER factor in the growth of this year's profits is increased production. Early in the year the company started to drill 600 additional wells in the Bradford field. The benefits of this campaign are now being shown in the output. Current production is at the rate of about 8,200 barrels a day. Due to the peculiar methods of recovering the oil several weeks usually pass after the completion of a well before there is any showing of oil.

There is no gas pressure in the vicinity being drilled. To bring the oil to the surface, water is being pumped into four out of every five wells. A mixture of oil and water is pumped out of remaining wells. Although the yield per well is very small, the nature of the sand is such that production may continue by this flooding method for ten or fifteen years.

Estimated Earnings.

THE company only publishes its earnings at the end of the year but it is understood that profits amounted to about $2,900,000 in the first half of 1929. Earnings of only $1,000,000 will be necessary in the second half to make 1929 profits equal those of 1928. As a matter of fact the second half should far exceed this amount.

Profits last year amounted to $3,911,165 or $4.74 a share on the 800,000 shares outstanding at the close of the year. Earnings last year were more than double those of 1927 when $1,727,774 or $2.16 a share was reported.

Penn Mex Contributes.

SOUTH PENN has a 55 per cent interest in the Penn Mex Fuel Corporation, which operates in Mexico. This organization has not paid any dividends this year but some declarations are probable before the close of 1929.

In 1928 when Penn Mex had flush production from its Paso Real pool it paid a total of $1.30 a share. South Penn's share amounted to $440,000. Following the appearance of sediment it became necessary to pinch the wells in, but recent completions have materially boosted the output.

Subsidiary Helped.

ALTHOUGH lower prices for crude oil are curtailing the current earnings of the parent company, one of its subsidiaries, the Pennzoil Company, will benefit. This organization is engaged in refining and distributing gasoline and lubricating oils. Recently the company increased its price of lubricating oil five cents a gallon while the lower cost of crude has decreased its costs.

The market for lubricants made from Pennsylvania crude has expanded rapidly during the past few years and Pennzoil has prospered. South Penn owns 51 per cent of the 400,000 shares of stock which are on an annual dividend basis of $1 a share.

The affiliation of the two companies is mutually advantageous since an outlet is afforded South Penn for part of its production of crude oil while Pennzoil is assured a source of supply.

Early this year South Penn declared a stock dividend of 50 per cent. The $2 annual dividend rate was continued in the increased capitalization.

TRUSCON GIVEN SOVIET ORDER

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 29.—For three consecutive months, the Truscon Steel Company has broken records in shipments and sales. All departments are working 100 per cent capacity and in some cases nights and Sundays.

Among recent large contracts received by the company is that for all materials of the company's manufacture required for the large tractor plant to be built for the Russian government at Stalingrad, Russia, for which Albert Kahn, Detroit, is the architect and the Amtorg Trading Company is the Russian representative in this country.

Mr. Kahn is a brother of Julius Kahn, president of the Truscon company.

Leading Markets Take Triple Holiday

The New York Stock Exchange, the New York Curb Market and the New York Produce Exchange will be closed tomorrow and Monday, giving the street a triple holiday for the Labor Day weekend. The Pittsburgh Stock Exchange will also be closed for the same period. Exchanges in Chicago, Buffalo, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Boston will be closed. The New York Cotton Exchange will remain open tomorrow, however, as well as banks and business institutions.

LOCAL STORES ACTIVE

Department store sales reports for July, just received by the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce statistician, shows an increase here of 1.7 per cent over sales in July, 1928, although in the neighboring cities of Cincinnati, Columbus, Dayton and Wheeling there were decreases ranging from 0.6 per cent to 4.3 per cent.

Elsewhere in the country business was less active than in Pittsburgh. In Chicago sales in July showed a decrease of 0.9 per cent and retail business in many southern and western cities continued poor. Philadelphia experienced a decrease of 4.6 per cent. In the southern section nine out of 15 cities did business ranging from 0.6 per cent to 9.6 per cent less than July of last year. Of all cities in the United States, Minneapolis had the greatest decrease of the month, 13 per cent.

Considering the period from January 1 to July 31 as compared with the same period of 1928, Pittsburgh's reporting stores showed an increase of 1.8 per cent, while the nearby cities of Dayton and Wheeling had decreases of 0.3 per cent and 3 per cent, respectively.

As an indication that purchasers will continue in prosperity and be able to meet their obligations, reporting stores in Pittsburgh granted credit on 68 per cent of all sales in July. Of these credit sales 62.7 per cent were regular charge accounts.

Collections during July on accounts receivable on June 30 amounted to 46.6 per cent as against 40.8 in the month of June.

STOCKS SHOOT UP IN FACE OF LOAN GAIN

Market Ignoring Large Brokers' Borrowings Gives Demonstration of Strength

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Disregarding the increase of $132,000,000 in Federal Reserve brokers' loans to another new high record, the stock market today gave another impressive demonstration of strength.

While nearly all the important groups, except the oils, presented numerous points of strength, the buying centered largely in a select assortment of public utility, investment railroad, farm implement, food and insurance shares. At least two score issues sold 4 to 15 points above yesterday's final quotations, with a dozen or more in new high ground for the year.

MONEY UNCHANGED

Wall street apparently took the attitude that so long as the Federal Reserve System made sufficient credit available for commercial and agricultural purposes, the brokers' loan situation was no cause for worry. Call money renewed unchanged again at 9 per cent, with apparently a sufficient supply available to hold the rate at that figure despite the heavy month-end and holiday demand for funds.

Buoyancy of the farm implement stocks was attributed to the excellent current earnings and prospects of the leading companies. International Harvester ran up 15¼ points, Case Threshing 14½ and Oliver Farm Equipment 4. Steel shares moved upward under the leadership of United States Steel common, which was marked up nearly 5 points by early afternoon.

WIDE GAINS MADE

American Water Works returned to the leadership of the public utility group by soaring 14 points to a new high record at 173½. Stone and Webster jumped 10 points to 200, or double the offering price in June. American and Foreign Power, American Power and Light, Standard Gas and Electric, International Telephone and Westinghouse Electric sold 4 to 8 points higher. Radio crossed 97 for a gain of about 5 points.

One block of 14,000 shares of Simmons changed hands at 147, up 6 points. Johns Manville, Auburn Auto, U. S. Freight, R. H. Macy, Allied Chemical, Continental Insurance, Rossia Insurance, and A. M. Byers all sold 5 to 8 points higher.

RAILS ADVANCE

Nickel Plate ran up more than 8 points to a new top at 186½. Norfolk and Western and Reading also moved into new high ground. Pere Marquette, which had a spectacular advance yesterday, dropped 7 points.

Indian Motorcycle slumped 3 points to a new low for the year at 14¼.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—Yesterday's buyers returned to the pits today and gave another lift to grain futures prices. Although there were weak moments at the start, wheat soon climbed 1½c over yesterday's finish. The opening was ⅜c higher to 1c lower, while corn started ⅛c lower to ¾c higher, with a firm undertone. Oats were ¼ to ⅞c higher, and provisions irregular, 5c higher to 12c lower.

LEADERS' VIEWS ON FARM BOARD FAVORABLE

Farmers Well Pleased With Personnel and Are Not Expecting Too Much

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—President Hoover's genius has been applied to directing the energy behind age-long political discontent among farmers into constructive channels.

The Federal Farm Board, under the astute chairmanship of Alexander Legge, former president of the International Harvester Corporation, is attempting by no miracle of wand waving to turn poverty-stricken farmers into plutocrats, but it is seeking to stimulate farmers to imitate the sound methods of business leaders in the field of production and merchandising.

In the past farm relief was shot full of economic fallacies, and it was usual for the conservative East to oppose the radical West on proposed patent medicine remedies.

It is too early to estimate the actual accomplishments of the Federal Farm Board. It is, however, not too soon to learn the public reaction to the methods and philosophy of the newly constituted relief agency. Accordingly, I have made a survey among well informed bankers and editors in the agricultural regions concerning sentiment toward the new farm board.

FARMERS PLEASED

A representative opinion was expressed by Dan A. Wallace, directing editor of The Farmer, of St. Paul, Minn., who said:

"The Federal Farm Board is of course a huge governmental experiment, as has been pointed out by President Hoover. It has the power to do a very valuable piece of work for America. Farm leaders and farmers have been very greatly pleased with the personnel of the board as finally selected. Most of the men are well and favorably known to farmers through their activity in farmer-owned co-operative ventures. Farmers have not been giving very serious consideration to the possibility of government relief for agriculture for several years, but they do feel that if any practical aid can be extended by the government the present Federal Farm Board is made up of the type of men who will be well qualified to perform such a service for agriculture."

E. O. Howard, president, Walker Brothers, bankers, at Salt Lake City, Utah, pointed out:

"It is my impression our people are basing their calculations considerably more on usual returns on handling their own business rather than on dependence on help they may get through such agencies."

D. P. Hogan, president of the Federal Land Bank of Omaha, pointed out:

"We look forward to very good results in the course of time from the newly constituted farm board. I am especially pleased because that board insists on farmers' co-operative marketing agencies getting together as a prime requisite before any assistance is given by their board. I think the board is an especially strong one. Our Nebraska member, Samuel R. McKelvie, is an excellent man for that position."

"SHOULD BE HELPFUL"

Speaking from a southern viewpoint, Frank Hayden, president, Union and Planters Bank and Trust Company, of Memphis, Tenn., remarked:

"The newly constituted Federal Farm Board should be helpful. They are already holding some meetings in this section, and are proceeding in a thoughtful way. The average farmer, in my opinion, has not made much of a study of the federal farm relief legislation, but he likes the sound of the word 'relief' and is quite hopeful."

Edward W. Decker, president of the Northwestern National Bank of Minneapolis, pointed out:

"This is a long-time program; any beneficial results that may be realized will be effected in the more or less distant future. The general morale of farmers should show marked improvement. The average farmer takes little or no interest in the new legislation, but probably is disappointed in that no provision was made for the artificial stimulation of prices."

George C. Williams, vice president and treasurer, Chicago Joint Stock Land Bank, said:

"Publicity about the appointees and the subsequent publicity of their activities is having a profound effect on both the farmers and others in this territory. The farmers seem to take a sane view of the possible benefits from the activities of the board and are not expecting too much. On the whole, it appears that the psychological effect of the Farm Board activities have been favorable in every way. The morale of the farmers has been very low and a change in his attitude will be very beneficial."

HOPEFUL OF AID

A leading banker in Atlanta wrote:

"It is my observation that every farmer is hopeful of securing assistance from this board, but not confident of it."

Clyde E. Brenton, president of the Iowa National Bank, at Des Moines, said:

"I feel that the hot, dry wind in the Northwest is doing a great deal more for the Iowa farmer than it would be possible for the new Farm Board to do. However, this Farm Board is, I find, giving added confidence to the farmer in his situation."

C. T. Jaffray, president of the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie Railroad, said:

"Of course, with all the talk that has gone on in the last three or four years, many farmers thought that all the ills they were laboring under (caused mostly by their own work) could be cured by the federal government, and these particular people are going to be disappointed."

His Views

JAMES SIMPSON

Mr. Simpson, president of Marshall Field and Company, returning from Europe, said: "Italy alone impressed me as having gained in prosperity. Otherwise conditions in Europe appear unchanged, business apparently awaiting settlement of the reparations problems."

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—There were no sales in the raw sugar market early today, but the undertone was steady and there were further buyers at last paid prices of 3.83 for Cuban duty paid, for October shipment, with holders asking fractionally higher.

Except for September, which was lower under liquidation as a result of the circulation of 567 notices, raw sugar futures were steadied on covering and buying by houses with trade and Cuban connections with prices at midday 2 points lower to 2 points net higher. The steadiness of the spot market and expectation of a renewed buying movement in refined after the holidays seemed responsible for the better feeling.

Trading was not very active, and there was a good deal of evening-up for over the three-day adjournment. A prominent European crop authority estimated the beet sugar crop of Europe, including Russia, at 8,575,000 metric tons, or 115,000 tons above the previous crop.

In refined second-hand sugars are meeting with a better inquiry, and prices were firmer, with holders now asking from 5.25 to 5.30 for fine granulated. Refiners' quotations were unchanged at 5.50.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Revival of aggressive operations for the advance in the utilities sent curb market stocks irregularly higher today. Pre-holiday selling was again in evidence, however, and depressed a sprinkling of issues. The increase in brokers' loans appeared to have been practically ignored, as the prospect of call money getting no higher than 9 per cent over the month-end was regarded as attesting comparatively fairly stable credit conditions.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

Outstanding Reserve Bank Credit Decreased by $20,000,000.

WHEN the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, on August 9, raised its rediscount rate and reduced the discount rate at which it would buy brokers' bills, many of the market letter writers for stock brokers predicted that the increased buying of acceptances by the reserve bank would tend to ease credit more than the shrinkage to result from the higher rediscount rate. Operators in the bill market denied that the reserve funds put into the bill market would make it easier to borrow money on stock exchange collateral. The answer to this disputed question seems to be afforded by today's statement of the condition of the 12 reserve banks as of August 28. This shows, by comparison with the reserve banks' statement of August 8 that reserve bank credit outstanding has decreased by nearly $20,000,000 in the three weeks that have elapsed since the changes were made in the rediscount and bill-buying rates. Moreover, the significant fact is revealed that while the reserve banks have put $77,000,000 into the bill market in the three weeks they have reduced the amount of bills discounted by the member banks by more than $90,000,000 while reserve bank holdings of government securities have decreased by more than $12,000,000. The reserve banks appear to have skillfully directed restricting their policy of stock exchange collateral loans while expanding their credit to business. This is just what they aim to do.

A declining trend in call money rates from the high averages of July, is reflected in the fact that the average rewenal rate for August is found today to have been 8.193 per cent. This compares with an average of 9.06 for July, when for seven days the renewal charge ranged between 10 and 15 per cent. The average rate for August was, however, nearly 1½ per cent higher than in the corresponding months of last year, when the renewal average was 6.774 per cent. Owing chiefly to the lack of demand the renewal rate at the end of August was held down to 9 per cent, though a high charge had been predicted due to heavy calls for additional currency over Labor Day.

THE extent to which investment companies are dominating the new financing is disclosed by the fact that new issues by those companies in August have aggregated more than $340,000,000. This is believed to be a record amount of financing by these companies for any one month and to bring their total financing for the first eight months of this year close to $1,500,000,000. A considerable percentage of their funds is either temporarily or permanently employed in the call money market.

Recent activity in Austin, Nichols shares has been the greatest in months. Strength in the stock has been accompanied by statements that a substantial minority interest in company has been acquired by a prominent organization in the food industry. Management has under way an aggressive expansion program in an effort to increase sales and results so far obtained have been up to expectations. Austin, Nichols sells many widely advertised grocery articles.

THAT there has been rather good buying in Briggs Manufacturing recently, is the statement made by several market students. Some of the demand has come from Detroit interests accompanied by reports that the company has secured some business from Ford which had heretofore been supplied by another body-making concern. Earnings in the third and fourth quarters should be favorable and some interests have been inclined to discuss the possibility of dividend resumption before the end of the current year.

As a company with thorough diversification of its products and widespread distribution, Beatrice Creamery is viewed as one of the important units in the food industry. Earnings amounted to $8.54 a share on the 175,223 common shares for the fiscal year ended February 28 last, and the general view is that a much better showing will be made in the current year, as the company is now getting the benefits of acquisitions made during 1928. Several of the leading commission houses have been recommending the purchase of the stock on any general reaction in the market.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Convertibles in the bond market developed strength for a session preceding a three-day holiday. Practically all groups shared in the advance, with some of the gilt edge investment securities getting behind plus signs. The foreign list was dull and irregular lower, while the United States government obligations were steady. Money was unchanged and the large increase in brokers' loans seemed to be offset by the favorable sentiment created by the peaceful settlement reached at The Hague conference.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

BUGS BAER Says

THE WESTERN END OF WALL STREET

WE had always thought a stock broker has a life as easy as candy in the bag.

We have observed the New York boys touring down to Wall street around 10 in the morning. They were riding in their two-car limousines. Smoking cigars that looked like Harry Lauder's cane.

Bugs Bear But after seeing the Los Angeles Stock Exchange in action we have switched our mind.

The boys on this far western stock exchange have to work like beavers trying to build a dam out of burned matches.

Owing to the difference in time between New York and the Coast, the Los Angeles Stock Exchange opens up at six in the morning.

When it is 9 o'clock in New York it is 6 a. m. in California. And when it is margin time in Manhattan they ain't picking berries in Seattle.

So the boys get up at 5 a. m. in order to keep in step with the panics.

We were on the Los Angeles Exchange when Wall Street dropped that three billion and then tried to catch it on the bounce.

Most of the brokers were in pajamas. One guy hollered, "I'm sunk." Then he tried to pour himself a drink of coffee out of an alarm clock.

Another operator lost a million in trans-Atlantic Bridge and popped a waiter on the chin because his grapefruit was spotty.

A sleepy-eyed millionaire ain't no lily. He doesn't mind his fortune being swept away by a broomless vacuum cleaner. But he does object to losing his carpet slippers in the middle of an international slump in steel.

We understand that most everybody got their money back the next day.

But 24 hours is a long time to stay up in the air with your engine missing.

We want to inform prospective investors that our one share of Cement Water Wings is still as steady as a tombstone.

We bought it at 16 below par and it never came up for air.

This is the best stock for reliability that we have ever purchased.

It's like a lunch wagon. It ain't going nowhere.

They took it off the exchange. And put it on the curb.

It can stay on that curb a century and never be arrested for parking too long.

A share of that a day will keep the bond brokers away. When a stock salesman hears that we have Cement Water Wings he blows a police whistle and leaps for a safety zone.

AUNT BELLIA'S DAILY HOME BEAUTIFUL CHAT

TODAY, kind friends, I would speak a word on how to make the home attractive with hammer and saw. Any resourceful wife can, in a few minutes, make over her own furniture. Home is what we make it. Women who are continually running out to play bridge or what-not, are likely to find that they are not "in the swim" so far as Aunt Bella's radio talks are concerned. Therefore, let one and all pay strict attention, and tomorrow I hope to show how to make an attractive chair out of a barrel. And until then, as we say abroad, "Auf weidersham." I thank you.

Hard-Bought Peace

We NEARLY Had One.

Mr. Newton D. Baker, who was Secretary of War under Woodrow Wilson said recently we would like a "hard bought peace." He would force this nation to be peaceable in spite of itself, and put "the quietus on the would-be American war-like nation."

Peace IS beautiful, but you can pay too much for it.

When the big war came this nation was very UNWAR-LIKE. It was taken by surprise and kept on talking peace, until suddenly it found itself in the war, COMPLETELY UNPREPARED.

As a result this nation spent a billion on flying machines that wouldn't fly, another billion on ships that the nation hasn't been able to give away, or sell for junk, although it has tried for the last 10 years to do so.

What else would have happened to the peaceful Americans had the war not ended, nobody knows.

But even for the sake of hard bought peace, the United States would not like to be found in the same situation when the next war breaks.

Fortunate America

We Can Feed and Clothe Ourselves.

No wonder the British want fast cruisers to protect their commerce at sea. Britain depends on imports. Six-sevenths of Britain's wheat supply is grown in other countries.

Britain, however, would never fear a blockade suggested as a possibility by the Manchester Guardian, if Britain had airships to deal with her enemies, and such a fleet of super-submarines as might, in case of necessity, be used for bringing in life's necessities.

If European nations, insanely, go to war again, on a big scale, you may see great commercial submarines dock, with protecting fliers hovering above them.

This is a fortunate nation. We can feed ourselves, clothe ourselves and provide for half a dozen other nations, at the same time.

But without flying machines and submarines, we might find ourselves feeding other nations and financing them too, without getting any pay for it, and with our biggest cities in ruins.

A Pawnshop Nation

Good Old U. S. A. Is Headed That Way.

Leonard P. Ayers, vice president of the Cleveland Trust Company, told the American Bankers' Association that the call money market, charging as high as 20 per cent interest, was "a great and invisible banking system, not only seriously impairing prosperity, and the prospects of commercial banking, but rapidly undermining the Federal Reserve system."

Very interesting. But who is it that collects and establishes 20 per cent interest on call loans? Not those that borrow, certainly.

A law should make it illegal for national banks, which Congress can control, to charge more than 6 per cent interest for any loan under any circumstances. That would help. Talking won't help.

Now Chicago banks establish an 8 per cent rate for loans, having obtained a modification of the Illinois usuary law.

This country will soon be on a pawnshop basis.

Drugs in Stockings

Hard to Stop the Traffic.

The warden of Raymond Street Jail, Brooklyn, finds it difficult to keep drugs from the prisoners. He discovers that they receive letters addressed to male prisoners and silk stockings addressed to female prisoners, the letter paper and the silk stockings soaked in a solution containing morphine.

After the soaking they are dried, ironed out, sent to the prisoners. The prisoners put them in water, squeeze out the water and get enough morphine to do a profitable business selling to other prisoners.

It is easy to stop smoking and beer drinking and other conspicuous and comparatively harmless "vices." Stopping whisky and drugs is more difficult.

Foolish Request

Men and Women Differ.

Feminists in Paris wanted Mr. Kellogg to include "equal rights for women" in his peace pact.

Just what equal rights for women have to do with a peace pact isn't clear. What the ladies really mean is that they don't want any special privileges granted to women by legislation. They don't want, for instance, laws forbidding long working hours, or night work, for women. Their suggestion is extremely silly, especially as they belong to a fortunate class that works only when it wants to.

Considering that WOMEN produce all the men, the least that MEN can do is to consider mothers and those that may be mothers, and protect them with decent legislation.

If men had to produce the babies, and then raise them, they would be asking for ten thousand million special favors.

Bible Passages

Man's Days Are As a Shadow

(Psalm 144.)

BLESSED be the Lord my strength, which teacheth my hands to war, and my fingers to fight:

My goodness and my fortress; my high tower, and my deliverer; my shield, and he in whom I trust; who subdueth my people under me.

Lord, what is man, that thou takest knowledge of him: or the son of man, that thou makest account of him.

Man is like to vanity: his days are as a shadow that passeth away.

Bow thy heavens, O, Lord, and come down: touch the mountains, and they shall smoke.

Cast forth lightning, and scatter them: shoot out thine arrows, and destroy them.

Send thine hand from above; rid me, and deliver me out of great waters, from the hand of strange children;

Whose mouth speaketh vanity, and their right hand is a right hand of falsehood.

I will sing a new song unto thee, O God: upon a psaltery and an instrument of ten strings will I sing unto thee.

It is he that giveth salvation unto kings: who delivereth David his servant from the hurtful sword.

Rid me, and deliver me from the hand of strange children, whose mouth speaketh vanity, and their right hand is a right hand of falsehood:

That our sons may be as plants grown up in their youth; that our daughters may be as corner stones, polished after the similitude of a palace:

That our garners may be full, affording all manner of store: that our sheep may bring forth thousands and ten thousands in our streets:

That our oxen may be strong to labour; that there be no breaking in nor going out; that there be no complaining in our streets.

Happy is that people, that is in such a case: yea happy is that people, whose God is the Lord.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

What You Give

WHAT you give is but a dole
If you give it not with love;
All earth over, pole to pole,
Love is heart and love is soul
Of all gifts that welcome prove.

Emerald, ruby, pearl or jade,
Orchid, jasmine, lily, rose,
Fairest gift man ever made
Still has poverty betrayed
If no love with it goes.
What you give is gold or dross
Only as love makes it so;
Diamonds are an alms you toss,
Sapphires' splendor is but loss,
Lacking love's transcendent glow.

When you give a crust of bread
Or dark pansies gemmed with dew,
Rare are they as glories shed
When dawn glimmers overhead,
If your love is given, too.

OFFICIOUS LITTLE OFFICIALS

By Herbert Kaufman

YOU consider yourself an important person because your position occasionally permits you to annoy important people. But so can a gnat, a rusty hinge, a rattling window and other minor bothers.

Impudence is a Smart-Aleck's conception of impressiveness—a back-stairs notion of "big folks" behavior. An upstart betrays himself by the manner he displays his authority. Those who aren't accustomed to the use of power invariably abuse it.

Insolence is the snarl of the insignificant—"big head," evidence of a SMALL one. Little men are always the greatest bullies.

You merely SHOW UP when you SHOW OFF. We all know just about WHAT your job pays and therefore how much intelligence it demands—so why BLUFF?

Office boys, bell hops and cash girls may possibly mistake your impertinence as a manifestation of superiority, but the public recognizes the ass in the ill-fitting lion's skin.

You're a failure— and, what's more, you SHOW it. You realize you haven't brains enough to become "somebody" and think that POMPOSITY will blind others from discovery that you're NOBODY.

You've reached your level—you've quit trying. If you had ambition or ability, common sense and calculation would make you courteous, obliging and patient.

YOU'D take advantage of every possible occasion to gain well-wishers for yourself and strengthen the cordial relations between your employers and their patrons.

Good will is the chief asset of business, and those who advance it simultaneously advance themselves. Neither corporations nor merchants have room for surly servants or cheeky clerks.

But, wherever a man demonstrates a capacity for diplomacy and tact, no matter how menial his beginnings, there isn't a DOOR in the organization to which he doesn't carry a pass-key—not an office to which he is ineligible. It's the individual, not the START, that counts at the END.

Exercise your smile muscles. Begin to grin and win. Good nature is a time saver. One grouch incites another. Soft salve saves many a minute and dollar.

Headquarters always hears the creak in the machine and soon locates the source of the trouble.

The more we analyze the essentials of success the more consideration we pay to complaints against employes. They warn us where we are weak.

ONCE we resented kicks and criticisms—took 'em, in a measure, as accusations against ourselves and tossed them aside with the reflection that there was "no profit anyhow in catering to cranks and kickers."

But we have since learned better. Every ill-wisher is an hostile force—an active microbe infecting the confidence of a long string of friends and relatives.

We lose millions of dollars annually through the preventable dissatisfactions aroused by the very persons who are employed to abort them.

Hotel proprietors indirectly pay bank president salaries to room clerks so filled with a sense of their importance that their insufferable attitude fills rival hostelries.

A pleasant railway journey begins with the gateman—an enjoyable dinner with an ingratiating head waiter—a satisfactory purchase with an attentive floor-man.

Public service corporations groan at the deficits occasioned by blockheads who can't seem to understand that snappiness and listlessness reduce both earnings and their own pay envelopes.

It takes TWICE as good a show to please the man who has just had a ROW at the box office.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

NUNGESSER and Coli were lost in '27—

On July 14 Idzikowski crashed to his death.

Three brave men, they gave their lives in an effort to fly across the Atlantic.

They are "dead," we say. And yet, in a sense, Nungesser, Coli and Idzikowski have never been more alive.

That which was best in them, that which meant most to them, that which was MOST ALIVE in them, lives on though their bodies are gone.

THEIR COURAGE LIVES.

It lives, not as a glorious name, a beautiful memory, but as an ACTIVE FORCE.

What is a man's life? It is not his bodily machine—it is not the sum total of his blood, flesh and bones.

A MAN'S LIFE IS THE DREAM THAT INHABITS HIM—THE IMPULSE THAT MOVES HIM. AND DREAMS AND IMPULSES DO NOT DIE. THEY LIVE ON—FOR GOOD OR EVIL, SPREADING OUT ENDLESSLY THROUGH HUMAN LIFE. OUR GHOSTS DO REALLY WALK!

A dream inhabited Nungesser, Coli and Idzikowski—a dream of freedom through flight. An impulse moved them—the impulse of courage. They may have had other dreams, other impulses, but these they had supremely.

They WERE that dream—they WERE that impulse.

When their airplanes fell, the bodies we called Nungesser, Coli and Idzikowski were broken. But their dream was not broken, their courage was not shattered.

BY THEIR VERY "DEATH," THEIR DREAM ASSUMED GREATER REALITY, THEIR COURAGE GAINED GREATER SCOPE. FOR THEIR DREAM MADE BRIGHTER THE DREAMS OF OTHER MEN, AND THEIR COURAGE LIGHTED FIRES IN A THOUSAND OTHER HEARTS.

The bodies of these three men have gone back to the earth, but their REALITY—the only part of them that really mattered even to themselves—lives on.

THEY HAVE CROSSED THE ATLANTIC AT LAST! AND NO SKY IS BARRED TO THEM!

Have you ever thought of life in just that way—or of death in just that way?

Often you are disgusted with life—"tired of being decent." You wonder if it's all worth while.

"What a mess life is," you say to yourself. "I wonder if there's anything better after this."

I do not know whether there's anything better after this. I do not know whether we, as individuals, have eternal life. But this I DO know—

The REALITY in us is IMMORTAL.

OUR DREAM LIVES ON.

Neither our goodness nor our evil is "interred with our bones"—IT FLIES FOREVER AND CASTS A BLIGHT OR RADIANCE OVER OTHER LIVES.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

THE talkies are still making lots of talk in Hollywood and New York. There was one beautiful actress that the movie people figured they couldn't do without. They wanted to keep her in the pictures, and still she was so dumb she couldn't talk very well. They tried her out, and she made an awful flop.

"Well," says the manager, "I'm afraid we can't use you. Too bad, too, you're such a whiz to look at, and your voice ain't bad."

"Say," she says, with her face lighting up with the only idea she ever had in her life, "can't you get somebody to double for me in them words with four syllables?"

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Thoughts while strolling: What's become of that familiar old headline "Bees Sting Keeper to Death?" Those women so precisely dressed a broken fingernail gives you the jumps. Round cut diamonds have gone out like a light. More "No Cover Charge" cabarets. Their last gasp.

Hatless boys with round hair cuts suggesting chrysanthemums. That little dried-up Marquis looking fellow you always see at first nights. Old harridans who parade white poodles. Dick Berlin. The biggest nuisance and the greatest convenience of modern life—the telephone. Little Jane of the radio. And Uncle Bill.

Something amusing about colored fellows who wear eye glasses with heavy black ribbons. Wonder who invented the shower bath, bless him! Carl Van Vechten, a Cedar Rapids (Iowa) boy, who made good in the city. A cafe on Forty-seventh street features creole cooking. Japs who wear pink ties. Dorothy Stone.

Zipper rain coats. Taxicab full of revelers—Sweet Adeline-ists. Whoopee hats for little boys. Made of red felt. Bracelets are called "Joyces." Seedy characters who drift out of public parks after a shower. Interior decorating schools in every block. Dean Ray, rector of the famous Little Church Around the Corner.

Medical Examiner Norris—like a figure out of a murder mystery novel. The aging avenue Brummels who wear cutaways and black puff ties. Pat Casey, one of the vaudeville kings. Imperious pups sitting on limousine arm rests. The lads who wear raccoon coats are parting their hair in the middle.

Trembling old wrecks who scan gutters and make furtive grabs for snipes. And happy East Side families who drive in canopied carriages through the park—all grinning. Italians with rings in their ears still sell those statues in chalk from door to door.

Lampshade shops with romantic names. That dreary boarding house for widows of sea captains. Sign: "Wanted: Kennel Manager—$200 a Month and Board." There's a career. Vendors of phoney French post cards who peddle pictures in the dark. And in the light they turn out to be reproductions of Eiffel Tower.

A New York barber tells me the best obs in America are in the cattle country of Wyoming. In the interior towns off the railroad cow men pay $1 for a haircut and 50 cents for a shave and tips are bigger than in the best shops in New York. Living prices, also, are extremely low. OH, THESE WOMEN

By Leola Allard

FROM Deauville, says an English society editor, comes this bit of news:

"All the nomads of the Deauville tribe have arrived.

"Lovely bejeweled women spend their time bathing, racing, dancing, gambling, dressing, supping, until they fall, exhausted, into bed. Nobody thinks of the morrow.

"Tomorrow, you see, does not worry the rich.

"It is a word which has a meaning, and one of hope, only for the poor."

A new humane divorce is developed in Mexico and the father of it is in Paris now, extending his mail order business. He has, he claims, obtained 10,000 divorces in America and it is said to be the fastest, and most painless of all divorce procedures. Defendants are notified by mail. Women seem to be especially delighted over the new, quicker method, and it costs according to what you have. If your finances are decidedly limited you can get one for a dollar down and a dollar a month.

Evidently bargain counter behavior is alike the world over. From overseas we read this:

"Two days after an ammunition explosion in China, a woman has been found buried eight feet under the ground, but still alive. I imagine that her first inquiry after being dug out was whether the sale was over."

A Maharanee's car is described as being long and rich and blue, and having "a damsel about to dive from the radiator as a mascot, silver plate and inlaid mahogany decorate the interior of the car. The deepest imaginable cushions formed its seats."

I'll betcha an American woman could imagine 'em DEEPER, I'll betcha.

A Russian Duchess is to go into trade in New York.

But how are the customers to know which she is? They all act like duchesses. The one who acts the most human and kindly and pleasant will be the real duchess.

Although she is the adviser, and head of a department, she probably would even wait upon you if there was nobody else around, which is what the pseudo duchesses hired for that will not do.

Now someone claims to have taught Vallee how to put the it in his voice. That sounds like the woman who claims to have managed Peggy Joyce into her present position of affluence. Those are a couple of things that can be managed by no one but the inner self of whoever is getting some place by it. It ain't acquired, the advertisements in the tabloids notwithstanding.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

WHY placard a man when you introduce him to another?

Often it happens that one or the other holds a position lower. This fact may be embarrassing if attention is called to it.

The man least successful feels like apologizing for his position.

This is particularly true when the more successful man is of the too prevalent type that bases success upon financial progression.

Under such circumstances there will not be the same degree of comradely feeling that might be experienced otherwise.

It is regrettable that standards are established quite often by what has been accumulated in worldly goods.

The degree of culture, the mental capacity, the good reputation he bears are not often enough taken into consideration in forming an estimate of a man.

Because of this lack of consideration of these qualities, would it not be better if the position a man holds were not mentioned in making an introduction?

There is no good reason why such a fact should be a part of an introduction.

You can probably think of many times when you have caused embarrassment to people because of this habit.
